25,000 Jobs to Be Cut In PM's Hold-Line Plans

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau Wednesday night announced a tight hold-the-line on federal spending, and 10 hours later urban renewal projects were brought under the semi-freeze.

Earlier Wednesday, Defence Minister Leo Cadieux announced how his department was planning to hold its present budget for the next three years by closing or trimming operations at five military installations.

Under the new anti-inflationary guidelines, Mr. Trudeau announced that the freeze on federal spending will mean the elimination of 25,000 public service jobs—including some layoffs.

Robert Andras, minister without portfolio but with responsibility for housing, said today that his severe restrictions on urban redevelopment projects —pending development of a new over-all policy—is necessary because "it is just not possible for us to meet all the demands. . . ."

Mr. Trudeau said he hoped the economy program will ensure no increase in taxes next year.

FIGHT INFLATION

He appeared on both English- and French-language television networks to outline the program, which he said will help battle inflation and move the federal government toward greater efficiency.

He called the decision to freeze spending in the next fiscal year starting April 1 to the same dollar level as this year the key to the program. Spending this year is estimated at $11,000,000,000.

He also reaffirmed that defence spending in each of the next three years will be held to this year's level—$1,800,000,000. Other guidelines would be announced in the next few weeks.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield criticized waste and empire-building going on within the government, but promised support for any serious effort to fight inflation.

CALLS CURBS MEAT AXE

Using a spending freeze, however, was attacking the problem of inflation with a meat axe and making the civil service the goat of government policy.

Mr. Stanfield expressed concern about the effects the guidelines could have in depressed areas and said the government should temper austerity with humanity.

New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas said the announced economies would simply increase unemployment. There was nothing in the statement "that will really combat inflation."

Claude Edwards, president of the Public Service Alliance which represents 120,000 public servants, said the government should try to meet its employment target—10 per cent below the 1968 payroll of 236,736—by attrition instead of layoffs.

He said government hiring has been frozen for 17 months and inefficiency was beginning to show, as anyone who had tried to get a passport this summer knew.

He indicated, however, he does not expect strike talk to follow the move.

Mr. Trudeau gave this breakdown for ending 25,000 civil service jobs.

WON'T FILL POSTS

The 10,000 vacancies now existing due to the previous job freeze would not be filled. The government had reduced employment levels by 9,000 in this year's estimates and another 5,000 to 7,000 would disappear from the payroll during the coming fiscal year.

"This does not mean that 25,000 employees will lose their jobs," Mr. Trudeau said.

Assault-NDP Link By Bennett Booed

SALMON ARM (CP)—Premier Bennett was booed and jeered Wednesday when he told an election meeting the NDP was responsible for "the attack on Canada's prime minister the other day".

To boos and catcalls, the Social Credit premier told hecklers in a crowd of 500: "You know very well it was Berger (NDP leader Tom Berger) and the NDP who organized the attack. . . ."

A chorus of jeers and boos followed this statement. For several minutes, Mr. Bennett's words could barely be heard. But he was heard to say: "And they're here again, with the same tactics."

Mr. Bennett referred to a demonstration by about 300 anti-Vietnam war demonstrators outside a Liberal party dinner in Vancouver Friday night, at

'GUTSY PEOPLE' —McGEER

Ending a 3,000 mile trip through northern B.C. with a visit to five ridings in the Williams Lake area, McGeer said of the isolated communities:

"I've got much respect for them. It's hard on the families, so rough on the men, but they're gutsy, they're good.

Berger Lauds Mill Control Of Pollution

He made a one-hour tour of the mill in the course of his campaign swing along the north shore and called the 2,200-employee plant "a good corporate citizen."

It was in sharp contrast to his attacks in Prince George on the Northwood pulp mill there.

"An NDP government's pollution control program, I'm confident, would have the full co-operation of the MacMillan Bloedel organization," he said.

OPEN-PIT MINE EYED NEAR SOOKE

By AB KENT

A major B.C. mining exploration company has begun initial survey work to determine the potential of a 300-claim, base-metals prospect on southern Vancouver Island.

The area, northwest along the coast from Sooke, has been described as being suited to open-pit mining operations, and would be subject to new mining legislation passed this year.

L. P. Starck, Vancouver, president of Giant Explorations Ltd., said his company has taken an option on property held by Macsan Explorations Ltd. in a 35-mile belt along the coast between East Sooke and Sombrio Point.

●

Giant Ex is the exploration company of Giant Mascot Mines Ltd., which has controlling interest.

The mineral claims straddle the Leech River fault and range up to eight miles inland. They are believed to be basically copper prospects, although sampling shows evidence of zinc, iron, silver, gold and other metals.

The Leech River is an historic placer gold source, and the Jordan River area has a former copper producer, the Sunro mine, which yielded a substantial quantity of concentrate before flooding problems were encountered.

●

Starck said $35,000 to $40,000 would be spent in geochemical and geophysical surveys and, in about a month's time, diamond drilling.

Work would cover at least six months and the option agreement would be extendable, Starck indicated.

Considerable surface work and diamond drilling of the property was done for three years in the and following a $180,000 public share issue by by Macsan in 1965. The company was formed in 1963.

Republican Army Poised at Border

LONDONDERRY (CP) — British troops moved into this Northern Ireland city today to halt religious rioting that raged unabated after Ulster's worst night of violence in years. Troops of the Republic of Ireland moved up to the western border.

The troops from Roman Catholic Southern Ireland moved to the area near Londonderry to support five field hospitals for treating injured from the predominantly Protestant North wanting to cross over.

The southern mobilization included transport and other support units in combat gear. The number of men involved was not announced.

Londonderry Riots Quelled

The Northern Ireland government said the British troops, already stationed here, moved in immediately to help hard-pressed police restore order.

A British force took up positions outside the Guildhall in Londonderry within 10 minutes after the government announced the move in Belfast, Northern Ireland's capital. The troops were fully armed, but their number was not known.

A government spokesman said the request to use British troops had been made by the inspector-general of the Royal Ulster Constabulary, the North's regular police force.

The request was granted by Lt.-Gen. Ian Harris, commander of about 5,000 British troops in Northern Ireland.

Britain's Prime Minister Wilson broke off his vacation to confer on the situation with his home secretary, James Callaghan, in southwest England.

The talks were believed to have centred on the use of British troops, something Wilson has resisted in the past.

The three-cornered governmental war of nerves erupted after a night of violence in which at least 10 persons were wounded in shooting incidents.

Homes, shops and public buildings in six major towns were set ablaze. And there were uncounted other injuries as the result of incidents other than shootings.

South Catholics Come to Aid

The sending of southern troops to positions close to Northern Ireland's border emphasized the special concern in the Roman Catholic republic for Londonderry, where the fighting was centred in Bogside, the Catholic community.

Dublin authorities said the mission of the Republican troops is to support and supply field hospitals for Northern Irish fleeing battles between Catholics and Protestants.

The southern Irish troops set up a headquarters at Letterkenny, about 15 miles from Londonderry where rioting has been virtually uncontrollable since Tuesday. A traditional Protestant parade that day set off the new round of religious strife.

The Northern Ireland government has called for help from British troops to stop the bloodshed. The Dublin government has proposed a United Nations peace force.

Although Dublin's announcement said the troops in trucks and jeeps moved to the border area to lend medical assistance, the army men carried weapons. A spokesman said the men normally deal with "communications, logistics and other support." The units, he added, are "being supplied by the appropriate army units." Strength of the units was not announced.

IN POSITION

Reports from the border area said the southern Irish troops were in positions only about a mile from the Bogside district, which is near the border.

The units are part of Ireland's 13,000-man permanent armed forces, which have seen duty in United Nations peace forces in The Congo and Cyprus.

The mobilization underscored the stunned reaction of the Irish Republic to the violence in Northern Ireland, still part of Britain.

Dublin observers quoted by Reuters said they doubted the southern government had any intention of sending its troops across the border.

Col. T. M. Elliott, director of the Southern Irish Medical Corps, flew by helicopter to Letterkenny to establish headquarters for five mobile hospitals.

READY TO FUNCTION

Officials said the hospitals with army staffs are ready to function and that mobile patrols of medical transports and security personnel were operating along the border.

A Dublin military spokesman said there has been no general mobilization order. He explained that only certain key officers have been recalled from military leave.

The fighting continued today and in Belfast, the Northern Ireland capital, John Cardinal Conway called on all Catholics to "do everything to avoid further

Russians Still Firing At Chinese

HONG KONG (Reuters) — China said today Russian troops still were firing at Chinese positions in central Asia, where a serious border clash took place Wednesday.

The New China news agency and Radio Peking, monitored here, also said Soviet troops were still moving reinforcements into the area.

Each side accused the other of starting Wednesday's bloody fighting. There also were mutual accusations of territorial violations.

China said many of its troops were killed or injured in the clash.

Course Mark At Uplands

Professional Brian Bond of Toronto scored a record seven-under-par 63 this morning in the pro-am prelude to the $10,000 B.C. Open tournament at Uplands Golf Club.

The former course record, 65, was shared by two other professionals — Chuch Congdon and Fred Wood.

Manitoba Gets New Law Plans

WINNIPEG (CP) — throne speech crammed with proposed legislation today dispelled forecasts by Premier Ed Schreyer that the summer session of the Manitoba legislature would be a housekeeping chore.

The speech, delivered by Lt.-Gov. Richard S. Bowles at the opening of the first session of New Democratic Party power in the province's history, forecast at least 20 pieces of legislation.

A promise by Mr. Schreyer in the June 25 election campaign to take immediate action to reduce medical care premiums was taken care of in the speech.

After the party's narrow victory in defeating the Conservative government of Walter Weir, Mr. Schreyer said the reduction would be a priority item in what he hoped would be a four-to-six-week summer session.

The speech forecast the government would move to "reduce substantially" the premiums, but did not spell out details on financing. The premiums now are $9.80 a month for families.

NEED MORE MONEY

"In order to provide funds from consolidated revenue for this purpose there will have to be increases in revenue estimates at the present session or for the next fiscal year," the speech said.

The government has been studying methods of shifting costs to another source but believes an immediate tax increase would not be necessary in view of increased revenues.

The speech said the program presented is only a "modest portion" of what the government plans during its tenure.

Among other major legislation forecast is establishment of an ombudsman, lowering the voting age to 18 from 21, consumer protection measures, changes in agriculture marketing boards and changes in workmen's compensation benefits.

A large portion of the 1,600-word speech was taken up with plans to reform the legislative operation on the lines of recent changes made in the House of Commons.

Reorganization of government departments, initiated by the Weir administration, is to be held until the NDP has time to assess their operation. However, the speech indicated the government is studying setting up a department of urban affairs and that legislation could be introduced this session.

PLAN HARD LOOK

The speech said the reassessment of government structure is considered necessary as an essential prelude to plans they (the government) have for re-evaluating all programs of government."

The government plans an all-party committee to study parliamentary reform and "to propose measures to improve the efficiency of government, to strengthen the role of the legislature in regard to the executive arm of government, and to increase public involvement in the affairs of government."

"As part of this process," the speech said, "it is proposed to appoint two members of the legislative assembly to assist my ministers in their duties."

The speech offers increased grants to urban transit systems, now based on three per cent of gross revenue and expected to climb to five per cent. These grants involve systems in Winnipeg, Brandon and Flin Flon.

The municipalities are to get greater authority to spend money and create debts for projects they have chosen for the province's centennial in 1970.

Manitoba Gets NDP Speaker

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba's New Democratic Party government elected a Speaker from its own ranks Wednesday, setting up the chance of a tie vote in the legislature which opens today.

Premier Ed Schreyer announced the nomination of Ben Hanuschak (NDP—Burrows) as Speaker, after apparently unsuccessful attempts to have Jake Froese (SC—Rhineland) and former Speaker James Bilton (PC—Swan River) accept the post as Manitoba's first permanent Speaker.

In Vancouver earlier Wednesday, Bill Rathie, a former Vancouver mayor seeking election for Social Credit Aug. 27, said what happened to Mr. Trudeau was 'all planned by admitted NDP supporters."

Mr. Berger, asked to comment on Mr. Rathie's accusation, said: "That's the same sort of hysterical nonsense we hear from the premier. It's baseless and everyone knows it."

He had made much the same comment Tuesday when Mr. Bennett accused him of calling a bus stoppage, caused by pickets set up by striking oil workers in Vancouver and Victoria.

Mr. Bennett's campaign meeting in Salmon Arm was punctuated by what observers called the worst heckling he has faced so far in the campaign for the Aug. 27 general election.

Mr. Bennett told hecklers they reminded him of the people who caused a disturbance in Vancouver Friday. They booed and he then accused the NDP of organizing "the attack" on Mr. Trudeau.

Hecklers booed once more.

Inquest Ordered

Coroner Edmond St. Jorre said today he will order an inquest into the death of Ernest Brian Modeste, 19, of 1077 Modeste Road.

Modeste died from injuries received in a traffic accident Wednesday.

Esquimalt police said today they had not completed investigations into the accident.

They said the young man was apparently a passenger in a car which collided head-on with another vehicle on Esquimalt Road. The accident occurred at 1:14 a.m.

Modeste died in St. Joseph's Hospital four hours later.

Clifford Crawford of 1328 Clover, and Michael Davies, 23, of 467 Lampson, were also injured in the accident. They are both in satisfactory condition in hospital.

escalation of violence.". He is the Roman Catholic primate of Ireland.

He criticized the Northern Irish government for permitting the Apprentice Boys parade to be staged Tuesday.

The fighting spread from Londonderry Wednesday night to nine cities and towns.

It was during these outbursts that the Irish Republic appealed to the British government to call for a UN peace force to restore order.

London replied that Northern Ireland was no business of the Dublin-based Irish Republican government, or of the United Nations.

Downtown Londonderry, where the current violence began during a Protestant parade Tuesday, was set aflame and ravaged by more than 4,000 Catholics and Protestants.

FIRE 30 SHOTS

Police Wednesday night fired 30 shots to scatter one group of gasoline bombers in Londonderry. They opened fire again early today to protect themselves from fire bombs thrown from a warehouse.

As the gunfire and arson spread from town to town, Northern Ireland—or Ulster—became engulfed in its gravest crisis since Ireland was partitioned in North and South 49 years ago.

Gunfire was reported in three other centres including Belfast, seat of the Ulster government, and six persons were hit by bullets.

At least 10 persons were wounded by bullets during the night in towns across Northern Ireland. Police put the official casualty total this morning at 160 but estimates put the number injured at several hundred. So far, no deaths have been reported.

The toll of injuries to police was heavy. At least 60 were reported injured in the latest round of hostilities. At least 90 were hurt Tuesday.

In Belfast, two fire chiefs were badly burned when a gasoline bomb was hurled into their car.

NOW UNDER CONTROL

Belfast police said the situation generally was under control this morning.

Worst of the night's fighting and arson took place in Londonderry, the border town of Newry—still barricaded by rioters this morning—Dungannon and Dungiven.

A pro-government newspaper in Belfast, The Newsletter, claimed that many of the rioters in Newry crossed into the town from the Irish Republic.

The Derry Citizens Association, a Catholic political group from Bogside, added to the aura of insurrection by declaring that "after 50 years of (Protestant) unionist tyranny we have finally come to the crunch. Either we smash unionism now or we go back to sleep for another 50 years."

"Therefore, the Derry Citizens Association calls on every able-bodied man in Ireland willing to take a stand against unionist dictatorship to come into this city. We need them—we will feed them."

He warned that his Protestant government "will not shrink from any necessary measure, however firm or unpalatable."

Premier Jack Lynch of the Irish Republic coupled his call for UN action with a demand that the British government open talks to review "the entire constitutional position" of Northern Ireland, meaning its separation from the republic.

Lynch charged the Belfast government had lost control and that its Protestant police force was no longer capable of acting impartially. He said Ireland could not "stand by" and see innocent people wounded, and he ordered his army to set up first aid stations on the border to help injured Catholics.

. . . 25,000 JOBS TO BE CUT

tirement, resignations and the like amount to about 10 per cent of the work force each year. This has greatly facilitated the adjustments required in the past year and will facilitate those that will have to be made in the coming months."

He warned, however, that attrition will not do the whole job and there will be some layoffs. He declined to be pinned down at his news conference which followed his TV statement on where the layoffs could come or how many might be involved.

Mr. Trudeau said that, as part of the government's austerity, it will be taking a look at its foreign embassies, possibly closing some and reducing staff in others.

He also said the federal government will not enter into any more open-ended shared-cost agreements with the provinces so it will be able to estimate its future costs more accurately.

FEARS A DISASTER

The prime minister said that if the government does not take some action to control its spending, the country will be on the road to financial disaster.

Since 1960, federal spending had almost doubled to $11,000,000,000. If no changes in spending patterns were made, it would jump another 50 per cent to $17,500,000,000 by 1975—with just the existing programs.

He said that the guidelines also indicate the government's priorities for spending.

While defence would be frozen, spending on programs for regional development, low-income housing and assistance for Indians and Eskimos would rise.

Transportation, communication and general government services would have to get along "under severe budgetary limits."

What the spending freeze means is that government departments will have to bear the brunt of inflationary pressures instead of passing them on to taxpayers, he said.

The time had passed when government departments should plan for annual increases in their budgets and staffs simply because the population was growing.

"That idea is being replaced by improved management of human resources to obtain more productivity from the public service.

"They are being paid more now, the taxpayer has every right to expect more from them."

Mr. Trudeau repeated the call for co-operation by business, labor and the consumer to reduce inflationary pressures.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

The operator of a large auto repair establishment in New England had a statistically minded daughter who helped him learn just what kind of weather brought out the most work in his eight mechanics. She kept a daily record of their individual work for two years and then fed the figures to a computer centre.

The best working weather for mechanics was April. January and February were almost as productive, and March, although a cool-weather month, was not a top work month.

You may have guessed by now what month was responsible for the lowest production per man. It was August. The mechanics obviously didn't feel very much like working in August, so the garage owner now closes up in late August and sends all of the men on vacation.

Men Who Touched Moon for Mankind Spend Gala Day Touching America

By BILL STALL

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Nixon toasted the Apollo 11 lunar explorers as "three brave men" who penetrated the shadows of space and carried humanity to new heights of imagination.

Holding aloft a glass of champagne at an extraordinary state dinner Wednesday night, he told Neil Armstrong, Edwin Aldrin and Michael Collins:

"We thank you for your courage. We thank you for raising our sights. . . . The sky is no longer the limit."

The boyish - looking Armstrong — mission commander and first man on the moon—responded in a sometimes quavering voice before 1,440 guests:

"We were very privileged to leave on the moon a plaque endorsed by you Mr. President, saying it was all for mankind."

Six Get Medals

The glittering banquet was capped by presentation of special medals to the pioneering trio and, posthumously, to three astronauts fatally burned in a spacecraft fire in 1967.

The affair climaxed a triumphant day of tours through New York and Chicago, a day devoted to an outpouring of American appreciation for the feat.

Armstrong noted that during the New York ticker-tape tribute he saw a sign telling the astronauts, "Through you we touched the moon." Then he said: "It was our privilege today to cross the country to touch America."

Guests at the elaborate state dinner, the finest ever held outside Washington, included members of the cabinet and the Supreme Court, 44 of 50 governors, representatives of the diplomatic corps and the aerospace business, aviation heroes, military leaders and friends and relatives of the astronauts.

The 2½-hour, seven-course feast in a lavishly decorated ballroom of the Century Plaza Hotel broke up after a great roar of cheers and claps for the astronauts who spoke modestly of their accomplishments.

Earlier, they were cheered by an estimated 4,000,000 in New York City and 2,000,000 in Chicago.

May Go Overseas

Nixon hinted that the astronauts may travel overseas after their return today to Houston. "When they go abroad they will also get a welcome," the president said.

Outside, several thousand demonstrated peacefully against the war in Vietnam. Marching along the Avenue of the Stars in front of the 16-storey hotel, they waved signs and chanted, "Stop the war" and, "Power to the people."

Nixon said toasting the astronauts was "the highest privilege I could have . . . Lets raise our glasses to America's astronauts."

As Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew read citations, Nixon presented the trio with the Medal of Freedom, the country's highest civilian honor.

The trio appeared chipper despite the gruelling day which began with a flight in the presidential jet to New York City and a mammoth welcome along Broadway.

They rode down Michigan Avenue and through The Loop to the Civic Centre where they received medals from Mayor Richard J. Daley and an expression of gratitude from the people of Illinois from their governor, Richard B. Ogilvie.

Then it was on to Los Angeles, to complete touching the country's three largest cities.

At the hotel, as the band broke into Hail to the Chief, traditional presidential entrance march, Nixon strode briskly into the mammoth rust-color ballroom followed by his wife, Agnew and the astronauts and their wives. The crowd—most celebrities in their own right—rose in applause.

After finishing the filet of beef entree, and before a dessert called Clair de Lune (moonlight), Nixon and Agnew escorted Armstrong, 39, Aldrin, 39, and Collins, 38, on a round of guest tables, shaking hands and chatting.

The evening reached an emotional peak when Nixon honored astronauts Virgil Grissom, Edward White II and Roger Chaffee who died during Apollo mission training at Cape Kennedy Jan. 27, 1967.

One Widow Absent

Widows Pat White and Betty Grissom received their husbands' decorations. Chaffee's widow, now Mrs. William Canfield, did not attend. No reason was given.

"We have the privilege sometimes of standing on the shoulders of the giants who have gone before us," the president said before presenting the posthumous medals.

Also honored was Steve Bales, 26, a flight control officer who flashed a go-ahead signal to Eagle in the face of computer warnings that might have forced them to abort the landing and return to moon orbit.

Many in the audience were aviation pioneers who forged the way to the threshold of space.

There were diplomats from 83 countries including Canada.

Slain Girl Seen With Cyclist

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A prosecution witness testified today that she saw John Norman Collins, 22, riding on a motorcycle with an 18-year-old Eastern Michigan University co-ed as passenger four days before she was found murdered.

The witness, Diana Joan Goshe, said she had sold a wig to the co-ed, Karen Sue Beineman, and then saw the girl get on a motorcycle behind Collins and ride down a street in nearby Ypsilanti.

Mrs. Goshe testified at the preliminary examination of Collins, an Eastern Michigan University senior who is charged with first-degree murder in Miss Beineman's death.

Miss Beineman was the latest of seven young women killed in the Ann Arbor-Ypsilanti area in the last two years.

Dr. Robert Hendrix, deputy county medical examiner, testified that an autopsy disclosed Miss Beineman probably died of strangulation.

Hendrix said her head was badly battered but not beyond recognition, and there were definite signs of sexual molestation.

Lodgings At Capacity

Victoria's downtown hotels were filled to capacity Wednesday but a few rooms were available in motels outside the city.

The Tourist Information Bureau at 786 Government was bombarded with requests for accommodation in private homes. A spokesman said this information cannot be released until all Victoria hotels and motels, in and outside the city, are filled.

A telephone check of downtown hotels produced the standard answer, "No vacancy," but one or two said: "Try again this afternoon."

All of the 415 renovated rooms at the Empress were filled while 180 more are closed for renovating.

Crisis to Avoid a Crisis

IN FRANCE'S SUDDEN DEVALuation of its currency and imposition of price and profit ceilings, the European Common Market is faced with perhaps its most serious problem since it was inaugurated in 1958. The French action means in effect that a customs border must be established within the Market area, for it has been found necessary to suspend the joint agricultural policy which was one of the most contentious, but most essential, features of the Common Market agreement.

With the economic aspect of the Market thus taking a backward step, the eventual political union which underlies the whole plan receives a corresponding setback. The present upset situation should for the time being cool Britain's urge to become a member of the continental group, and at the same time lead the present members to postpone any move to add to their difficulties by bringing in a new member.

French devaluation itself creates a problem for the ECM participants by increasing the difficulties of equating their economies and in particular by putting greater pressure on West Germany to revalue its currency. But the basic problem of agriculture still demands solution before the Market can achieve an efficient internal system. The farm policy inaugurated in 1962 has now required a major readjustment to meet French needs.

The first move was to ensure that French farm exports to the other members would remain at existing prices rather than move upward to reflect the cheapening of French currency. But a chronic problem for the ECM has been France's high rate of agricultural production and large annual surpluses. The Common Market support fund established to meet this situation finds France getting the lion's share of payments and West Germany contributing most of the support. In effect, the system provides for limitless subsidies for unrestrained farm production, and this has been a continuing source of discussion. France's devaluation has accentuated the problem.

While the devaluation is seen by French government leaders as necessary in order to preserve the French economy, it is viewed by French labor as a direct threat to workers' incomes, for now the weekly pay cheque will buy about 12 per cent less in imported goods and—despite a temporary price freeze—inevitably less in French products. President Pompidou, in office only seven weeks, must now persuade distrustful French labor that it will suffer less from the government's action than it would have suffered had devaluation not taken place. Clearly, France has problems ahead.

Double Vision in Russia

PAUL WOHL, WRITING IN THE Christian Science Monitor, has indicated a plausible explanation of the implied paradox in current Soviet-American relationships. While a Chinook seems to be easing the cold war atmosphere at one level, at another the Russian image of the United States with horns and tail continues in a mold frozen solid.

He cites a study made by a distinguished Swiss journalist of half a dozen authoritative Russian publications—Pravda, Izvestia, Sovietskaya Rossiaya, Trud, Komsomolskaya Pravda and Krasnaya Zvezda — to indicate the preponderance of ugly pictures drawn for Soviet readers.

Except for relatively objective treatment of space activities, the newspapers during the study period depicted American life in terms of police brutality, crime, violent demonstrations, misery, poverty, vice, drug addiction, racial tensions, militarism, fascism and other unfavorable aspects of society in the United States.

The distortion, Mr. Wohl states, is for ideological purposes. The intent is to maintain among Russian readers the conviction that "burgeois" society—meaning the United States—is doomed, that proletarian and Communst-directed societies — meaning Russia—are good, and full of promise for a better future.

This, says Mr. Wohl, is a continuing ideological campaign and is not to be judged in terms of the co-existence theme applied at the political level. The pragmatic men of Moscow obviously see the desirability at present of avoiding serious trouble with the United States while trouble looms on the Chinese border and elsewhere. But this pacific orientation toward the West is not to be allowed to burgeon into a belief among Russian citizens that Americans may not be so bad after all and that their society has features to commend it.

The analysis of the apparently opposing sentiments provides an interesting backdrop against which to view what appear to be contradictory attitudes in the U.S.S.R. The view changes when the sighting is by the political or the ideological eye.

More Spills Come to Light

WIDESPREAD PUBLICITY was given to the Santa Barbara oil spill but the American reading public has apparently given little thought to other smaller leakages which have caused substantial damage. The U.S. Federal Water Pollution Control Administration has recently reported a total of 110 spills during the first seven months of this year, 22 of which involved more than 10,000 gallons each.

The frequency of these accidents has led the federal body's director, David D. Dominick, to advocate stronger legislation, more manpower to fight the spills and more funds for research to prevent them. "Too often," he comments, "we are fighting effects when we ought to be determining causes."

His advocacy of prevention is addressed to the people of the United States. The problem, however, is not theirs alone. In the light of increasing hazards from spillage—more and bigger tankers as well as extended underwater drilling—is it beyond reason to hope for international cooperation in such research and preventive work? Canada has a stake in the development of technical experience in handling the problem and should assume a share of responsibility for joint efforts in the field.

The Sweepers

THE LEADER OF THE NEW Democrats, Mr. Berger, accuses the Social Credit candidates of becoming "a bit desperate" as the election campaign progresses. But Mr. Berger himself seems not free of this affliction, for in asserting that "we will see greater prosperity than before under the NDP" he has made about as desperate a claim as could be imagined. It would take much longer than a six-week election campaign for Mr. Berger to come up with persuasive proof of such a sweeping statement, with its implication that he could, from Victoria, control the national economy, influence international trade, guide United States policies and stimulate investment. His claim that he could give British Columbia greater prosperity is no more tenable than Mr. Bennett's claim that he is personally responsible for all the prosperity that we have.

". . . why couldn't you have just put your foot in it like all the others did . . . ?

FROM OTTAWA — By MAURICE WESTERN

Mr. Stanfield—Better Than Most Think?

THE Gallup experts reporting the state of national opinion about Mr. Stanfield's leadership, announce that he barely breaks even in a performance poll. Of voters consulted, 24 per cent credit the Conservative chief with a good job in opposition, while 27 per cent rate him as fair. Almost a third, 31 per cent have no view to offer the investigators.

Western

To make this unspectacular showing the more depressing for Conservatives, Gallup carefully notes John Diefenbaker scored 65 per cent in 1964 and that Mike Pearson, who was tigerish only on occasion, won an approving vote of 61 per cent as opposition leader in 1962.

Before the Conservatives yield to their ancient impulse to scrap an unfortunate leader, they should however consider one or two points.

The first is the strong likelihood that Canadians generally have a fairly clear idea of what they expect of a head of government but conflicting ideas of what constitutes virtue in an opposition leader.

Diefenbaker Flair

Mr. Diefenbaker was the great gladiator of his time (and sometimes still is). He made opposition spectacular.

Now prosecutor, now avenging angel, he drove ministers to distraction. To such lengths was the feud with Mr. Pearson carried that Parliament at times seemed almost a shambles.

A notable casualty of this colorful leadership was the Conservative party which was split down the middle and almost wrecked before Mr. Diefenbaker took his departure in suitably dramatic fashion at the Toronto convention.

In my experience it was very common to hear both Liberals and Conservatives say John Diefenbaker was the greatest opposition leader ever and that, of course, he had become an impossibility as prime minister.

And, indeed, he performed miracles in denying the Liberals a majority but could not himself come anywhere near power.

Alternative to Government

The fact is, however, that opposition leaders are not supposed to look on their jobs as permanent assignments. Their task is to unseat the ministers. An opposition leader is supposed to be a potential alternative to the government of the day.

It follows from this that Mr. Stanfield does not have to emulate his predecessor (even if he had the disposition or talents to do so) to better Mr. Diefenbaker's performance as opposition leader. But plainly he is handicapped in making an impression on the country because people still tend to think of opposition in terms made familiar by Mr. Diefenbaker's unforgettable performance.

Conservative might also reflect that Rome was not built in a day. After a year in opposition, Mr. Pearson's plight appeared hopeless. New governments, after all, benefit from momentum built up in their campaigns and early months of office.

It was not until 1962, four years after his crushing defeat, that Mr. Pearson scored 61 per cent on the Gallup scale. Much hard work in and out of Parliament filled the intervening period.

Mr. Stanfield started with certain obvious handicaps since the convention which gave him the leadership failed to equip him with an adequate set of policies. The Conservatives hope to correct this at their fall convention.

Improvising

But meanwhile the opposition leader has had to improvise. (The government has been improvising too but it has vast resources not available to parties on Mr. Speaker's left.)

It seems to me that, within these limitations, Mr. Stanfield has made a much better start than people are yet prepared to credit him with.

In particular he has shown that he is an excellent House of Commons man. He comes into debate with carefully prepared, well reasoned speeches; indeed, it has been generally remarked on several important occasions that he has out-performed Mr. Trudeau, who perhaps prefers other means of communication.

Nor is this all. Mr. Stanfield has also shown that he can take it, with his usual dry good humor. His personal qualities have helped him in another respect. One test of an opposition leader is the degree to which he can find common ground with other parties and thus compensate for the necessarily limited debating talents of a minority group.

Popular

Here Mr. Stanfield, being personally well liked by members of the small parties, has succeeded better up to now than any opposition leader whom I have watched in Parliament.

All this is a far cry from the achievement of office, which must be Mr. Stanfield's objective. But at least he has escaped destruction in his first year; he has inflicted wounds on the government and he has done nothing which would rule him out as a future prime minister. What counts now is the use he makes of the next three years.

One further note. It is true that Mr. Stanfield, in his one chance at the polls, failed where John Diefenbaker succeeded—in denying the government a majority in Parliament. But the gap is considerably smaller when account is taken of the fact that Mr. Diefenbaker did not lead the party after redistribution. The changes effected had important consequences, altogether unfavorable to the Conservatives.

COMPASSIONATE SOCIETY — By JAMES RESTON

Nixon Moves Ahead on Welfare

THE main thing about President Nixon's proposals for dealing with poverty in America is that he recognizes the government's responsibility for removing it. He has been denouncing the "welfare state" for 20 years, but he is now saying that poverty in America in the midst of spectacular prosperity is intolerable and must be wiped out.

Reston

There will be endless arguments about his specific proposals. He is saying there are too many people on relief but has suggested a system that will more than double the number on public assistance. He has clearly underestimated the cost of his policy — if accepted, it will probably be nearer $10 billion a year than his $4 billion estimate — but federal revenues are increasing by $12 billion to $15 billion a year, and even with the Vietnam drain he still might be able not only to finance his welfare policy but to cut taxes.

For the moment, however, all we have is a presidential speech on welfare and a set of proposals which may very well be changed radically when Wilbur Mills and the ways and means committee get through with them. But the president's poverty speech itself is a significant and even historic document which tells a lot about American political life.

A Republican president has condemned the word "welfare", emphasized "work" and "training" as conditions of public assistance, suggested that the states and the cities be given more federal money to deal with their social and economic problems, but still comes out in the end with a policy of spending more money for relief of more poor people than the welfare state Democrats ever dared to propose in the past.

This is beginning to be the story of American politics. Everything is a little different from what it seems — and sometimes the opposite. Lyndon Johnson wins the presidency in 1964 by the largest majority in American history and he does it as a peacemaker in Vietnam, and then he escalates the war and is driven out of the White House.

Modifying Positions

Meanwhile, Richard Nixon, the military hawk, comes to office and concentrates his efforts on making a compromise peace. And now on the most controversial question of domestic policy, he changes the rhetoric, the philosophy and the administration, but proposes more welfare, more people on public assistance, which will take more federal funds than any other president in the history of the republic.

It is easy to find fault with many of Mr. Nixon's welfare proposals. He says that a poor child deserves equal opportunity no matter where he lives, but he suggests a system that would still leave the poor in Alabama in an unequal position with the poor in New York or Ohio or California. He is worried about the migration of the very poor from the rural areas in the poor Southern states, into the rich Northern states, where they can get much higher relief payments, but he doesn't really suggest a system of equal payments for the whole nation.

Also, the president's welfare proposals are full of inconsistencies. He thinks it is good for the federal government to deal with the poor women and children, but leaves the blind and disabled to the states. He emphasizes training and work for the poor, two-thirds of whom have an eighth-grade education or less, but he makes no provision for government employment of the tragic remnant left behind if they can't get jobs in private commerce or industry.

Remarkably Progressive

Nevertheless, Mr. Nixon has taken a great step forward. He has cloaked a remarkably progressive welfare policy in conservative language. He has made imaginative suggestions for dealing with the children's program, keeping poor families together, providing incentives to train and work in the private sector, and giving more funds and responsibility to the states and cities.

But mainly he has dealt with the intolerable paradox of American life. He has insisted that poverty in a prosperous country must be eliminated. He has asked the Congress for tax reform. He has begun withdrawing troops from Vietnam, and put a limit to American responsibility for keeping peace all over the world.

None of these programs has come to fruition. All of them are subject to argument, but the trend is fairly clear. The president is striving for peace abroad and a more equal and compassionate society at home. His means are in dispute but his goals are quite clear. He has repudiated his own party's record on social policy at home and even his own hawkish attitudes abroad, and this tells us something both about the president and the country.

For he has obviously concluded that the American people are for peace abroad and for a more decent distribution of wealth at home, and the chances are that this will prove to be both good policy and good politics.

Looking Back

From the Times, August 14, 1909.

Hon J. S. Helmcken sent a protest to the trustees of Beacon Hill Park against the granting of permission to B.C. Electric to place poles for lighting wires on Cook Street and Dallas Road, and also against the extending of Cook Street from May Street to Dallas which would run through park property. The sturdy defender of the park claimed the Cook street extension would reduce the park's dimensions.

Letters

Narrow View

The letter signed "Concerned", in Saturday's Times shows a common (and narrow) view of the function of a newspaper. Surely the freedom of the press we prize so highly must also include the freedom of the editorial opinions expressed.

So what if the Times generally supports the Liberal cause? So does the Vancouver Sun. By contrast, the two morning papers seem not to love the Liberals. Indeed, since there is no longer a Conservative cause in B.C., the other papers usually (but not invariably) espouse the Socred cause.

It is almost sad to reflect that even after 17 years in power the present government has never been successful in finding a true-blue champion among the daily papers. But then, they don't need one really, considering the reams of blatant propaganda churned out by the Queen's Printer in the form of reports, budget speeches, and that gem, The B.C. Government News, and all of it paid for out of our taxes.

So I say, sir, keep it up. Even if I were a supporter of the NDP or the Socreds I would not complain if you saw fit to support the Liberals—Amused.

With Consternation

Reading in the "Times", I note with consternation Mr. Berger's talk on poverty and Indians. Apparently Mr. Berger visited some Indian houses and called them "quite appalling". He also accuses Ottawa of making life miserable for the Indians, ignoring the need to consult them, and accuses Mr. Bennett's government of deliberate indifference to the poor and to Indians. He says Mr. Bennett's whole appeal to the affluent is to ignore the poor. When you see the poverty it isn't funny any more to laugh about the Social Credit slogan "The Good Life" Mr. Berger says.

Now I would like to know what Mr. Berger has done in his life for the poor — or the poor Indians? What gives him the right to go through the homes of these people and turn around and blame the Bennett government?

Mr. Bennett doesn't have to promise this province one thing. His past stands before him — his integrity and the kind of man he is will bring in the votes anyway.

I am not Social Credit, have been a teacher on reserves, and spent three years working with Indians. All they need is a little more confidence in themselves, kindness and education, and maybe in another 100 years things will be better.—V. A. M.

Sidewalk Riders

Now that most bikes have handlebars like the horns on a Texas steer and the majority use the sidewalks instead of the road, would it be possible to have a white line painted in the centre for pedestrians to use one half and the riders the other.

Sunday we attempted to take a walk along the waterfront on Dallas Road. The path has several signs reading "no bike riding". This is a waste of paint. And don't say anything to the little dears or you get an ear full of filth in return. A little action, please.

Israel Two Years Later: Prosperous But Tense

By GERALD CLARK

Editor of the Montreal Star, Mr. Clark recently made a two-week visit to Israel. In a four-part series beginning today he contrasts his observations with those of a similar trip after the Six-Day War two years ago.

JERUSALEM—The driver of the car taking me on a tour through the West Bank, until 1967 a part of Jordan, was a native Israeli in his middle 50s.

"I was born in Jerusalem," he said, "and I grew up among Arabs. I know them. I wouldn't trust them one second. So any piece of paper they sign—a peace treaty—I wouldn't believe.

"They'll just use time to get ready to attack us again. Not an inch of territory can we give up. We need the space we have now to protect us."

Two years ago, in his divided city of Jerusalem, the nearest Jordanian field guns were only a few hundred yards away; today they are 25 miles away. Outside Jericho we stopped to give a lift to an Israeli soldier — a 21-year-old lieutenant in the tank corps. He, too, was a Sabra, a native-born, but he came from Tel Aviv, an all-Jewish city. Unlike the driver, he was prepared to give the Arabs "one more chance" — withdrawal of Israeli forces from territory occupied since the June, 1967, war, in exchange for a peace treaty.

CLARK

"He doesn't know Arabs," muttered the driver. The soldier conceded. "It might be a gamble, but it would be better than another 100 years of war."

Who was more representative of the current mood of Israel, the middle-aged driver or the young lieutenant? It is impossible to pinpoint precise breakdowns of opinion in a land of highly individualistic opinion. I can only report that the most optimistic comment, the most flexible approach, I heard in two weeks here came from the lieutenant.

The driver is much more typical of Israelis — a "hard-liner" who put it perhaps less subtly than the prime minister, Mrs. Golda Meir, but in a sense was demonstrating the phenomenon that has developed in Israel in the past two years. There is a mistrust of Arab intentions to such a degree that it robs people of any desire to return land they had not coveted in the first place. Mrs. Meir expressed it for me this way:

"It doesn't make any sense to talk about compromise or about borders or about area. It doesn't make any sense, because the primary question is this: Is Nasser prepared to have peace with us, are the Arabs prepared to give up all thought of war? This is the real issue. Everything else can be negotiated."

Depression in Egypt

I came here from Cairo, stepping into a contrasting world. Egypt is suffering from a depressed state of economics and tourism, while Israel is in an unprecedented boom.

Before the June 1967 war, there was heavy unemployment, and for the first time since the founding of the state more people were leaving the country than moving in. Now Israel is back at its old happy position; it takes in more Jewish migrants than it loses, and still could employ many more.

The boom is due to three main reasons: First, straight defence — the construction of military roads and buffer positions in the new territories; second, the expansion of arms manufacturing to make the country more self-reliant after Charles de Gaulle cut off spare parts and supplies; third, a government decision to swing from the manufacture of simple consumer goods to more sophisticated goods.

In the style of other relatively small countries, such as Switzerland and Denmark, Israel is now engaged in producing selective but highly intricate equipment for competitive world markets. This ranges from electronic gear to a short-haul Israeli-designed plane, the Arava, intended particularly for use in underdeveloped countries.

The bustle and activity provide a sense of confidence, of material well being, that is offset by one overpowering negative force: the unremitting uneasiness about the international climate, the chronic fear of another round with Egypt and the Arabs, the uncertainty of how Russia will manoeuvre.

There is little of the visible war hysteria that one finds in Egypt. Armed troops are seen in th countryside and occasionally on city streets — but there is no blackout, no piling up of sandbags to prevent bomb blast.

Yet the nagging presence of war is felt in a hundred everyday ways. School children are taught by army experts how to distinguish ordinary metal buttons from miniature land mines; they are warned not to pick up strange objects from the side of roads — these might be booby traps left by infiltrating terrorists.

If you go to a cinema for an evening's entertainment, you must open your handbag or any parcel you are carrying — to show police you are not a disguised terrorist carrying a concealed time-bomb to be let off in a crowd.

It is this persistent, chronic anxiety that more than any other force is wearying to the people here. Israel's population is no larger than Montreal's, but it is a homegeneous population in that it is conscious always of a threat of its survival. Everyone is emotionally involved in his neighbor's problems or tragedies.

In my meeting wtih Mrs. Meir, in her impersonal government office, she sounded for a while more like a 71-year-old grandmother than the head of a government. She referred with choked voice to the "six boys" killed the previous night at the Suez Canal; it was virtually a personally felt loss.

One needs constantly to remind oneself of the closeness with which Israelis respond to news of casualties. In a small country it is not only a matter of people knowing one another; it is the fact that each projects himself into the constant drama.

The curious fact is that the number of Israeli soldiers killed in action since the end of the Six-Day war is smaller than the number of people killed in road mishaps in the same two-year period: 400 versus 600.

But the emotional pull, the outcry, is meshed into the lesser figure. It is not, of course, a question of the death rate. It is the why and the how and the to whom. It takes in only one age group — youngsters of 19, 20, 21, the promising boys just out of school, shot down on a cease-fire line, an indication not of a vague threat but of the actuality of a war that has never stopped. This, perhaps, is the most difficult part of the whole dilemma.

An Israeli woman cradles her child and holds her house number where it was before building in Yardena, Israel, was hit by rocket fire during attack last week by Arab guerrillas.

BUT THE UNION SAYS NO

Sensible Solution to Dock Dispute

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

Bryce Mackasey has released the report of the conciliation board set up in the Vancouver waterfront dispute between the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (Harry Bridges' union) and the B.C. Maritime Employers' Association.

Written by the chairman, Winnipeg lawyer R. A. Gallagher, and concurred in by the companies' nominee but not, alas, by the union's nominee, this is one of the best conciliation board reports we have read.

Mr. Gallagher was the counsel with Justice Samuel Freedman's Royal Commission which studied the "run-through" problem on the CN in Northern Ontario. Canadian labor strongly supports the Freedman Formula for unions and management to meet problems of technological and organizational change.

Mr. Gallagher has applied the Freedman philosophy in a specific instance — and a very tangled one. The failure of the union nominee to sign the report arises in the main from matters which are marginal to the main issue. This is most unfortunate.

We understand that both sides to the dispute agree that Mr. Gallagher has put forward a superb statement of the issues involved in a highly complex and technical segment of industrial relations, and one which is vital to our national interest.

Historically the industry has been one in which the ability to do strenuous manual labor was the main requirement of the worker.

Gallagher's report describes how the port of Liverpool has spent millions of dollars to become the container centre of the British Isles, and how Seattle has done the same thing to capture the traffic of container - vessels on the Pacific—including cargo destined for Canada.

Cargoes were unloaded or loaded by hand and dockside machinery was limited to winches and cranes.

Bridges' union along the Pacific coast, determined to protect its members from physical dangers and from exploitation, negotiated through the years an abundance of restrictive work rules for protection.

The technological transformation involved a great variety of improved machines, and new ones like fork lift trucks, and most recently, and most important, the "containers" and ships and docks converted to "containerized" cargo. A container is an outer skin which is packed with a number or commodities of different sizes.

Containers can be prepared in advance of a ship's arrival, can be stored in the open, permit a great reduction of the "turn-around" time, and generally cut costs drastically. That is if the dockside industry can be modernized to use them.

The problem of the Vancouver waterfront may be simply put: "The parties in this dispute are bound by the restrictive or protective work rules and the make-work rules of the past which were negotiated by them under entirely different circumstances, and which, to say the least, are not merely archaic but are of such a nature that, if they continue, they will doom the future of the ports of British Columbia."

The union appreciates this, and in 1961 it bargained away the protective rules in U.S. ports in return for new, modern, and very expensive agreements.

This was the Freedman philosophy of the right of management to make the change, and the right of the union to bargain in order to soften the impact upon the existing collective agreement.

The union is prepared now to do this in Vancouver. It will result in a drastic reduction of the work force, and create problems relating to early retirement, level of retirement incomes, and most important, guarantee of work hours.

And in return, the employers will pay out substantial sums of money for these new benefits.

The parting of the ways on the conciliation board came, not on the philosophy, but on the total cost to the companies of the conversion. But this failure to agree has a specific origin which is rooted in philosophy.

●

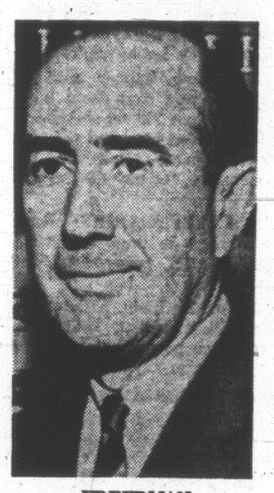
When the last agreement was negotiated, instead of accepting the Freedman idea of the right of management to manage and the right of the union to negotiate the impact, the two sides entered a deal in which the union "gave" certain rights to the companies in return for very expensive supplementary pension which the union feels politically forced to preserve and extend.

The companies cannot agree both to this and to the cushioning costs which a drastic negotiated reduction of the work force would entail.

Despite this, the Gallagher report sets out the guidelines for modernization, and for a greatly improved economic position for the remaining work force.

It cuts across several decades of accumulated rules by recommending management's "right to direct the working force and to assign the members thereof . . . subject to grievance procedure insofar as seniority, ability and qualifications are concerned."

It states, "the advantages of technological change should not all fall to the employer," and proposes a guarantee of work and other benefits for the longshoremen.



FREEDMAN

When the agreement is signed, with or without a strike, there seems little doubt that these will be its main features.

Sea Worms in Class of Their Own

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL
Director, Provincial Museum

The marine representatives of the true worms, or annelids, are readily recognized as worms because they have a long body divided into many segments but they differ from the earthworms in a number of ways.

For example all sea worms have a distinct head complete with two pairs of eyes and several pairs of tentacles or feelers, each body segment has paddle-like feet and numerous bristles, the sexes are usually separate and the young pass through a larval stage during which they swim free in the water.

Altogether they are so distinct they are placed in a separate class called Polychaetes—a name which refers to the many bristles along the sides of the body.

The so-called sea worm or pile worm is probably the one with which most persons are familiar. It is commonly found beneath clusters of mussels on piles or rocks or beneath rocks or sea weed on muddy sand. A giant member more than 12 inches long is occasionally seen when digging for clams, though usually only parts of it are uncovered as it is often sliced through by the shovel or breaks into pieces when being pulled from its burrow.

During daylight sea worms remain out of sight but at night they move around in search of food. Smaller animals are grasped by hooks on an eversible proboscis which draws the victim into the mouth in a sucking motion. The proboscis is also used by these worms for burrowing in sand or mud.

From time to time during the summer months certain of these worms put on a spectacular show. On dark nights particularly after a warming period countless thousands of worms emerge from hiding and swim in the water in great swarms. As they are attracted to light a lamp hung over the side of a boat or a float will soon be the centre of an aquatic stage alive with action as arrow-like shapes dash back and forth across the light patch.

During these spawning activities the worms become brightly colored and extremely active. The iridescent green of the fore part of the body is offset by a tail section which, may be pink, red or yellow, the color depending upon the species and the state of maturity of the individual.

Swimming is accomplished by the rapid beating of the paddle-like appendages extending from each side which pushes the worm through the water at a surprising rate and with little visible effort.

As they dart across the light patch or as they whirl and gyrate beneath the lamp, eggs and sperms are released into the water forming miniature wakes or contrails behind the moving bodies. In some species the highly colored after-end of the worm breaks off at the height of the spawning act to release eggs or sperms in the water after which the front end retires to some shelter and begins regenerating the last section.

The time of spawning of these worms is governed by several factors including the lunar cycle, the season of the year, the temperature of the water, the stage of the tide and even the calmness of the water, and spawning may occur several successive times during certain phases of the moon.

A classic example of timing of this type is provided by the Palolo worm of Samoa and the Fiji Islands. This small species appears in vast swarms during the last quarter of the moon in October and November of each year and the date of spawning is so definite that it is said that "the natives know ahead of time and are on hand to gather the worms for a feast."

Of great interest, too, is an Atlantic species that has unusual spawning habits. This particular sea worm swarms for about two hours every night during the dark of the moon in the summer months. At this time during the swimming act the female bites off the posterior segments of a male worm.

Upon being swallowed the sperms from the male segments go through the wall of the pharynx into the body cavity of the female where they fertilize the eggs carried there. The fertilized eggs then are discharged through ruptures which occur in the body wall while the female is still swimming.

Since the spawning activities of many of our local species have never been observed and described marine biologists still have plenty of intriguing problems to work on in this field alone.

Roberts Bank, CN Rail Yards Hit by Pickets

Picketing oil refinery workers this morning hit the Roberts Bank deep-sea port site, two Canadian National Railway yards in Vancouver and a number of construction sites and service stations in the Mainland city.

However, no picketing was reported in Victoria or other Vancouver Island areas.

Pickets of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union have this week disrupted bus service in Vancouver and Victoria, CPR ferry service between Vancouver and Nanaimo and closed a chemical plant and a lumber mill in their strike against six major oil companies.

The picket technique is an effort to spur new talks in the now 12-week-old strike.

The union's international representative R. T. Philp, of Vancouver said this morning pickets are being respected.

THOUSANDS AFFECTED

He said jobs of "several thousand" persons are affected.

One of the construction sites involved today is at Simon Fraser University.

Asked if picketers will withdraw before injunctions are served he said, "I'm not prepared to say" but added that in some cases pickets had been informed applications for injunctions are being made.

The Mayo lumber mill in Nanaimo was shut down Wednesday when 200 woodworker's union members refused to cross picket lines. However, the pickets are not up today, Philp said.

"Our whole program is one of harassment to draw the strike into proper propostions," he said.

Gordon McGavin, assistant to the mill president, said from Vancouver he was applying for an injunction anyway.

SEEKS INJUNCTION

"We had no knowledge they wouldn't be there today or not. Or whether they plan to set up pickets at noon or later."

He said he hoped to get an injunction later today for an indefinite period. The mill, which remained closed Wednesday, will not open until he returns with an injunction.

McGavin said it hoped to reopen tonight.

Philp said the picketing was meant to put pressure on the oil industries and "we hope employers put pressure on the industry."

"We're not here to cause problems to workers on the job," he said.

In Vancouver Wednesday two injunctions were granted against the oil workers union.

F.M.C. Chemicals Ltd., received one banning pickets from interfering with people leaving or entering its plant, 30 miles north of Vancouver.

The Canadian Pacific Railway was granted an injunction banning pickets at its depots in Vancouver and Nanaimo.

So far picketing has not extended to petroleum customers such as B.C. Ferries although the union promises attention will be given to transportation facilities.

Philp said "I'm not prepared to say" when asked if the ferries would be picketed.

Refinery workers are seeking a new two-year contract providing $1 an hour wage hike and other provisions, countered by a 53-cent offer in May when negotiations broke off.

The companies concerned are Imperial, Shell, Standard, Gulf, Home and Texaco. All their products have been declared hot and support is indicated by several other unions including Teamsters.

Philp said only Union 76 products are acceptable to the union.

RELUCTANT

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson said he is reluctant to intervene in the oilworkers' dispute.

"I'm reluctant to force a mediation officer on parties who are unwilling to accept him," said Peterson.

"Before the dispute began and right up to this hour both management and labor have been offered mediation but neither side seems interested in accepting it."

Peterson said one complicating factor is the nation-wide characteristics of both the union and the companies involved—"any settlement here affects their policies right across the country."

Concrete Sailboat For Maine

BIDDEFORD, Me. (AP) — Soon to join a nautical world of steel, wood and fiberglas ships is a concrete sailboat that won't sink like a "concrete cloud."

A 42-foot schooner with hull made of solid cement is being completed with more conventional ship building materials at Rumery's boat yard here.

The 22-ton ship was designed along the lines of two-masted pinkie schooners, ships with narrow overhanging sterns that were used as freighters along the coast of Maine in the 19th century.

The Seacrete Construction Co. in Portland made the hull of ferro cement, a distant relative of standard construction cement.

The firm claims it will withstand flexing and is immune to corrosion, rot and marine borers. It's the third the company has built.

The schooner is being built for Mr. and Mrs. John Ackerman of Bel Air, Md., and will be christened "Dunmowen." The Ackermans plan to use it as a Caribbean home.

Rumery's is finishing the ship's interior and will build the superstructure.

When finished, the schooner will draw six feet of water and have sleeping accommodations for eight.

No Relief Seen For Beef Prices

OTTAWA (CP) — There is no relief in sight from the present high price of beef, the agriculture department reported today in its monthly food outlook for September.

Pork supplies are increasing and some price reductions may be coming from that quarter. Egg prices, however, are expected to rise.

Pork: Supplies are up and prices may weaken.

Beef: Supplies are lower and the demand stronger. Prices are expected to remain firm.

Eggs: Prices for Grade A large are expected to rise. Smalls and mediums will be in plentiful supply.

Poultry meat: Chickens will be in adequate supply at steady prices. Heavy roasters may be higher. Turkey prices will be steady.

Peaches: Ontario crop and prices will be about the same as last year. In British Columbia prices will be higher as no commercial crop was harvested.

Grapes: A large Ontario crop with declining prices. British Columbia had a small crop and prices will remain strong.

Tomatoes: Good supplies at moderate prices.

Dry onions: Supplies will be lower than last year and prices will increase slightly.

RABID BAT BITES FOUR

VANCOUVER (CP) — Four persons are being treated with vaccine after being bitten by a rabid bat. It was the first recorded incidence of rabies in a bat here in 12 years. Under treatment are an eight-year-old boy who captured the bat, two other children and an adult.

Park Service Joint Effort

Sunday's outdoor gospel service at the Cameron bandshell in Beacon Hill Park will be conducted jointly by the Free Methodist Church and the Evangelical Free Church.

This is the eighth in the series of summer services sponsored by the Victoria committee, Christian Business Men's International.

"Attendances are way up on last summer," said Dan C. Webster, committee chairman. "We average about 500 in front of the bandshell and possibly 500 more who walk around the park listening to the service."

This Sunday Pastor Philip Caulkins of the Free Methodist Church will give the gospel message; Pastor Carl Klassen of the Evangelical Free Church will be master of ceremonies.

Nixon Adopts LBJ Idea

By HOBART ROWEN

WASHINGTON (WP) — Five years ago, Lyndon Johnson set up a presidential task force that recommended a dramatic revenue-sharing program that would funnel a fixed percentage of federal taxes to the hard-pressed state and local governments.

It became known as the "Heller-Pechman" plan, after economists Walter W. Heller, then chief economic adviser, and Joseph A. Pechman of the Brookings Institution.

Johnson, annoyed when Heller leaked the essentials of the idea to The New York Times, shelved the idea. But the Republican party, sensing the political appeal of a "no strings attached" redistribution of money to local jurisdictions, gladly adopted the plan as its own.

No Limitations

Wednesday, President Nixon sent a formal revenue-sharing proposal to Congress which by fiscal 1976 would turn over $5.1 billion to the states and localities to do with as they please.

To meet the Nixon concept of "new federalism," there is absolutely no limitation on what the states could do with the money. It doesn't ban expenditures for highways, the one limitation that Heller and Pechman thought needed.

There are no fair labor, anti-discrimination, or civil rights strings, either.

Moreover, the proposal is bound to be contested by Democrats and other liberals because the states would be required to "pass through" to their cities, counties and towns a share that exactly corresponds to the local revenues raised in the localities.

Hard-Pressed

Thus, to take one example, the city of Baltimore, Md., hard-pressed for urban needs will not fare as well (per capita) as rich Montgomery County, in the suburban Washington, D.C. area.

Or, because of the concentration of wealth in Deaborn, Mich., which raises a relatively high percentage of the tax income of the state of Michigan, it will fare better in sharing federal revenue (per capita) than the city of Detroit.

The Nixon proposal, as explained here Wednesday by assistant treasury secretary Murray Weidenbaum, would allow a state to develop an alternative plan for distribution. But such an alternative in most states may be politically impossible to achieve.

Bonus

The plan will, in its initial phase of distribution, pass the funds out to the 50 states and the District of Columbia according to population, with a slight bonus or debit according to the state-local ratio of revenue collection to the national average.

The state of Iowa was cited as an example. In 1966, state and local revenues together were $1,131,000,000 or 13.7 per cent of personal income within the state, a slightly higher figure than the national average.

Adjusted for the population, this formula would give Iowa a $14.6 million share if there were a national distribution of $1 billion compared with $13.8 million if population were the only criterion.

Officials would not release a state-by-state breakdown showing which states would get a "bonus" and which would lose. But they promised to supply it during testimony on Capitol Hill later on.

Incentives

The bonus will provide an incentive to the states to expand their own revenue-raising devices, and penalize those who fail to keep up to the national average.

Nixon spokesmen made it clear that under their proposal, there is no size "cut-off" for receipt of funds by localities. Earlier, it had been suggested that cities or counties under 50,000 receive no "pass-through" from the state.

However, only general-purpose units of government—not school or fire districts—qualify.

The progression of the initial allocation from 1-6 of 1 per cent of the taxable income base in fiscal 1971 (producing a $500 million pie) to 1 per cent in fiscal 1976 assumes a 10 per cent annual growth of the economy.

Thus, taxable income would increase from $315 billion in 1971 to $507 billion in 1976. Based on this rapid growth, some critics said the administration could have moved to a 2 per cent share for the states.

Unemployment Declines

OTTAWA (CP)-Unemployment declined by 34,000 between June and July to dip to 349,000, The Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the manpower department said today in a joint report.

It was a greater decline than usual for this time of year, and brought the rate of unemployment—4.1 per cent of the labor force—to the lowest point since last October.

The report said there was a smaller-than-usual increase in the labor force, up 147,000 to 8,500,000, and employment rose by 181,000 to 8,201,000.

The July figures result from a survey taken in the week ended July 20.

| | July 1969 | June 1969 | July 1968 |
|---|---|---|---|
| Labor force | 8,550 | 8,403 | 8,323 |
| Employed | 8,201 | 8,020 | 7,952 |
| Unemployed | 349 | 383 | 371 |

About a third of the reduction in unemployment occurred among teen-agers, the report said. Unemployment was down 22,000 from a year ago, and half of this decline was among unemployed teen-agers.

The report also said 35 per cent of the unemployed workers in July were out of work for less than one month, 38 per cent for one to three months, and 27 per cent for four months or more.

On a seasonally-adjusted basis, the rate of unemployment in July was 4.7 per cent of the labor force, down from 5.1 per cent in June and 5.2 per cent in July last year.

In addition to employment for more teen-agers, the report said the decline in unemployment resulted from substantial numbers of married women leaving the labor force for the summer vacation period.

Farm employment was up by 64,000 to 644,000. There were also increases in employment in manufacturing, construction, trade, and public service. Employment in community, business and personal services was down.

All regions shared in the July increase in employment except British Columbia, where there was little change.

The unemployment rate in the Atlantic provinces eased to six per cent of the labor force from 6.1 per cent in June. It was only 5.4 per cent in July last year.

Quebec's unemployment rate dropped to 5.8 per cent from 6.5 in June. It was 5.6 in July last year. Ontario's rate dropped to three per cent of the labor force, compared with 3.9 in June and in July last year.

Prairie unemployment rose to 2.7 per cent of the labor force there—still the lowest in Canada—compared with 2.4 per cent in June and three per cent in July last year. British Columbia's rate was 3.9 per cent in July, 4.1 per cent in June, and 5.1 per cent in July last year.

Citizens City's Best Public Relations Staff

By SUSAN RILEY

"Don't rough up the tourists."

That's how one of the four girls who staffs the Victoria Visitor's Bureau in the summer describes her approach to the job.

She and her co-workers approach the job smiling and armed with hundreds of maps—maps of every province, several states and obscure corners of B.C.

●

By some combination of their pragmatism and his idealism, a smoothly-functioning bureau operates.

During July and August about 700 persons a day drop in to ask questions. The answers aren't always a flip-through-a-map or phone call away.

"How do we get to Snook?" "Where can I get a steak and kidney pie in a half hour?"

Some questions are asked again and again. The girls just smile, stifle a sigh and for the 19th time that day explain how to get from Nanaimo to Vancouver.

Few tourists can pronouce Nanaimo some mumble it, some try and fail loudly. Others just pretend they've never heard of it.

Another common query one morning this week was: "Where do I park my car?" It was often accompanied by frantic gestures to a carload of children and suitcases.

●

A little old lady with beige gloves, a beige bag and a beige hat tottered in and said She was flying to Okland. She wanted to know if Western Airlines were on strike.

"Can you tell me if there are any hotels on Saturna Island?"

"No, but there are a few lodging places," is the reply.

There are few questions about Victoria the girls can't answer. Heppell says the bureau has information on "everything."

While tourists dash off to look at attractions, the girls are looking at the tourists. They agree that in spite of demands on their patience and feet the job is interesting enough to make it worth while.

●

Some tourists creep in timidly and it's obvious they have their questions all memorized. Yet often when the girls answer, they seem too frazzled to pay attention. They say "thank you" and walk back out into the Causeway chaos.

Others march boldly to the counter, bang their elbows down and demand information.

Some, devastated by the experience of being dirty, tired and away from home just walk in and look vacant for several minutes. They are usually lost. After 10 minutes poring over a map with one of the girls they leave, smiling and confident.

And, of course, the super-friendly tourist abounds. They stroll in, smiles spilling all over the floor and exude good will.

With malcontents and Hilarious Harries alike, the girls stay polite. They are not encouraged to chat with vociferous people because often others are standing three-deep at the counter waiting for help.

During July, 27,000 visited the downtown bureau and a tiny one in Saanich. And in that time there hasn't been one compaint about the girls or the bureau.

●

Heppell is proud of this record but points out that it isn't just his bureau, it is the whole city that is making tourists want to stay.

"They like this place. They think it's relaxed, quiet and clean. And they like it because the people in Victoria are nice to them."

Victorians themselves are the city's best public relations staff, he says.

6½% B.C. Parity Bonds

RELIABLE because they're always worth 100 cents on the dollar.
REWARDING because they yield 6½% annual interest, payable quarterly.

In 1959, your Provincial Government introduced the first B.C. Parity Bond — and since that time thousands of British Columbians have benefitted from this uniquely rewarding type of investment. Now, another opportunity to profit from our dynamic provincial growth: B.C. Hydro 6½% Parity Development Bonds. Unconditionally guaranteed by the Province of British Columbia, Parity Bonds yield 6½% interest per annum, and are cashable at any time for the full purchase price. Your investment is directly linked with the continuing development of our provincial resources. And the earnings you enjoy will help your family move ahead financially in the years to come.

Negotiations In Last Phase

TORONTO (CP) — Rio Algom Mines Ltd. said Thursday it is conducting final negotiations with a consortium of six Japanese copper smelters and three Japanese trading companies to sell them the entire output of the Lornex copper mine in British Columbia, when the mine goes into production in 1972.

Under the agreement the Japanese will buy 55,000 short tons of copper annually for 12 years. Based on present world copper prices the total contract would be worth about $500,000,000.

The Japanese companies are also to supply about $28,250,000 as part of the required financing to bring the mine into production.

Rio Algom has signed a letter of intent with three Canadian banks to provide an additional $60,000,000 of financing, secured by a first mortgage on the property.

The agreement with the Japanese companies is subject to the approval of the Japanese government.

The Lornex mine is in the Highland Valley area of British Columbia, about 250 miles east of Vancouver. The orebody contains about 293,000,000 tons of low-grade copper. Total estimated cost of bringing the mine into production is about $120,000,000.

Rio Algom owns about 36 per cent of Lornex Mining Corp. Ltd., which owns the mining property, and has management control of the mine.

New Company Incorporations In Sharp Drop

Incorporation of new B.C. companies took a sharp drop last month compared with the record-setting month of June, but it's still much higher than in July 1968.

There were 598 incorporations, down 149 from June and up 143 from a year ago, according to records of the registrar of companies.

The registry noticed a decline in the number of mining companies listed for the first time, compared with new industrial, service and financial firms.

A total of 49 extra-provincial companies were registered, against 33 in July 1968, and 36 new societies, up 10.

By Tuesday of this week the total of new B.C. companies added during August was nearly 200.

Several of the new companies were quick to reflect space exploration by the U.S. last month. Subscribers registered a Lunar Holdings Ltd., a Moonwalk Holdings Ltd., an Apollo Excavating Ltd. and Apollo Paints (Victoria) Ltd.

THE ACCOUNTANT'S ADVICE

'Yield to Maturity' Term Confuses Many Investors

(This is a service provided by The Times and by The Institute of Chartered Accountants of British Columbia).

By EDGAR A. DOWNEY, C.A

With the current gyrations of the money market and investments yields many people become confused about the effect upon their own investments.

Because interest rates have been rising sharply during the past few years the prices of most bonds already issued have been falling.

If a good quality bond issued a few years ago paid 5 percent interest it would have been worth par (i.e. its full face value) on the money market because that used to be the going rate for such bonds.

If the same bond issuer now has to pay 8 percent as the going interest rate, the market value of the old bonds is bound to fall to make the "yield to maturity" approximately 8 percent.

MISUNDERSTANDING

It is that term "yield to maturity" which gives rise to a lot of misunderstanding. As a simplified example, let us assume that $100 was invested 10 years ago in a 5 per cent bond for a 20-year term and that the current market requires 8 per cent.

Now, there are 10 years yet to go until maturity when the bond should be repaid in its $100 full face value, so the current value would be discounted so that the combination of the $5.00 a year interest plus the amount of the discount would produce a total yield of 8 percent on the current value for the remaining 10 years.

Therefore, that bond would now sell for about $83.00 because the $17.00 discount from par would be returned to the investor at maturity in ten years time together with the annual interest. The required 8 percent on the $83.00 current value would be about 6.70 a year which is made up of the $5.00 interest paid each year plus the $1.70 annual one-tenth portion of the discount.

In practice, this bond current price would not be exactly the $83.00 as in the example above because there are other more complex mathematics which cause a slight variation and because there is the over-riding factor of what a potential buyer will, in fact, pay for such a bond, but the difference would not be more than a few dollars.

NO ENFORCED TERM

The same general principle may be applied to any form of term investment at interest. However, it does not apply to Government Savings Bonds nor to the various, so called, parity bonds of provincial governments because, in effect, these are not term investments. The lender has the right to demand the return of his investment in full at any time. Therefore, there is no enforced term because the lender can call the actual maturity date for his own loan regardless of the stipulated term for the bond issue as a whole.

Preferred shares which carry a fixed dividend rate, as distinguished from interest, are subject to a discount in similar circumstances. But because such shares rarely have a specified maturity date the recovery of the discount is not a factor in determining the current market value. Thus, a $100 par value share with $5.00 preferred dividend would, theoretically, be worth $62.50 if the current yield required is 8 per cent, because $5.00 is 8 per cent of $62.50. But the practical factors of what a buyer would pay and what a seller would accept have a much greater bearing upon the price of such shares than the simple calculation of the technical current yield.

Mine Staking Takes Jump

TORONTO (CP) — Claims staked in Ontario during the first six months of the year have increased over the same period of last year, the mines department has reported.

Mines Minister Allan Lawrence said that the number of claims staked jumped to 24,960 compared with 24,004 in the first six months of 1968.

The most active staking area was the Red Lake district in northwestern Ontario where discovery of important base metal deposits brought a rush of 9,320 claims early in the year.

ITT

International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. says it had record sales and earnings for the second quarter and first half of 1969.

Worldwide sales and revenues in the second quarter totalled $1.21 billion compared with $1.05 billion a year earlier. Net income for the 1969 period was $56.4 million or 76 cents a share, up from $48.3 million or 66 cents a share a year earlier.

Superior

Canadian Superior Oil Ltd. earned $2 million during the first six months of this year, a decrease from the same period of 1968 when the company made $5.5 million.

Largest factor in the decrease was a provision for income taxes not made last year. Increased administrative, rental and operating expenses were also involved, said president A. E. Feldmeyer in an interim report.

The company's gross income increased slightly to $17.66 million compared with $17.49 million last year.

Neonex

A preliminary agreement on the sale of Otto Mfg. Enterprises of Edmonton to Neonex International Ltd. has been reached.

The sale is subject to approval of regulatory agencies. Price was not disclosed.

Otto Mfg. Enterprises was established nine years ago and makes camping trailers. Projected sales for 1970, said president Ralph Otto are $5 million.

Reserve Oil

Reserve Oil and Gas Co. of Los Angeles will acquire the Canadian land rights of Mission Development Ltd. of Calgary in exchange for $5,000,000 in securities, the companies have announced.

The land consists of 29,000,000 acres in northern and eastern Canadian prospecting permits and gas and oil leases, the firm said.

"Geologically," said John R. McMillan, Reserve Oil president, "the northern coast of Canada and the Arctic islands, where Mission holds more than 10,000,000 net working-interest acres of oil and gas exploration permits, is similar to the Alaska north slope."

Reserve had 1968 earnings of $2,300,000 on $16,300,000 revenue.

Northern Gas

Northern and Central Gas Corp. Ltd. had net income of $9 million or 78 cents a share for the six months ended June 30, compared with $9.19 million or 80 cents a share for the similar 1968 period.

Earnings for the 12 months ended June 30 were up from the previous year — $11.14 million compared with $10.77 million.

Revenues in the first half of the year were 8.8 per cent higher than in the similar 1968 period, increasing to $81.29 million.

Slight Increase

Cost of borrowing funds increased only slightly in the six months ended June 30, reports Union Acceptance Corp. Ltd.

Net income for the period compared with a year earlier was $365,000, up $35,000. Gross operating income was $4.88 million, against $4.6 million.

Borrowing cost rose from $1.6 million to $1.67 million.

Texas Gulf

Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. of New York said Tuesday production at its Kidd Creek mine continues to be "highly satisfactory," averaging about 10,000 tons of ore a day.

Net earnings for the six months ended June 30 totalled $34.5 million compared with $36 million for the same period last year.

The Kidd Creek mine near Timmins, is believed to be the largest base metal deposit in the world, and brings in a substantial part of Texas Gulf profits.

Canadian Canners

Higher sales and lower net profit were reported by Canadian Canners Ltd. for the 15 months ended May 31, in which operating cost increased $15 million over the previous 12 months.

Sales totaled $68 million in the 15 months against $53.6 million in the year ended Feb. 29, 1968. Operating costs were $64.7 million, compared with $49.7 million.

Net earnings were $1 million or 75 cents per class A and B share, vs. $1.17 million or 84 cents a share in 1968.

Bill WALKER

It was Moe Norman, oddball, and no dispute permitted.

Moe is the merry madcap of the Canadian Professional Golfer tour, which is stopping by at Uplands Golf Club this week.

The dramatic role is the British Columbia Open golf championship, of which Norman and his buddies are a part.

I was warned that as The Crown Prince of golf, Norman would transcend reality. And for a while he did.

First of all, if you say "Hi," he might, and then again, he might open a bottle of pop. Then if you again say "Hi," he might not, and he might open a bottle of pop.

But he must be all right, even if he seems all wrong, and the tournament must be all right, even if the name seems all wrong. For Norman drinks coke, not Carlings, which is what the sponsor sells.

The other part is the thought that if his behaviour is as disordered as he makes it appear, then it seems illogical to suggest that behind the buffoonery is a highly accomplished athlete.

But such is the case.

●

Yesterday, for example, he shot a leisurely 66, with about six or seven pops on the side. His friends say he could raise that to a dozen or so, pops that is, if the pressure starts to build later in the week, with a couple more 66s on the side.

Because that too is Moe Norman.

He doesn't like interviews and appears suspicious of people, but that doesn't stop him from talking.

And talk he can, and will, to the gallery, to his opponents, to any newly-found friends passing by. And he will have the gallery talking too, and to themselves most likely as he talks just as fast as he plays, and plays just as fast as it takes him to put down a bottle of pop and pick it up again.

"Blink, and you miss it," said Uplands pro John Wren.

And if you are a camera bug, be warned and be ready. You've probably heard this story before, but it bears repeating.

Moe said, "Sure, but you gotta be quick."

The woman bent over to adjust her camera and then looked up only to see Moe hurrying down the fairway after his ball.

●

Wednesday, it happened here. While playing the 18th, Norman put his second about 15 feet from the flag. A few spectators gathered, one turned to call a friend to come and see, and when he looked back the ball was going in the hole. Moe had a birdie for his 66.

Historically, the Norman story is a waggish one.

Before he turned pro, he was a ranking amateur in Ontario, a champion of many tournaments and the Canadian amateur champion.

But there was a bit of the bufoon about him too.

He used to hitch-hike around the Ontario tournament circuit, slept in the park, or under the bench, or in a car, accepted loans for expenses, lived on pop and hot dogs, set several club records, many of which still stand; and sold his trophies as fast as he won them because as he said then:

"I don't want to be in the hardware business."

He went pro only when he was told he was no longer an amateur because he had accepted financial help.

He played on the U.S. gold trail for a time, won a few dollars, upset a few of the staid campaigners with his zany style and now is doing the same thing right here in town.

●

He shies away from microphones and ducks newsmen, but doesn't get lost as quickly as a pro as he did as an amateur when at times he wouldn't bother to show up for the prize presentations.

He says of it:

"What do I need publicity for? So, I can hit a ball off a pop bottle, off a four-inch tee, and off an eight-inch tee! I got no training for any other job."

Although it must, with haste, be pointed out that although most will stand and gape at his antics and come back for more, don't wonder at his success.

For his insistence that the quickest way to win a golf tournament is the fastest way from tee to green, and away, is no reason to believe he has neglected any of the fundamentals along that way.

For he has all the shots, though some say his putting must be suspect because of the haste. But mostly his is a game of supreme bliss with the confident self-assurance of a successful man in a hurry.

And the charge, implied or otherwise, that his exasperating tactics are designed solely to confuse players and spectators alike, should never be misunderstood.

For he is second high-man on the dollar totem pole of winnings by professionals in Canada this year.

Sure he's crazy — like a fox.

They Marched, Marked And Some Bagged Birds

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Wednesday was march and mark day.

Today is the pro-am prelude.

That's the timetable around the Uplands Golf Club as a field of 204 prepares to tee off in the B.C. Open golf tournament.

It rates as one of the strongest golf fields ever assembled. Testimony, quickly, was supplied in Wednesday's warmup rounds as sub-par shooters came out in force.

EAGLES NOT RARE

Birdies were bagged by the wholesale lot. Eagles aren't quite as rare as the migratory bird act would have you believe as professionals and a flock of top-flight amateurs charted their way around the 6,215-yard Uplands course.

Tommy Moryson, a six-foot-four probational professional from Vancouver, bagged seven "birds" and one eagle en route to a 65 around the par-70 course.

Montreal professional Gary Slatter also enjoyed a birdie feast with another five-under-par 65.

TRAPP HITS 68

Bespectabled Finn Sorenson of Edmonton and big Bob Boldt of Eugene, Ore., both had 67 in their practice tours; Frank Whitbey of Toronto and Victoria Club assistant Vaughan Trapp were among the several to check in with 68s.

The 69 shooters were as common as beets in borsch.

Mainly, however, Wednesday's marches were for charting. Players long-stepped off their own yardage and spotted up markers they'll use when the serious shooting starts for the major share of the $10,000 purse and the Carling Trophy.

Also at stake is qualification for the world's richest tournament — the Alcan "Golfer-of-the-Year" championship, to be played in Portland, Sept. 25-28.

Canadian hopefuls add their best two 54-hole totals from the Ontario, Quebec and B.C. Opens to their 72-hole CPGA score and the low man goes to Portland, guaranteed of at least $2,000 and a chance at the $55,000 top prize.

It Takes a Palmer To Clip Ex-Champ

Seattle golfer Robert Palmer stopped Bill Blakely of Portland in his seventh bid for the Seniors North West Association title with a quarter-final upset at Victoria Golf Club Wednesday.

Palmer defeated Blakely 2 and 1 during the 47th annual tournament.

Meanwhile, two other former champions and the current title holder advanced into today's semi-final rounds.

The 1966 title-winner, Dr. George Bigelow tangles with defending champion Harry Givan of Seattle, who scored an 8 and 6 victory over Don Woodard of Walla Walla, Wash.

Bigelow was a 5 and 4 winner over Fran Andrews of Portland.

Blakely first won the title in 1957, then took it in 1959, 1960, 1962, 1963, and 1965.

Another ex-champion, Ed Eisenhower, who won in 1958, reached the semi-final for the over-75-years-of-age group.

He will meet Mike Sanford while a match between Harold Nicholls and Floyd Volk will determine the other finalist.

Collingwood Gains Berth In Finals

By STEVE HUME

Vancouver Collingwood squeaked into the Canadian Litte League championship final on an Edmonton Hardisty error in the bottom of the sixth inning Wednesday evening.

And Valleyfield, Quebec, scrambling desperately to stay alive after a disappointing first game, rallied to a stunning upset that eliminated Ontario's powerful Galt Nationals in an afternoon game.

Hardisty bowed 5-4 to the B.C. champions in a semifinal cliff-hanger that produced the worst pitching and by far the most spectacular infield play of the tournament, while Quebec methodically worked over Ontario for a 7-3 win.

KEY GAME TONIGHT

Tuesday's action at Hampton Park moved Vancouver directly into Friday night's final, and set up Quebec and Edmonton, who met in the tourney opener, for a head-on clash which will eliminate one team tonight at 6 p.m.

Playing in bright sunshine before 1,750 evening fans, Edmonton rallied from a second-inning disaster that gave away four runs to tie the game in the top of the fifth.

But in the bottom of the sixth, with two Vancouver batters out, Hardisty pitching broke down for the second time and a hard single by Jim Griffiths that got by left fielder Tom Gruninger drove in the winning run.

It was a hard loss for Tom Betts, who led the team to victory Tuesday with a coldly professional performance on the mound, and he watched in helpless disbelief, almost in tears, as the ball got loose.

From his alternate position at shortstop, where he rests from duties as the club's top hurler, Betts put in an outstanding performance, masterminding infield moves, consistently snuffing out Vancouver threats with plays to first, and providing much of Edmonton's offensive punch.

CONTROL PROBLEM

Grininger, starting as pitcher for Hardisty, developed control problems with his first batter, and progressively got worse, walking seven men before Doug Sather relieved him in the third.

QUICK RETURN

The blow to morale should have been devastating, but Hardisty refused to fold, dug in, and came up with three runs in the top of the third.

With two out, Tom Bateman on first from a single, and the Vancouver infield looking extremely formidable, Duncan Knoll walked.

Coflin followed with a hard single down the third base line that drove in two runs.

Sather, in relief, also had control problems, but ironed them out to hold Vancouver scoreless until the bottom of the sixth.

In the meantime, Vancouver manager Bill Grindlay relieved Nassey with first baseman Robbie Hannah in the top of the fourth, and the new pitcher immediately ran into trouble an inning later.

Quebec's upset hinged on the pitching performance of tiny Guy Provost who has struck out 30 batters for his club during playoff action.

Roughies Rock Hapless Lions

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa Rough Riders soared to their third straight victory Wednesday night, trouncing British Columbia Lions 41-24 in a Canadian Football League game.

Halfback Vic Washington romped 85 yards for one touchdown and took a pass from quarterback Russ Jackson for another as the undefeated Riders opened a three-point lead over Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the Eastern Conference.

"I've never seen a better offensive team in Canada—you just don't stop combinations like Ottawa has," said Lions coach Jim Champion.

For Lions, last in the West, it was the third loss in a row.

"We've got a long way to go, a long, long way, before we can match a team like Ottawa," Champion said.

But Ottawa coach Frank Clair said the Lions' future isn't at all grim.

The Vancouver team will gain both confidence and victories as the season progresses, Clair predicted.

THROWS FOR THREE TDs

Lions quarterback Paul Brothers was good on 17 of 31 pass attempts for 206 yards and threw touchdown passes to Lefty Hendrickson, Jake Scott and Jim Young.

Lions' kicking specialist Ted Gerela kicked two singles and converted two touchdowns. The team's remaining two points came in the fourth quarter when Ottawa's Bill Van Burkleo fumbled on a third-down punt and was thrown in his own end by Dave Easley.

Jackson, besides throwing to Washington for a touchdown, tossed two other payoff scores to flanker Whit Tucker and tight end Jay Roberts.

Don Sutherin, the EFC's leading scorer, rounded out the Riders' total with two field goals, four converts and a single after Van Burkleo took over at quarterback in the fourth quarter and combined with Darwin Gonnerman for an 18-yard pass-and-run score.

TOOK EARLY LEAD

The Riders built up a 23-1 lead in the first quarter and led 31-15 at the half before 20,315 fans.

Tucker was Jackson's favorite receiver, catching eight passes for 173 yards. Adkins collared four for 110 yards.

Scott caught three passes for the Lions for 73 yards and Hendrickson picked off three for 36.

Washington scrambled 133 yards for the Riders on 12 carries. Jim Mankins carried eight times for 34 yards.

Ottawa rushed for six first downs and picked up 19 on passing. The Lions rushed for seven and got eight in the air.

'Bellies Clinch Second Place

MORE SPORT ON PAGES 13, 14, 24

The victory clinched no worse than a tie for second for the visitors and left Rocks eight points behind Vancouver and the final playoff spot with five games remaining.

Victoria, bolstered by some solid netminding from George Grover, held Salmonbellies to only a 7-5 lead until late in the second period when a contro versial call seemed to crumble the Rocks' will to win.

FANS OBJECT

Referee Barry Ballance ruled that a shot by Charn Dhillon failed to score, provoking a response from the majority of 1,073 fans who thought otherwise.

Only solo efforts by brothers Tom and Denis Somner broke a string of eight New Westminster goals in the final 20 minutes.

Al Lewthwaite scored three goals and helped on another three to lead Salmonbellies while Ken Winzoski, returned from Toronto of the Eastern Association, added two goals and two assists to some strong defensive manoeuvring.

Bates Recruit Glen Langsett For Playoffs

Bate Construction bowed 2-1 to an all-star squad from the Major Men's Softball League on Wednesday night at Central Park.

Bob Lowe, scoring ahead of Goudie, had the only other hit off Bate hurlers Gord Huston and reliever Glen Langsett, former Victorian now residing in Trail who was recruited by Bate for the Alberta-B.C. senior "A" playoffs.

The Victorians will face Edmonton in their first game of the Calgary playoffs at 2 p.m. Saturday. The other two teams, Lethbridge and Calgary, meet later Saturday.

Coughlan Shatters Another Swim Mark

MONTREAL (CP) — Angela Coughlan of Toronto Wednesday broke her third record in three days at the national swimming championships in suburban Pointe Claire.

Miss Coughlan bettered her Canadian mark in the 400-metre freestyle with a time of 4:37.3. Her old mark of 4:39.8 was set last year.

She snapped her Canadian native record in the 800-metre freestyle Monday night and set a new mark in the 200-metre freestyle Tuesday.

Meanwhile, Jane Wright of Etobicoke, Ont., and Vancouver's Bill Mahony twice broke their Canadian native records in Wednesday's women's and men's 100-metre breaststroke.

Miss Wright qualified for the finals in the morning with a record time of 1:19.5, then set another record in the evening with a time of 1:19.1. The old mark of 1:20.5 was held by Sylvia Dockerill of Vancouver.

Mahony, the leading qualifier in the morning's heats in 1:09.0, covered the distance in the evening in 1:08.7. Mahony set the old record of 1:09.3 last August.

Other winners in Wednesday's finals were Vancouver's Donna-Marie Gurr in the 200-metre backstroke and George Smith of Edmonton in the men's 400-metre freestyle.

Miss Gurr was a member of the Vancouver Dolphins women's relay team which set a native record in the 800-metre freestyle relay with a time of 9:25.8, breaking their own record of 9:26.4 set last August. Other team members are Sylvia Dockerill, Leslie Cliff and Elaine Clark.

The Dolphins' male team of Ron Jacks, Peter Harrower, Stephen Roxborough and Ken Campbell also established a native record in the 800-metre freestyle relay. Their time was 8:22.9, 7.2 seconds faster than the old mark held by the Pointe Claire Aquatic Club of Montreal.

Vancouver Island swimmers did not fare well at the meet, but a man's relay team from Port Alberni finished third in the 800-metre freestyle event.

Bill Frank Waived

SAN DIEGO — Tackle Bill Frank, former Toronto Argonaut, has been placed on waivers by San Diego Chargers of the American Football League. He played out his CFL option last season.

ONTARIO SIX STROKES AHEAD . . . . . IN CANADIAN EVENT

Cue from Caddy Helps Golfing Scholar

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — "The caddy told me where to hit it and I did."

That's how physical education student Leonard Thompson, 22, of Laurenburg, N.C., described the six-under-par 66 that gave him the first-round lead in the Canadian amateur championship at the 6,681-yard Westmount Golf and Country Club Wednesday.

Thompson arrived late Tuesday night and didn't have time for a practice round.

"The young caddy (15-year-old Ken Herchenrader) really knew what he was doing. If he told me to hit a nine-iron, I hit it."

Thompson had five birdies in the last six holes and a two-shot lead over Dick Siderowf, 32, of Westport, Conn.

Siderowf's 68 included three birdies in the last four holes. He is a U.S. Walker Cup team member.

Leading Canadians were Gary Cowan, 30, of Kitchener and Ken Trowbridge of Bolton, Ont. Both shot 70 and helped the Ontario interprovincial team to a six-stroke lead in the Willingdon Cup matches, held concurrently with the championship.

Ontario's four-man team is at 289, followed by British Columbia at 295 and Alberta at 300.

The Willingdon Cup ends today and the winner is the team with the low total for 36 holes.

The field for the amateur will be reduced to the low 60 and ties at the end of today's play.

Five strokes off the pace at 71 were Wayne McDonald of Hornby, Ont., and Bobby Bourne of Oberlin, Ohio.

TEE TOPICS

By Ernie Fedoruk

Another week, another tournament.

For Dick Munn, this one may prove to be more restful and more beneficial then the last one.

One of Victoria's native sons, whose shingle now indicates that he is Point Grey's resident professional, Munn is included in the crowd around Uplands.

All are waiting for the start of the B.C. Open, and many locals are prepared to expatriate Munn as a Vancouverite and toss him into the same sentimental barrel as hometown favorites Vaughan Trapp and Bill Wakeham.

That transfer of sentiment should take care of the only cheating allowed this week.

A very few may deny Munn's relocation because, one would guess, his finish in last week's Canadian Professional Golfers' Association tournament at Point Grey loomed as a disappointment.

Munn finished the 72-hole test with a 290 total, 10 strokes behind Bob Cox' winning total. At that, Dick gained a pop on his 1968 showing when he placed second, 11 strokes behind the all-winning George Knudson. Munn was nine under par, Knudson 20.

★ ★ ★

The comparison is facetious, as are the expressions of discontent with Munn's play last week. Because he has talent, and was to use it on his home course, the few believe Munn should have finished high on the list of money-earners.

It didn't happen for one simple reason. The pressure on the home pro is unbelievable.

Visitors want to say hello, competitors require nursing and coddling, and club members always are on hand to offer their well-meaning good wishes. The week preceding the CPGA test, Munn had a "soft day" if he got to bed at midnight, and was back on the course as late as 7 o'clock the next morning.

He was able to practice only rarely.

If you don't believe there is pressure, then how come no host pro has been to pick off the CPGA title since Jules Huot did it in Montreal in 1946?

Uplands' Johnny Wren knows how it feels, and was thanking his lucky stars Wednesday that he no longer plays competitively. Wren's stay in the pro shop on Tuesday was a hectic 15 hours without a break. When he did get to sit down for supper, after 9:30 p.m., it turned out to be an interrupted one.

★ ★ ★

Munn still hasn't been able to practice as much as he would like, but the headaches this week belong to Mr. Wren, and not Mr. Munn.

They say the field here is stronger than the one in Vancouver, so the spotlight has sprayed from Cox to Bob Panasiuk, from Moe Norman to Norman Doyle and Alvie Thompson, from Wayne Vollmer and Wakeham to Wilf Homenuik and Trev Bateman, and then some.

That's how Munn, who says he came over for a rest, prefers it. For one thing, Munn's driver has been balky. Dick also is quick to express admiration for the field.

He says he'll give it a go, however, and on that score the Point Grey pro will bear watching. He and Uplands have been well suited in the past expecially if one remembers that it was Dick Munn, then 17, who was the B.C. Amateur finalist at Uplands against Colwood's Laurie Kerr in 1960.

League Winners Hit a Roadblock

League champion Greaves Movers, who finished five games ahead of the pack during the regular season, were eliminated in the Senior Amateur Baseball League playoffs Wednesday at Royal Athletic Park.

Independents captured the best-of-three semi-final series in the third and deciding game by blanking Greaves 6-0 as a move which took pitcher George Hemming out for a pinch-hitter backfired.

Behind 1-0, Greaves pulled Hemming in the fifth inning.

Independents then jumped on two succeeding hurlers for five runs in the next frame.

Gorge faces Transport Workers in the final game of their best-of-three semi series starting at 6:30 tonight.

HARNESS SUSPENSION

LADNER (CP) — Ken MacDonald, veteran harness racing driver-trainer from Ladner, has been suspended by the Canadian Trotting Association until Sept. 10, 1970, for violaton of CTA rules.

New Zealand Wins Toss, Loses Match

LONDON (CP) — Barry Richards, South African cricket ace, slammed 132 for Hampshire off the New Zealand bowlers at Southampton on Wednesday—and his last 91 runs were scored in 80 minutes.

The onslaught came after New Zealand captain Graham Dowling had won the toss and sent Hampshire in to bat, apparently thinking the humid atmosphere would help his bowlers.

Richards was pegged down to 41 runs in the two hours before lunch, but in the afternoon he swung his bat at everything. He hit Bob Cunis for four successive fours and then was caught trying to make it five in a row.

Richards' century was his third of the summer. He was top scorer in English cricket last year but has been handicapped by injuries this season.

Meanwhile Glamorgan had the better of the first day in the match against Gloucestershire, a key game that could decide the English championship.

Gloucestershire, which leads the standings, was shot out for 73. Glamorgan stormed to 198 for 4 by close of play.

At Southampton, Hampshire 330 for 6 declared; vs. New Zealanders.

BOBBY TAYLOR

Taylor Looking To Hockey

TORONTO (CP) — Bobby Taylor, the pass-catching sensation with Toronto Argonauts, says he will retire from the Eastern Football Conference club in September if he receives a "good deal" with Philadelphia Flyers of the National Hockey League.

Taylor, 29, leading pass receiver in the EFC last season, has been a minor-professional hockey player since 1965. He played with Victoria Maple Leafs and Seattle Totems of the Western League, Tulsa Oilers of the Central Professional League and Quebec Aces of the American League.

Last season he was fined $400 and suspended indefinitely by the Flyers after he left the organization following an argument with Quebec coach Vic Stasiuk. The Quebec club is a Philadelphia farm team.

Taylor, who has concentrated on football in the past, swinging to hockey after the gridiron season finished in early December, says he will join the Flyers pre-season camp Sept. 20 this year, if contract negotiations are satisfactory.

Palmer More Able Than Disabled Now

By The Associated Press

Jim Palmer's no-hitter was never in doubt, not with Cesar Tovar a couple of hundred miles away.

Tovar, Minnesota's pesky handyman, has wrecked no-hit bids by Baltimore Oriole pitchers Dave McNally and Mike Cuellar with ninth-inning hits this season, so Palmer smartly picked on Oakland Athletics for his masterpiece. Tovar was with the Twins in New York and couldn't do any damage this time.

Palmer, who has spent more of the last three seasons on disabled lists than he has on pitching mounds, suffered some control problems, but held the upper hand throughout, beating the Athletics 8-0 for the first American League no-hitter in more than a year.

The 23-year-old right-hander, limited to only 120 innings pitched—most of them in the minors—over the last two seasons because of shoulder and back trouble, had just returned to active duty Saturday after another 5½ weeks on the disabled list.

Elsewhere in the American League, Detroit Tigers blanked California Angels 3-0, Minnesota Twins clipped New York Yankees 5-2, Kansas City Royals took Washington Senators 7-3, Seattle Pilots dropped Cleveland Indians 5-3, and Chicago White Sox defeated Boston Red Sox 5-3.

STRUCK OUT EIGHT

Palmer struck out eight and walked six—three of them in the ninth inning when he had his shakiest moment of the game. But ex-batterymate Larry Haney bounced into a game-ending forceout to clinch the no-hitter.

It was the fourth major league no-hitter this season, but first in the American League since Catfish Hunter pitched a perfect game against Minnesota on May 8, 1968.

Palmer also had a single and a double and drew a walk. Don Buford had three hits and Brooks Robinson slugged a three-run homer for the Orioles.

Overshadowed by Palmer's achievement was Denny McLain's 18th victory. The right-hander, who won 31 last year, allowed just five hits and got the only run he needed when Jim Northrup hit a towering fourth-inning homer.

Rich Reese did a one-man job on New York, smacking four hits including two home runs as the Twins snapped a five-game losing streak by whipping the Yankees.

It was Reese's fifth four-hit game this season.

In the National League, Houston Astros jumped from fifth to third in the West by trouncing New York Mets, 8-2.

St. Louis Cardinals took advantage to move into second place in the East by blanking the Los Angeles Dodgers, 5-0.

Cincinnati Reds took 11 innings and a grand-slam home run by Johnny Bench to get by the Montreal Expos, 8-3. Atlanta Braves edged the Philadelphia Phils, 4-2, and then lost 7-0. Chicago Cubs defeated San Diego Padres, 4-2, and Pittsburgh whipped San Francisco, 10-5.

Portland Gets Hawks' Prospect

PORTLAND (AP) — Paul Terbenche, 23-year-old defenceman-centre who played the 1967-68 season with Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, will join Portland Buckaroos of the Western Hockey League this season. Terbenche has been assigned on loan by Chicago.

Redmen One Up

BROOKLIN, Ont. (CP) — Brooklin Redmen came from behind Wednesday to defeat Brantford Warriors, 15-11 in the opening game of the best-of-seven Eastern Canada Senior A Lacrosse final.

Victoria Squad Earns Passage To Colts' Series

WHALLEY—Victoria Colt League All-Stars will be picking up some tickets in a few days with Lafayette, Ind., as their next destination.

The Victoria crew won a trip to the "world series" after blanking Surrey 6-0 Wednesday in the final of a nine-team, double-knockout B.C. baseball championship.

It was the fourth straight victory for Victoria in the playoffs which began almost two weeks ago. The team will leave for the six-team world series in a few days.

The mainlanders, who scrambled out of the losers' bracket with a 4-1 record, had little chance against the superb control exhibited by pitcher Eric Lister.

Lister struck out seven, while giving up four hits and two walks.

Errors wrecked Surrey's hopes in the third inning as Victoria collected their remaining five runs.

Three errors loaded the bases and then Mike Baier scored on a ground-out, McKee singled in Wayne O'Malley and Anderson romped across the plate when Jim Tarbuck singled.

New Ranger Rookie Packs Famous Name

NEW YORK (AP)—Syl Apps Jr., a 22-year-old son of the former star with Toronto Maple Leafs, has signed a National Hockey League contract with New York Rangers.

The new Ranger is a centre, the same position his father played while scoring 201 goals for Toronto and earning a place in the Hockey Hall of Fame.

LEEROY IS CASH KING OF STOCK CAR DRIVERS

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — LeeRoy Yarbrough, who climbed from a grimy, half-mile dirt track in Jacksonville, Fla., to the pinnacle of stock car racing, is the sport's all-time money king with $141,160 for the year.

The dark-haired resident of Columbia, S.C., won a record fifth major race Sunday by sprinting to the Dixie 500 top prize of $18,620. The Atlanta triumph boosted LeeRoy past the mark of $136,786 set by Cale Yarbrough in 1968.

LeeRoy also prevailed in the Daytona 500, Firecracker 400, Daytona 600 at Charlotte, N.C. and the Rebel 400 at Darlington, S.C.

With the addition of three major tracks to the 1969 schedule, 11 events remain to give LeeRoy and his Ford a shot at a $200,000 year.

All-Midget Card Billed at Western

One Victoria driver and two from Vancouver will be joined by a minimum of 17 Washington Midget Racing Association pilots for an all-midget racing card Saturday at Western Speedway.

The type of performance expected from these small but powerful cars was previewed last weekend when the local entry, Ross McIntyre, competed successfully with the larger "B" modifieds.

McIntyre placed second in one of the heat races.

One of the Vancouver-based midgets will be piloted by Gordon Livingstone of Portland, Ore. The other B.C. car will be in the hands of Bill Hall.

In figure-eight racing action at Western on Wednesday night, Rick O'Dell set a new track record during the time trials and then went on to capture the main event for the second straight time.

O'Dell's time for the fastest lap this season was 21.15 seconds, clipping 1.63 seconds off the record he set July 1. He also grabbed a win in the fast heat to match a two-win performance by Jim Borowman.

Borowman won the "B" main and first heat.

Results:

Main Event—1. Rick O'Dell, 2. Rick Stanley, 3. Denny Swain, 4. Len Birtwhistle.

"B" Main—1. Jim Borowman, 2. Barry Davies, 3. John Williams 4. Bill Sheldrake.

Pilon Helps Himself To Victory

Pitcher Ferd Pilon insured his own victory Wednesday as Century Inn downed Langford Drywall, 3-1, at Heywood Avenue Park in the three-team, double-loss elimination senior 'B" men's softball zone playoffs.

Pilon opened scoring with a two-run triple in the second inning.

Fancy Return By Clear Dell

VANCOUVER (CP) — Outsider Clear Dell, ridden by Don Hale, was the surprise winner at Exhibition Park Wednesday night.

Clear Dell, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Don Murphy, paid $28.60, $12.40 and $7.10 and combined with King Of Rulers for a exacto payoff of $165.10.

SUMMER HOCKEY

Saanich Wings downed Queen's Own Rifles 5-3 and Sooke edged Duncan 4-3 during Summer Hockey League action Wednesday at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

B.C. JUNIORS TROUBLESOME IN WOMEN'S GOLF

Marilyn Starts Seeing Double

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — She's still a leader among the favorites, but Vancouver's Marilyn Palmer is probably wishing the draw would foist British Columbia juniors off on somebody else.

Miss Palmer, 22, who had a 146 to lead by four strokes in the 36-hole qualifying round of the Canadian women's golf championships Monday and Tuesday, had to beat off junior Jan Allison of Vancouver in the opening round of match play Wednesday. The lead was determined on the 18th hole.

Trailing the spunky junior by three strokes heading into the back nine of the par-73 Moncton Golf and Country Club course, Miss Palmer turned on the steam to eke out a one-up victory.

MEETS MARLATT

She faces another B.C. junior in today's second round—Helen Marlatt of Chilliwack who defeated Ontario junior Andrea Stoddart of Oak Ridges 2 and 1 Wednesday.

Other pairs in today's 16-golfer championship flight include Gayle Borthwick of Mississauga, Ont., against Pam Miller of Oshawa, Ont.; Sue Higgs of London, Ont., and Jean Kirkpatrick, Toronto; Corrine Brunham, Calgary and Jocelyne Bourassa, Shawinigan, Que.; and Marilyn Karch of Calgary against Marlene Stewart Streit, Fonthill, Ont.

Playing in her fifth Canadian amateur tournament, Miss Karch combined good driving and accurate putting for the win.

"I was keeping my head down this time," she said of her putting. "Before, I would always look up to see where the ball was going."

Miss Palmer, 1966 Canadian closed champion, said she was lucky to get the win against Miss Allison.

"I wasn't too sharp on the front. I was pushing my iron and landing in traps."

Mrs. Streit said improved putting helped her to defeat Mary Pyke of Montreal 4 and 3.

She was fighting to retain her Open title won in Montreal last year when she defeated Miss Bourassa 4 and 3.

Competitors in the first and second flights will play 35 holes today to reduce their field to four players each for Friday's semi-finals. Championship play ends Saturday.

Player Joins $100,000 Club

The muscular, little South African's second-place purse of $11,400 at Milwaukee, Wis., Sunday boosted his tour income for 1969 to $103,683.

This moved him up from fifth place to fourth in the standings of PGA tournament players.

Player's best year previously was 1965 when he won $69,964 and the U.S. Open championship. He led the money winners with $64,540 in 1961.

The leaders are:

1. Frank Beard, $155,187; 2. Dave Hill, $130,968; 3. Gene Littler, $110,496; 4. Player; 5. Lee Trevino, $97,335; 6. Tommy Aaron, $85,336; 7. Bruce Crampton, $85,049; 8. Billy Casper, $84,345; 9. Dale Douglass, $82,537; 10. Dan Sikes, $80,148.

To Every Man and Woman Losing Hair

If you are troubled by THINNING HAIR, DANDRUFF, ITCHY SCALP, FEAR APPROACHING BALDNESS, read the rest of this announcement carefully.

Baldness is simply a matter of subtraction. When the number of new hairs fails to equal the number of falling hairs you end up minus your head of hair. (Bald). Why not avoid baldness by preventing unnecessary loss of hair. This new concept is the perfect answer to men and women who refuse to needlessly become bald. So, if you are beginning to notice that your forehead is getting higher, that there is too much hair on your comb, beginning to worry about the dryness of your hair, the itchiness of your scalp, the ugly dandruff —these are Nature's ways of warning of impending baldness. Even if you have been losing your hair for some time don't let seborrhea rob you of the rest of your hair.

SCALP SPECIALIST HERE TO DEMONSTRATE NEW HOME TREATMENT

New Home Treatment methods for preventing baldness and for growing stronger, thicker, and healthier hair will be demonstrated to Victoria Friday and Saturday, August 15 and 16.

This news was released today by PARK LANE HAIR AND SCALP SPECIALISTS.

In their announcement they have selected nationally known staff Trichologist Robert McIvor to conduct the demonstration.

Robert McIvor will be personally examining hair-worried men and women at the Sussex Hotel from 1 p.m. until 8 p.m. PARK LANE would like to assure you that you incur no obligation in seeing Mr. McIvor. The only obligation you have is to yourself, to free your mind of worries of hair loss, dandruff, oily scalp, dry scalp, itching or any of the many other disorders, by learning the proper care of the hair and scalp . . . if your examination and test disclose that your condition is untreatable we will frankly tell you so. However, as our specialists observe, no one should take it upon himself to decide whether his condition is treatable or not. That is why we always make a personal examination so that we can advise you accurately as to the condition of your hair and scalp.

CAN ALL BE HELPED?

No. Nothing will grow hair on a slick bald head after many years of gradual hair loss. But where your scalp still grows hair we can save and improve what you have. Usually we can grow more hair even where you now have only baby hair or fuzz. The important thing is DO NOT WAIT UNTIL IT IS TOO LATE. Even tomorrow your hair will not be in as good condition as it is today. This is why we suggest that you see the PARK LANE Trichologist before further damage is done. Let him explain the new improved method of home treatments which offer a better chance of success than was ever before possible in correcting the local causes of thinning hair and scalp disorders.

Our biggest problem is in overcoming the average person's initial skepticism. He or she is usually quite desperate and baldish by the time he nerves himself to see a PARK LANE Trichologist. He's "tried everything" so he starts consoling himself with one of the old superstitions about hair: that baldness is hereditary, that men naturally lose hair as they get along in years, that nothing can be done to stop hair loss, and a lot of other notions that we know today are not true.

SCALP EXAMINATION

See Mr. McIvor in person. Learn how baldness can be corrected and new hair grown with the proved PARK LANE HOME TREATMENT METHOD. It doesn't make sense for a man or woman to let himself go bald certainly not without seeing whether or not PARK LANE'S TREATMENT will stop hair loss and grow thicker hair. These TREATMENTS are designed so that they can be applied easily and effectively in the privacy of your own home. For an examination and discussion of your hair and scalp problems ask the desk clerk at the Sussex Hotel, Friday or Saturday between 1 p.m. and 8 p.m. for Mr. McIvor's suite number. An appointment is not necessary. All examinations are given in private, all reports are strictly confidential.

2 DAYS ONLY: SCALP SPECIALIST HERE TO DEMONSTRATE NEW HOME TREATMENT FRIDAY AND SATURDAY, AUGUST 15 AND 16 AT SUSSEX HOTEL BETWEEN 1 AND 8 P.M.

Living Within Budget Key in Base Closures

By JOHN BEST

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has decided to close down or trim operations at five military installations in Canada, with further cuts promised for the fall.

An estimated $19,300,000 will be saved as a result of action announced Wednesday by Defence Minister Leo Cadieux affecting these military sites:

—Radar and communications training centre at Clinton, Ont., which has 400 military and 300 civilian staff personnel; to be closed by Sept. 1, 1971.

—St. Hubert, Que., branch of the Canadian forces base Montreal, where flying activity of two transport squadrons will cease by Sept. 1, 1970. Some 420 military and 290 civilian personnel positions will be affected by these and previously-announced changes at St. Hubert.

—Supply and logistics depots at London and Cobourg, Ont., and Ville la Salle, Montreal, which have a combined total of 395 military and 1,130 civilian employees; London and Cobourg to be closed by Sept. 1, 1971, and Ville la Salle by September, 1970.

WILL AFFECT 2,600

Altogether about 1,100 military and 1,500 civilian personnel will be affected by the changes, Mr. Cadieux said in his written announcement. Military personnel will be transferred to vacant positions in other units.

"Every effort" would be made to find alternative employment for the civilians, either within the federal government apparatus or elsewhere.

Personnel teams were at the bases affected, when the announcement came Wednesday afternoon, to interview civilian personnel about prospective alternative employment.

The changes are part of a two-phase program aimed at cutting overhead and enabling the defence department to live within its budget, which the government has frozen for three years at the current annual level of $1,800,000,000.

Closing or reduction of a small number of other bases will be announced in the fall, Mr. Cadieux said.

He cited a general reduction in the size of the armed forces, a change in force priorities and economies made possible by unification as factors in the decision to make the cuts.

TO CUT ADMINISTRATION

The axe is intended to fall mainly in administrative and support areas, rather than in operational units, he noted.

The St. Hubert cut is the second major change affecting that military site announced in the last two months. Earlier, it was announced that the St. Hubert base was being absorbed into Canadian forces base Montreal, along with all other military facilities in the Montreal metropolitan area.

Under the changes, 429 tactical transport squadron and 450 heavy transport helicopter squadron will use Namao, Alta., as a primary base with detached flights sent to other locations.

About 350 military personnel are associated with the two squadrons now at St. Hubert and slated for transfer.

St. Hubert will remain the headquarters of mobile command, the forces' combined land-air arm.

CLOSURE TO HAVE LOCAL EFFECTS

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The closure of five military installations in Ontario and Quebec will probably result in strong local economic repercussions, spokesmen for the affected communities said Wednesday following the announcement made in Ottawa.

To be "phased out" by Sept. 1, 1971, is the radar and communications training centre at Clinton, Ont. Others in Ontario which are to be closed by Sept. 1, 1971, are at London and Cobourg. And in Quebec, sites at St. Hubert and Ville la Salle are to be closed by Sept. 1, 1970.

The closures were announced by Defence Minister Leo Cadieux who said that it is part of a program designed to help his department stay within its yearly budget of $1,800,000,000.

The closures will affect about 1,100 members of the armed forces and 1,500 civilians employed at the installations. Mr. Cadieux said the closures will result in annual savings of about $19,300,000.

But Donald Symons, mayor of Clinton, said the closure of the base in his community 45 miles north of London, will have effects far beyond the borders of the town.

He said dislocation of the 300 civilian employees at the centre will also affect Goderich, Seaforth, Bayfield and other surrounding communities. The base also has about 400 members of the armed forces.

ESTIMATES LOSS

Loss of disposable income for the area has been put at $5,200,000 a year and Mayor Symons said the economic repercussions will be serious unless substitute measures are taken.

At London, W. C. Wheeler, president of the Downtown London Association, said the loss of the depot is "like the loss of a major industry."

The London depot's annual payroll is $5,000,000 and Mr. Wheeler said that "when you have that kind of payroll being spent in the community it is more than a drop in the bucket."

Hugh Smith, general manager of the London Chamber of Commerce, said his group's executive committee will meet Friday to discuss possible municipal, provincial and federal co-operation to make up the loss of jobs.

In Cobourg, Mayor J. A. Heenan said the loss of a $3,000,000 annual payroll is "a dreadful blow to a town of 12,000 souls where the total tax revenue in a year is only $2,000,000."

BUILT TWO SCHOOLS

He said the town has built two schools and had planned on other installations on the basis that the depot was a permanent installation.

"At no time were we left to believe it was a temporary installation," he said.

He said the town will approach the provincial and federal governments in resolving the crisis.

Mr. Cadieux said that military personnel will be transferred to other units and "every effort will be made to find alternative employment for the civilians."

Mayor Aldos Boileau of St. Hubert said:

"It all depends on whether the cutbacks are replaced by the ministry of transport. Part of the base has already gone to transport.

"If it's just closed, this will hurt about 300 civilians. They're spread out all over the south shore of the St. Lawrence River, but St. Hubert will be affected the worst."

Deaf Man Perfects Tiny Hearing Aid

OFFERS FREE MODEL
(not an actual Hearing Aid)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—A remarkable tiny hearing aid has been perfected by a man who has been hard of hearing for nearly ten years.

This small device has no dangling cords or separate transmitting units and represents a new, unusual design idea in a product to help hard of hearing.

It was developed especially for those persons who can hear but can't understand. This new hearing instrument provides "ear-level" hearing with the wearer picking up speech, sounds, television and radio at his ear. Due to the use of transistors, the user cost is extremely low.

A true life actual size replica of the smallest all-in-the-ear hearing aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone sending in this advertisement while supply lasts. So we suggest you write for yours now. No obligation whatsoever. Write to Anderson Hearing, 1320 Blanshard St., Victoria, B.C.

Bride Wins Fight with Polio

PARRIE, Ont. (CP) — A bride of six months who mistook a polio symptom for "a pinched nerve or something" is back on her feet after a hard fight against a disease that within a decade has become rare in North America.

Donalda Dumont, an 18-year-old brunette, contracted the disease despite having had a booster shot of polio vaccine four years ago.

Public health officials here say her case should be a reminder that there can be no complacency about the disease which has been virtually non-existent since the discovery of the polio vaccine by Dr. Jonas Salk in the 1950s.

Post Office to Negotiate Changes

CALGARY (CP) — Postmaster-General Eric Kierans told letter carriers Wednesday the method used to implement changes last year was a mistake that "won't happen again."

"A number of heads will roll, including mine," if further attempts are made to implement changes without adequate negotiation, he told the triennial convention of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada.

The post office must still implement many changes, he said, if it is to continue to operate in a highly competitive communications field.

Although the post office has a monopoly on first-class mail, "so-called private post offices" have cut into the volume of other classes of deliveries.

The changes should have been made years ago, Kierans said.

"We are trying to make up for lost time, and in that process we make many mistakes.

"But the only way to avoid making mistakes is to do nothing, and that is a far greater mistake."

To bring about changes with less disruption, the Toronto district will become a pilot region for new systems and approaches, he said. Another post office will be selected for experiments in work procedures, handling and delivery techniques.

"If a particular idea works out in practice in the post office or in the region then we'll apply it across the country; if it doesn't we'll change it or scrap it."

Earlier in a news conference, Kierans said the reason for disruptions after new procedures were introduced last year was poor internal relations in the department.

In the future any proposed changes will be "explored more fully with the unions before decisions are made," he said.

Editor Acquitted

VANCOUVER (CP) — Editor Dan McLeod of the hippie newspaper Georgia Straight was acquitted Wednesday of obstructing police. The charge was laid after an incident in June, when police were trying to subdue a 16-year-old youth who had been taking drugs. McLeod said he was watching.

Fire Contained

FORT ST. JOHN (CP) — A 1,200-acre forest fire 100 miles northeast of here was contained Wednesday when firefighters had help from water bombers. All other 177 fires in British Columbia were under control. There were 12 new fires reported Wednesday.

Girl Traded by Parents Returns

PETERBOROUGH, England (AP)—Jacqueline Thorne, the two-year-old girl swapped by her parents for a used record player, was back with her mother Wednesday.

"It's marvellous to have her back," said 24-year-old Mrs. Shirley Thorne. "I've dropped all plans to have my baby adopted. Jacqueline is staying with me."

For the last three months, Jacqueline has been living with millworkers Geoffrey Butler, 24, and his wife, Patricia, 23. The Butlers are childless and wanted to adopt Jacqueline.

Mrs. Thorne and her garbage-collector husband Arthur handed over the child to the Butlers when they were neighbors in a trailer camp. The Thornes gave the Butlers Jacqueline's birth certificate and a signed paper saying the little girl now belonged to them.

In return, the Thornes received the record player worth $100. The Thornes, who had just moved to an apartment, said the girl had become "a bit of a handful."

Mrs. Thorne said Tuesday she regretted the whole affair and asked for the baby back. She had sold the record player for $7.25 but offerred the Butlers a new one. The Butlers at first refused her demand, but were forced by the welfare authorities to return the child to her mother.

Churches Pledging Racism Fight

CANTERBURY, England (AP) — World Protestant and Orthodox Church leaders began today discussing a five-year plan to commit their churches morally and financially against white racism. American Negro delegates said the plan was a series of watered-down proposals and appeared ready to fight it.

The issue threatened to bring on the first open clash among African, Asian and Western blocs at the annual meeting of the World Council of Churches' policy-making central committee. But under committee rules, differences could be submerged quickly in private working groups until near the end of the meeting Aug. 22.

Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, secretary-general of the council which represents 234 denominations, was scheduled to present to the 120 committee members a plan for a three-man unit with a $150,000-a-year budget that would prepare and carry out educational projects against racism.

American Negro delegates voiced dissatisfaction before caucusing on the council plan.

The plan, approved by the central committee's more than 20 executive officers, bore scant resemblance to the strongly-worded protest issued in May by a council-sponsored racism conference in London which was influenced heavily by black American delegates.

American blacks said Wednesday they may try to push through amendments to the plan to restore a militant flavor. But a key factor was expected to be the attitude of the 32 Asian and African central committee members. Many were cool to American suggestions.

Grounded Scow Losing River Fight

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — An old, grounded scow, last remainder of the most thrilling rescue in the history of Horseshoe Falls, is losing its fight with the raging waters of the Niagara River.

Awash in the river since Aug. 7, 1918—about 51 years ago—the steel scow is rapidly crumbing, most of one side having already disappeared in the swirling rapids.

Grounded on rocky reefs, the scow has been under more strain since last spring when water from the American Falls was diverted to the Canadian side, swelling the river. The diversion was to permit engineering studies of the face of the American Falls.

Fifty-one years ago, the scow was being towed by a tug from an excavation job on the upper river. When the tug grounded, a second tug was rushed to assist.

In attempting to free the grounded tug, a cable broke on the tow line holding the scow.

The alert crew members opened an inlet in the bottom of the scow which sank quickly in [illegible] than 150 feet from the brink of the 162-[illegible]

Report Urges Oil Rule Change

By ISABELLE HALL

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's top antitrust expert has recommended a revision, if not elimination, of the government regulation which props up U.S. oil prices by limiting the amount of cheaper, foreign oil which may be imported.

Asst. Atty.-Gen. Richard W. McLaren, in a hard-hitting 45-page report, said the mandatory oil import quota system stifles competition and costs the American consumer too much.

McLaren's report was submitted to a task force of the Nixon cabinet Wednesday.

The oil industry, which has strongly supported the quota system for imports, showed a reserved reaction, but there were already some signs of displeasure.

Because of the quota system, which was initiated in 1959, crude oil from U.S. wells costs about $3.10 a barrel on the east coast. Oil from the Middle East, despite the shipping costs, can be purchased in that part of the country for about $1.75 a barrel.

"The present import control system imposes serious costs on the enonomy," McLaren said. These costs are not offset by the stated purpose of the controls — to prevent disruption of the domestic industry by protecting it from foreign oil, he said.

BARELY ABLE

McLaren cited the 1967 Middle East crisis.

At that time, after eight years under the import program, the domestic industry was barely able to cover the nation's expanded demand for oil during the comparatively short period oil from the Mideast was cut off, he said.

"Improvement in competitive conditions by change in the present system of controls, or by their elimination, would in our view be of significant benefit to the nation's interest in low-cost energy supplies, efficiently produced and distributed both in normal and in emergency periods," he said.

If import controls of some sort must be retained, McLaren said, they should be replaced by a protective tariff.

There has been no indication from either the cabinet task force of the White House whether President Nixon would be receptive to McLaren's suggestion.

One spokesman for a major oil company said industry reaction to the idea would depend on how strong the new tariff would be.

In addition, Dr. Charles F. Jones, president of Humble Oil and Refining Co., said in a speech earlier this week, "We believe that reasonable restraints on oil imports should be continued and that the administration of the program should be clarified and made to work more effectively . . ."

Squatters End Row But England Shaken

By PETER BUCKLEY

LONDON (CP) — The squatter war is over for now in east-end Ilford, and not a moment too soon.

A months-long confrontation between home-hunting squatters and stubborn municipal officials has left the suburb with a reputation it will need a long time to live down.

While all of Britain watched in mixed disbelief and dread, Ilford was the scene of such dramas as these:

—Solid, valuable houses deliberately wrecked by municipal authorities at a time when destitute families were homeless;

—Squatting families, supported by young militants of the London Squatters Campaign, turning vacant houses into hostile fortresses to keep the bailiffs out;

—Pitched battles between squatters and a "private army" of strongmen, in which weapons ranged from bricks and stones to pitchforks and nail-studded planks.

Municipal authorities elsewhere in Britain, shuddering at the possibility of their towns becoming another Ilford, may hasten now to copy a truce agreement just negotiated between the two sides in Ilford.

REACH COMPROMISE

The settlement provides that the London Squatters Campaign withdraw from the homes it had occupied. In return, the town will find accommodation for two homeless families adopted by the campaign, and will examine its other properties to see where more families can be housed.

If matched in other municipalities in Britain, the Ilford settlement could provide much-needed homes for destitute families and free municipal authorities from the threat of squatter invasions.

The squatters have become a phenomenon of Britain in 1969, enlisting support from many of the same bearded militants—anarchists, socialists, radical Christians and Communists—who have campaigned for nuclear disarmament and pledged support to the Viet Cong.

This time, however, the militants have picked up a broad public sympathy which often eluded them before. The Englishman's home-is-a-castle philosophy has come into play.

Basic to the squatters' case is the fact that perhaps 500,000 privately and municipally-owned houses lie vacant throughout Britain at any one time, for reasons varying from private tax dodges to public lethargy. Yet an estimated 20,000 people are without any sort of home and nearly 2,000,000 others live in desolate, condemned squalor.

NO ONE HELPS

One Ilford squatter, asked on television where he came from, replied: "I don't live nowhere, that's why I'm here."

"And how long have you been homeless?"

"Seven years."

"What made you decide to come and squat here?"

The squatters have been reacting to the housing situation with a vigor and organization not seen here since angry squatter invasions in 1946 caused turmoil throughout post-war Britain.

Among their more publicized exploits, they have taken over vacant army homes in Brighton, invaded a row of empty National Coal Board houses in Manchester, made a token sit-in at a furnished "model home" in London, and picketed an office block vacant since being built three years ago.

In almost all cases, the squatters have been persuaded to leave when the authorities compromised and found other shelter for them.

HOUSES BOARDED UP

The background at Ilford is instructive:

The town is part of the Greater London Borough of Redbridge, whose council has adopted long-range plans to transform the residential heart of Ilford into a commercial centre.

Although the program is years away from realization, Redbridge has been buying up property for future demolition. To avoid legal complications caused by temporary occupants, the council has boarded up 60 such houses—although 4,500 Redbridge families are listed as seeking municipal homes. In some cases, workmen have been sent to make the houses uninhabitable.

That's what happened to a sturdy brick home on sedate Woodlands Road. The council bought it two years ago for some $15,000. Last April, with squatters already in possession of several other Ilford houses, council workmen went to the home on Woodlands Road and tore up the floors and stairways, punched holes in the roof and wrecked the fixtures.

The home was supposed to remain in that derelict condition for at least seven more years, since redevelopment is not scheduled to reach Woodlands Road until 1976 at the earliest.

BUILD BARRICADES

Squatters descended on the place in June and it became, not surprisingly, a symbol of all that's wrong with housing in Britain.

Threatened with eviction, the squatters and dozens of militant young supporters built barricades of barbed wire around the home, armed themselves with makeshift weapons and stood 24-hour guard.

Quartermain is a 34-year-old karate expert who heads Britain's largest private detective agency. He is a tough customer with a shadowy reputation from divorce-case investigations.

He appeared on Woodlands Road at dawn one day, accompanied by a dozen helmeted men, with instructions from Redbridge authorities to get the squatters out. He failed, despite a pitched battle. A similar attack on another nearby house was also driven off by the squatters and their young allies.

Public opinion was shocked and several MPs asked questions in the Commons about the use of Quartermain and his men by a public authority.

SQUATTERS WIN OUT

All through the drama, court writs and charges were brandished by both sides and a publicity war was carried on, with the squatters clear-cut winners.

The belated settlement has put an end to Ilford's war at least temporarily.

But the squatter campaign is likely to go on. Fed by its own success, it is being duplicated in communities outside London by families fed up with bureaucratic inaction.

"I am an interferer, and I am going to make trouble. Isn't it about time that some trouble was made?"

12 WATCH AS GIRL SLAIN

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — More than a dozen persons watched and did nothing Wednesday as a 19-year-old girl fought to save her purse from being stolen then was knifed to death in front of a restaurant, police said.

Detective James J. Cavoti said an investigation showed there were up to 15 persons outside a restaurant when Sherry Rowling was stabbed in the heart and fell to the sidewalk.

"They did nothing."

Cavoti said the witnesses to the murder were adults. He said they also made no attempt to stop the killer from running away.

Less than an hour after the stabbing, Mary Alice Collins, 20, of Rochester was arrested and charged with murder, first-degree robbery and third-degree grand larceny.

She pleaded not guilty in city court and her case was adjourned one week.

Fires Fewer

EDMONTON (CP) — The department of lands and forests said Wednesday the forest fire hazard in Alberta this year has not been so critical as in 1968, although there were still several potential trouble spots. Total acreage burned so far this year is less than one-tenth of the total recorded in 1968, and the funds budgeted for fire fighting this year are less than one-third of last year's total.

Centre Seeks Return to Work

TORONTO (CP) — Activities at the Toronto Rehabilitation Centre are designed to get patients back to work.

Bulletins are rolling off the presses, long-handled dustpans are produced in the woodworking shop and visitors are invited to lunch that has been cooked in the kitchen.

Most patients at the centre are recovering from accidents, surgery or strokes. They are being taught again how to use their limbs to work—or at least take care of their own personal needs.

"We try to make the work meaningful," Mary Bunston, supervisor of occupational therapy, says.

CAN BE TRAINED

Dr. Terrance Kavanagh, director of the centre, says the aim is to use what ability a patient has and to minimize the disability.

"A patient with a head injury or stroke has special problems. Things he wants to do won't happen for him. He is encased in this environment which isolates him from the world he once knew.

"Often he can't do the simplest things. And once upon a time—as recently as 10 years ago—the patient was just left in bed. Now, we know he can be trained to at least some function and often to a complete recovery.

"When treatment is moved in—therapy right at the hospital bed—30 per cent return to work and at least 90 per cent can look after themselves to some degree."

He said studies have shown that 80 per cent of the patients with strokes or other functional handicaps remain incapacitated if left alone.

East Germans Cross in Dark To West

HELMSTEDT (AP) — An East German naval officer and his brother breached Communist border barriers Wednesday and led the seven other members of their families to West Germany.

The brothers used a commandeered coal mine locomotive to reach the border south of here. Then they crossed through an unmined section of the Communist death strip on foot under the cover of morning darkness.

The two men were identified only as a 35-year-old lieutenant-commander in the East German Navy and his 27-year-old brother, an engineer employed at a steampower plant fed by a coal mine from which the locomotive was taken.

With them came their wives and five children ranging in age from one to 13 years.

West German border officials said the East Germans drove the locomotive to its terminus at the top of a slag heap overlooking the border. The nine then slid down the heap and picked their way through barbed wire.

In Norway, three East German tourists leaped into the sea from an East German cruise ship as it passed through a narrow strait, police reported. They were picked up by Norwegian fishermen.

Norway's director of alien affairs said the defectors, a 31-year-old electrical engineer and a married couple, both 25, would be turned over to West Germany.

Combat Crime With Copters, Urges Report

QUEBEC (CP)—The government Wednesday received a 980-page report suggesting ways to rid the province of crime.

The report, with 66 recommendations, is the work of a royal commission on the administration of justice.

The three-man commission, headed by Judge Yves Prevost of the Quebec Welfare Court, maintains that "the conflict of (federal-provincial) jurisdiction multiplies the occasion for fraud and enables cheaters to remain unpunished."

Its nine proposals to combat armed robberies includes a suggestion that police helicopters be used in Montreal and a call for co-ordination among police forces.

Other recommendations urge the government to require scrap and car-part dealers to report to the provincial transport department on every vehicle demolished or dismantled.

LEADS ALL PROVINCES

The commission, set up in 1967, says Quebec leads all provinces in the number of bankruptcies, armed robberies and car thefts.

The report blames the high crime rate in the bankruptcy sector on "local talent" rather than international organizations.

Quebec had 1,065 bankruptcies involving a loss of $110,000,000 in 1967 compared with 667 failures involving a loss of $73,000,000 in Ontario.

The report also states that in a typical year one out of every five banks in Montreal is held up and that the province has 65-per-cent of Canada's bank robberies.

It suggests that two police helicopters patrol Montreal during banking hours.

The commission says that in 1966 Quebec led all provinces with 805 cars stolen out of every 100,000 cars licensed. Ontario's rate was 529 thefts for every 100,000 licensed cars.

PRESS AUTO MAKERS

The commission urges the government to put pressure on auto-makers to stress production of theft-proof cars.

The commission also notes that bankruptcy legislation is a federal responsibility, but since provinces administer the Criminal Code, bankruptcy comes under the provincial jurisdiction when there is fraud involved.

The report says failure of the two levels of government to coordinate their efforts has resulted in unchecked fraudulent activities.

The commission says control should go to the provinces. However, the commission adds that the federal government should have legislation covering bankruptcies involving property in more than one province.

The report says public trustees should be able to seize property on an interim basis to prevent heavy purchasing and rapid liquidation of goods, the way fraudulent bankruptcy most commonly operates.

Canadian Drivers Get Pat on Back by Milan Policeman

VANCOUVER (CP) — You'd never know it struggling through the rush hour but three overseas police officers say Canadian drivers they've seen are good — at least, compared with the ones back home.

★ ★ ★

"They are not so nervous," said Sgt. Nino De Montis, a 16-year policeman from Milan, who is here for a police exhibition at a downtown department store.

"In Italy, the drivers are very nervous. They are always watching the traffic light and as soon as it turns green, they speed away. Drivers here are slower."

Sgt. Kalisiani Burewalu Bolalaila, of Fiji, known as Sgt. Bola for short, says: "Drivers here seem to have been taught the code of the road much better and know what they're doing."

And assistant inspector Mitsuo Kitajima of Tokyo says Vancouver drivers at least aren't in the same rush as Tokyo Vancouver drivers at least aren't in the same rush as Tokyo drivers. "In Tokyo we have about three people killed per day and often 300 injured."

★ ★ ★

Their assessment of Canadian drivers might give rise to debate among insurance agents, but the three speak from first-hand knowledge: All have spent time directing traffic here.

Drivers did double-takes when Sgt. Bola appeared at the intersection of Seymour and Hastings — wearing a sulu, a garment something like a white kilt.

Sgt. De Montis said he was surprised at how few police officers man intersectinns here.

★ ★ ★

"Often in Milan, we have to put two or three policemen on an intersection that has traffic lights. But here the traffic lights seem to do it all."

Still, he pointed out, some Milan interesections handle 30,000 vehicles an hour.

He said police-public relations are good in Milan and "often, if we are in a cafe, they will come up and say 'Can I buy you a cup of coffee and sit and talk'."

Ted 'At Peace' About Mishap

BOSTON (AP)—Senator Edward M. Kennedy says he is at peace with himself about the automobile accident in which Mary Jo Kopechne, 28, a secretary to his late brother Robert, was killed.

"I can live with myself," the Massachusetts Democrat said in an interview with Matthew V. Storin of the Boston Globe's Washington staff.

"I feel the tragedy of the girl's death. That's on my mind. That's what I will always have to live with.

"But what I don't have to live with are the whispers and innuendoes and falsehoods, because these have no basis in fact."

In other developments involving the July 18 accident on the Chappaquiddick Island section of Martha's Vineyard:

—The Manchester (N.H.) Union Leader said that in the hours immediately after the accident, when Kennedy said he was in shock, 17 telephone calls were charged to his credit card. In Boston, a spokesman for New England Telephone Co. said legal restrictions prevented him from confirming or denying the report, but he said the use of the card did not necessarily mean that the senator made the calls.

—In Wilkes-Barre, Pa., officials of the common pleas court said a written petition that District Attorney Edmund Dinis sent seeking to have Miss Kopechne's body exhumed for an autopsy was not adequate. Presiding Judge Bernard C. Brominski said either Dinis or a representative must appear in persons.

—In Berkeley Heights, N.J., Miss Kopechne's father said he and his wife are firmly opposed to having their daughter's body exhumed from her Larksville, Pa., grave, and are seeking legal advice.

—In Washington, Kennedy denied as "categorically untrue" a statement by columnist Jack Anderson that after the accident Kennedy did not swim the channel between Chappaquiddick Island and Edgartown, as the senator said he did. Anderson said Kennedy intimates told him that Kennedy was taken across in a boat by two associates.

In the Boston Globe story published today, Storin said Kennedy "particularly resents charges that he may have thought of his political future and left the scene of the accident while there was still a chance Miss Kopechne was alive."

He said Kennedy "admits in conversation that he may have made a mistake in not going beyond the televised explanation," but said the senator cited "legal restraints and the current rumor-filled atmosphere" as reasons for declining to say more about the accident than he did in his July 25 television appearance.

Israel, Lebanon Swap Charges

By Times News Services

Arab machine-gunners fired on an Israeli Army position near the Lebanese border during the night after Israel and Lebanon swapped charges at UN headquarters in New York, an Israeli spokesman in Tel Aviv reported today.

The spokesman said Israeli troops returned the fire, and later mortars on the Lebanese side of the border opened up.

No casualties were reported.

An Egyptian army patrol late Wednesday night crossed the Suez canal and attacked an Israeli artillery post on the occupied east bank, an Egyptian military spokesman said in Cairo.

The attack resulted in heavy casualties and losses of equipment on the Israeli side, the spokesman said.

An ammunition depot was blown up, resulting in an extensive fire, he said.

There was no damage on the Egyptian side and the patrol returned safely to its base, he added.

Israeli jets struck inside Egypt and Jordan earlier Wednesday.

In the exchange before the UN Security Council, Lebanon demanded censure of Israel and compensation for damage to property and casualties suffered in Israel's air attack Monday on southeast Lebanon in the Mount Hermon sector.

REPORTS FOUR KILLED

Lebanese Ambassador Edouard Ghorra said four civilians were killed and three badly wounded in the 30-minute air raid. He reported four villages were attacked.

Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah countered that the raid singled out Arab guerrilla positions and said such military action was justified because Lebanese territory "has become a base for terror warfare," against Israel.

He said centres of terror organizations exist in Beirut, the Lebanese capital, while commando squads of saboteurs have moved from Syria into bases on Lebanese soil.

The debate was to continue today.

Israeli planes hit positions in Egypt and Jordan Wednesday in retaliation for Arab artillery attacks, an Israeli Army spokesman reported.

The warplanes struck Egyptian shore batteries at the southern end of the Suez Canal following an artillery duel in which 13 Israeli soldiers were wounded, the spokesman said. Egypt claimed 12 Israeli military vehicles destroyed in the firing, but there was no report on casualties or damage in the air raid.

Israeli fighter-bombers also hit east of the Abdullah Bridge across the River Jordan after a tank and artillery duel across the frontier river.

Violations Charged

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The UN command charged today that North Korea committed 14 major armistice violations across the Korean border between April 23 and Aug. 10. It said U.S. and South Korean forces killed 12 North Korean infiltrators during that period and possibly two others.

'BALANCE OF FEAR' IN GERM WAR PLAN

GENEVA (AP)—Poland sharply criticized the United States government's chemical weapons program today and accused it of promoting a new "balance of fear".

In the bitterest Communist attack on the United States heard at the 25-nation disarmament conference in many months, Polish delegate Antoni Czarkowski claimed that in the United States "the old slogan 'learn to live with the nuclear bomb' has now been replaced by a new catch phrase 'chemical warfare research is good for you'."

Gulf Stream Explorers Surface

WASHINGTON (AP) — Six men today completed a 31-day exploration of the Gulf Stream, during which they drifted under the ocean's surface in the submersible vessel Ben Franklin.

Ending their month under the sea, they surfaced at 7:58 a.m. EDT 440 miles southeast of Portland, Maine, or 300 miles southeast of Halifax.

The crew immediately boarded a U.S. Coast Guard cutter, the Cook Inlet, for Portland. The ship is due to arrive Friday about 3 p.m.

First member of the crew to leave the sub was Chester May, a researcher for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. He was followed by Britain's Kenneth Haigh, an acoustical expert for the Royal Navy.

Other members of the crew were Jacque Piccard, leader of the 31-day mission that began July 14 off the Florida coast; Donald Kazimir, skipper of the sub; Erwin Aebersold, the pilot; and Frank Busby, a U.S. Navy oceanographer.

A spokesman for the Grumman Aerospace Corp., Bethpage, L.I., which built the sub to Piccard's specifications, said all members of the crew were in excellent shape and showed no effects from their long submergence.

Esquire Sued

NEW YORK (AP) — Editor-columnist William F. Buckley has filed a $1,000,000 defamation suit against Esquire magazine. The complaint, filed Wednesday, said an article by Gore Vidal in the September, 1969, issue called Buckley a "pro-crypto Nazi."

NATO Translator Charged With Treason in France

PARIS (Reuters) — A 40-year-old Frenchman held for spying at NATO headquarters in Brussels, Belgium, has been charged here with treason—an offence carrying the death penalty in France.

Francis Roussilhe, formally charged Wednesday in an appearance before an examining magistrate at the State Security Court, was described in court as a librarian but informed sources said he worked at NATO headquarters as a translator.

The sources said Roussilhe, father of three, was accused of copying a large number of secret NATO documents for an Eastern European country.

He was alleged to have received large sums of money and photo-copying equipment to help his work, the sources added.

They said Roussilhe, who started working for NATO in 1952, was arrested by Belgian police early last week as he left his office carrying classified documents.

After being brought to Paris, Roussilhe was questioned under a curtain of strict secrecy by French counter-espionage officials.

GOT SECRET PAPERS

Informed sources said that in his position at NATO, Roussilhe had been able to get access to many documents, including some dealing with European defence, NATO bases, the alliance's troops strength and NATO council discussions on the international situation.

Under French law, Frenchmen who spy on NATO countries are liable to the same penalties as those who spy on France—death.

Siberian Floods

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Thousands of farmers and troops are battling floods in Siberia which swamped more than 2,000 homes and destroyed thousands of acres of crops, the Communist party newspaper Pravda reported today.

Five-Year Term

VANCOUVER (CP)—Anthony Fielding, 49, who was declared an habitual criminal in 1965, was sentenced Wednesday to five years for robbing a drug store of $60 last month. Fielding said in provincial court he had pretended he had a gun when he robbed the store.

Get one.

This is the Mazda 1200.

It has front disc brakes, adjustable headrests, a full complement of the latest safety devices and a custom-tailored interior with reclining seats. Features you don't expect to find for $1898. We think it's prettier than the other cars in its class, too. Sleeker. Less angular.

But what really sets the Mazda 1200 apart from the rest of the herd is performance. Light weight, 73 horsepower and a fast action four speed gearbox that take it far in front of the competition. All this performance comes in your choice of two packages: the Sedan shown above, or the Sports Coupe, at left. The Sedan is for those who like their power in a sedate package. The Coupe is for those who think a car should look as fast as it goes. Whichever you choose, you'll have to hurry. They're going fast.

GREEN BERET RELEASE URGED

WASHINGTON (WP)—Congress became embroiled in the Green Beret controversy Wednesday when Rep. Peter W. Rodino (D.—N.J.), announced he would demand an explanation from the army's top command.

Rodino, as a start, said he will meet acting army secretary Thaddeus Beal at a meeting in the Pentagon.

At that time, the congressman is expected to demand the release of Capt. Robert Marasco, of Bloomfield, N.J. — part of Rodino's congressional district.

Marasco and seven other Green Berets are in the Longbinh jail outside of Saigon while the army investigates the murder of a Vietnamese near Nhatrang on June 20.

The army has said the eight Green Berets are suspected of premeditated murder and conspiracy to commit murder. But no formal hearing—such as a civilian type of arraingment—has been held yet.

Rodino plans to argue that Marasco should be released from jail — at least until the army decides whether to lodge formal charges against the suspects.

U.S. to Resume Athens Ties

WASHINGTON (WP)—The Nixon administration has decided to name ambassadors to Greece and Sweden. The posts have been left vacant since January to show United States displeasure with both governments.

The decision has not been announced and may not be carried out for several weeks. Informants said career diplomats will be nominated for both embassies.

Liberals on the Senate foreign relations committee, which passes on nominations of ambassadors, can be expected to protest the filling of the Greek vacancy.

ARMS EMBARGO

The United States has imposed a partial arms embargo on Greece since its military overthrow of the Papandreou government in April 1967. Ambassador Phillips Talbot served out his term to January, and charge Ross McClelland has run the Athens embassy since then.

The case of Greece has been complicated by two factors: its membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the presumed friendship of a prominent Greek-American, Vice-President Spiro Agnew.

NATO membership has given Greece a claim on a trickle of U.S. arms — exactly how much of a trickle is in dispute — in spite of the partial embargo.

A partial resumption announced last fall has included two minesweepers and about 10 jet fighters — F104s and F5s — as well as non-lethal items such as communications equipment. The supply of spare parts for U.S. weapons never was interrupted.

But tanks and other types of aircraft continue to be denied.

CAREER OFFICER

Vice President Agnew has taken an interest in filling the Athens post, reportedly urging the nomination of a retired army general, William Quinn. But state department sources say the post will go to a career foreign service officer. One name reportedly in contention is that of Henry J. Tasca, who is to be replaced as ambassador to Morocco by Robert Strausz-Hupe.

The Swedish case has centred on the Stockholm government's anti-American positions in the Vietnam war, climaxed by its recognition of North Vietnam last January. U.S. Ambassador William Heath, a Texas businessman and friend of President Johnson, turned over the Stockholm embassy to charge Turner Cameron in late January.

The United States has publicly criticized Sweden's recognition of Hanoi, the first by any western democracy, and has also expressed regrets at its harboring of some 250 deserters from U.S. armed forces.

EXPORTS TO DECLINE

Sweden has designated its ambassador to Peking as concurrently ambassador to Hanoi, after last year instructing its new ambassador to Bangkok to take up his predecessor's credentials in Saigon.

Concern in Swedish business circles lest exports to the U.S. decline because of resentment in Washington was discussed by Swedish consular and diplomatic officials at a conference here last spring.

There has been little change in the atmosphere since January, although the strains may show again in September, when political observers expect the dominant Social Democratic Party to choose Education Minister Olof Palme, known for his role at a pro-Hanoi rally last year, as their candidate to succeed Premier Tage Erlander.

Casualties Mount in Stepped-Up Viet Battles

SAIGON (AP) — Casualties mounted today in the third day of hard fighting across South Vietnam, while U.S. B-52 bombers hit North Vietnamese troops just below the demilitarized zone with the heaviest raids in more than three months.

The trouble spots were familiar battlegrounds—along the Cambodian border north of Saigon, the populous coastal lowlands south of Da Nang and the frontier area between the U.S. marine outpost called the Rockpile and the demilitarized zone separating North and South Vietnam.

Fighting Wednesday and early today raised to 1,700 the number of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops the southern allies claimed to have killed since the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese attacked 150 bases and towns early Tuesday.

There was no official count on American casualties, but informed sources estimated 100 to 125 U.S. troops killed and 600 wounded.

The dead included a marine battalion commander, Lt.-Col. John A. Dowd, 37, of Woodbridge, Va., who was cut down by machine-gun fire Wednesday while leading an attack against a position held by the North Vietnamese.

The U.S. command added a footnote today to the two-month battlefield lull that ended early Tuesday with the Viet Cong attacks. The weekly casualty summary reported that 96 Americans were killed in action last week, the smallest weekly total in two years.

Government forces also reported a decrease, to 225 killed, or 51 less than the week before. But the southern allied commands claimed 2,214 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese killed last week, 46 more than a revised total of 2,168 reported for the previous week.

Lengthy Pact Awarded Kuhn

SEATTLE (UPI)—Major league club owners Wednesday named Bowie Kuhn as permanent commissioner of baseball, giving him a seven-year contract at a salary of more than $100,000 a year.

Kugn, 42, an attorney, has been serving on a one-year pro tem basis since Feb. 4. Associated with baseball for 20 years, he had been an attorney for the National League for the previous decade.

Kuhn said the new contract will allow him a little more freedom as commissioner. But he insisted he never felt inhibited from doing what was good for baseball.

He said he sees no changes in the near future in the way the game is played.

POSITIVE APPROACH

"I see principally in baseball a more positive promotion of this very fine game," said Kuhn. "We have seen this recently and it will continue."

Warren Giles, president of the National League, said the commissioner's salary was under study.

"I can say it is substantially more than $100,000," he said. Kuhn had been drawing an even $100,000 under the pro tem arrangement. His seven-year term began immediately with his unanimous election at the mid-summer meeting of the two major leagues.

PRAISED

Both Giles and Joe Cronin, American League president, were lavish in their praise of Kuhn. Giles, in disclosing general salary terms, said Kuhn would be the highest paid commissioner ever.

"It's more than I ever thought a commissioner would be paid," he said.

ROSE-BLANSHARD

Chant, Black at Odds Over Linkup Possibility

By JOHN DRISCOLL

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant told an all-candidates meeting Wednesday he is sure the Rose-Blanshard extension will be linked with the Patricia Bay Highway.

Stewart, a Victoria alderman, said the city knows of no plans for a link-up.

"Nothing has been done," he said.

Highways Minister Wesley Black, contacted in Nelson, refused to get involved in the controversy which is becoming an election hot-potato.

When Black was asked about the possibility of a link-up he referred to a press release issued by his department Wednesday.

LONG WAY AWAY

The release dealt exclusively with the Pat Bay widening project and made no mention of Rose-Blanshard.

Black did indicate any link-up is at least five or 10 years away.

"Don't forget I stressed at the beginning of the Pat Bay widening project that this would be an interim measure only, perhaps sufficient to handle traffic needs for five or 10 years," he said.

Victoria's million-dollar extension was built as part of an urban renewal scheme with federal financial assistance. It terminates at Tolmie and city aldermen contend they were assured by the province that it would be linked with the highway.

NO SUCH GUARANTEE

Chant, in answer to a question at the meeting concerning the situation, said he has asked the highways department to join the two highways.

"I am sure they will do it," he said.

Stewart jumped to his feet immediately and said the city has no such guarantee.

"We know of no plans for this. Since 1962 we've been asking for them."

Stewart said the interchange proposed for the highways widening at Saanich Road and Douglas near the Town and Country shopping centre was the stumbling block to the linkup.

TAX MONEY ON ADS

"This is an issue in this campaign that the people should sink their teeth into," he said.

When questioned further about the link-up prior to a cabinet meeting today Chant said he couldn't say exactly what the highways department would do.

"But I am quite sure it will be connected up one way or another."

At the meeting NDP candidates Peter Bunn and Phil Fawcett criticized the Socreds for spending taxpayers' money on balatant election ads.

"There has been a barrage of ads on pollution control and human rights legislation during this campaign," said Fawcett.

Chant said the ads were simply to inform the people of what the government has been doing. "This information is given out all year-round," he said.

Bunn said the government's concern with profit has resulted in disregard for human needs.

"I am concerned about the government attempt at cover-up of scandals, the 'let's look after our pals' attitude."

He said the $6 million centre for physiactric treatment was built against all the best psychiatric advice and was costing $2,000 a day though it remained empty.

Chant who was speaking on behalf of himself and fellow-Socred candidate Waldo Skillings who is ill said Fawcett's figures were not true.

"That building is completely paid for," he said. "There are no debt charges on it."

He said the building was constructed with the best continent-wide medical advice.

"If we had spread that building all over creation like some of the daydreamers wanted, it would have cost two to three times as much of the taxpayers' money."

New Pat Bay Still Plagued By Bottleneck

The Patricia Bay Highway widening program will provide two lanes for southbound traffic all the way from Swartz Bay to Victoria, Highways Minister Wesley Black said in a statement issued Wednesday.

Traffic northbound from Victoria, however, will face three bottlenecks in the form of narrowing from two-lane to one-lane roadway in a 4½-mile stretch.

Black's statement said "work on this section is a temporary measure, which should ease traffic congestion considerably."

Construction standards of the highway, a contentious matter in the decade since the B.C. government ferries started operating from Swartz Bay, has again emerged as an issue in the current election campaign. Black's statement was apparently issued in response to criticism of the widening program being voiced by several local candidates.

•

There will be a single lane northbound for 1½ miles from Beaver Lake to Cordova Bay Road.

It will broaden to four lanes for an uphill mile between Cordova Bay Road to approximately the Saanich - Central Saanich boundary.

Then it narrows again to three lanes to Island View Road.

That stretch will be widened for a brief section at Tanner Road to provide a left-turn lane for northbound traffic.

The first mile of the project, from Carey Road junction north of Victoria, is expected to be completed by the end of September, the highways department says.

The next 2.2-mile stretch, which will be built to full limited-access standard from Rogers Avenue to Beaver Lake, is awaiting right-of-way acquisition and removal of some houses.

The final 6½ miles, connecting with the present four-lane stretch from Swartz Bay, is under contract and work on service roads is expected to start immediately.

•

The highways department says this will be a full limited-access, four-lane highway with a paved median.

Some right-of-way negotiations are still in progress. Frontage and service roads will be built first to provide alternate routes while the main reconstruction work is under way.

Target date for completion of the 6½-mile fourth section is the beginning of next year's tourist season.

The entire project will not be finished until the end of 1970 because of land acquisition problems in the 2.2-mile second section. This is the "toughest" part, says the highways department, because it involves construction of two interchanges.

DESPITE OTTAWA CUTBACKS

Wharf St. Go-Ahead Seen

City and provincial government officials were optimistic today that Victoria's $30 million Wharf Street waterfront development plan will not be affected by new federal government restrictions on urban renewal aid.

Robert Andras, minister in charge of housing, said today municipalities with urban renewal schemes now in preparation should either suspend them or go ahead without any assurance of federal help until Ottawa has worked out a long-term policy on urban renewal.

Estimated public expenditure in the Wharf Street project is $3 million, of which the provinical government will pay about $743,000.

The plan, unveiled in June, 1968, envisions a facelift for 44 waterfront acres in an area bordered by Government and Johnson.

UNIQUE

The plan is considered unique, planners say, because with a minimum of public investment the city will be able to attract a maximum of private investment into the area.

One developer, Reid Properties Ltd. of Vancouver, announced in March it will undertake a $25 million revitalization program on Wharf Street which will include two 19-storey high-rise apartments, a 25-storey hotel, a marina, a theatre and restaurants.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, contacted in Campbell River, said there is reason to believe Andras favors the kind of redevelopment envisaged for the Wharf Street area.

NO BULLDOZING

"When I spoke with Andras in Vancouver I told him we are pushing for the kind of urban renewal we have in Victoria, not the bulldozer kind."

He said the federal government should favor projects like the one for the Victoria waterfront "to the extent that they will trigger additional development, rather than sweep out whole areas."

Andras "thought very much the way I did."

City planner Geoff Greenhalgh said there is no way of knowing yet whether the Wharf Street plan will be affected by the federal clampdown.

"I think we've shown quite clearly in the Acres report that the public investment is minimal compared to the private investment to follow.

RIGHT CATEGORY

"If they're looking for projects with minimal investment and optimum return, then the Wharf Street plan certainly falls into that category."

Greenhalgh said there is danger the federal government action will undermine the confidence of private investment in urban renewal projects.

GREENHALGH

"The work we've been doing over the last few years has been to reinforce the confidence of private enterprise."

The Reid project, to be located directly on the waterfront between Bastion Square and the old HMCS Malahat building, will necessitate removal of the Ocean Cement plant.

Greenhlagh and Ocean Cement vice-president D. E. Smith both agreed negotiations between the city and the company are "going ahead very well."

Dam Job Awarded For Jordan R.

The $9,548,000 contract went to Emil Anderson Construction Co. Ltd. of Hope, the same company that is building a 3½-mile power tunnel to replace a wooden flume which has carried water to the existing generating plant for more than 50 years.

The redevelopment at Jordan River is expected to provide peaking power for Vancouver Island when it is completed in 1971, B.C. Hydro said in making the announcement.

NUCLEAR PLANT

But Dr. Gordon Shrum, chairman of B.C. Hydro, has predicted that continually increasing demands on the power supply will make a further project, possibly a nuclear power plant, necessary after 1975.

"There will have to be another larger project to meet the load growth, and a decision about this will have to be made by 1975 at the latest," he said.

Under the contract, Emil Anderson will build the new dam 1½ miles downstream from the existing Diversion Dam, which was built between 1909 and 1911.

Both Diversion Dam and Bear Creek Dam, five miles upstream, are to be improved under the present redevelopment program.

LOW-LEVEL OUTLETS

The new dam will be called Elliott Dam after J. M. Elliott, former superintendent of the Jordan River Generating Station.

Anderson will also build the station to house a 218,000-horsepower turbine and generator unit.

A further contract for low-level outlets at Elliott and Diversion Dams was awarded by B.C. Hydro to Newton Chambers Engineering Ltd., at a cost of $219,000.

The gates are to be placed at the intake of the power tunnel and at points where water will be released from the new power plant.

The Singing Candidate Makes Opponents Squirm

There sat five Victoria riding candidates in the University of Victoria Students' Union Building Wednesday.

"I do not crave for wealth or power supreme.

"I do not grieve and think what might have been

"I do not envy those of high degree

"Though poor I be, though poor I be."

The other candidates squirmed uncomfortably in their chairs. Scott sang on in a high, sometimes quavering voice. He remained on-key.

"When my small part is finished here for you

"I pray you'll judge it from a proper view

"Granting to me if I have served you right

"A vote for Bill Scott, a vote for Bill Scott."

The audience of more than 100, most of them students, were at first startled then amused, and finally grateful for the musical interlude.

He later explained that he used a song instead of a speech because he was the "candidate of youth."

He told his young audience not to repeat the mistakes of his own generation.

"Especially fight against the nonsensical idea that it is better to die for your country than to live for it," he said.

A former lighthouse maintenance supervisor and rest home operator who now is a pawnbroker, Scott said he respected other parties but that he deserved the second vote in Victoria riding more than the second candidate for each party.

FIRED BERGER

"I'm making my political comeback and it's aimed against Waldo Skillings and NDP leader Tom Berger," he said.

Scott accused Waldo Skillings of leading the purge against himself when both were Socreds and said of Berger, "I hired him as my lawyer and later fired him."

He said this was the first time he had campaigned as the singing candidate but added, "I have always been known for my originality."

Scott also attacked the Victoria Times which he contended "has tried to keep me down. You'll find the power behind the Liberals hidden away at the Times," he said.

Arthur Mayse . . .

THE HEAD OF A SIZEable family called on me one morning this week. He was a sad and worried man. For years, he and his wife had been socking away their not too plentiful dollars for a project that would boost their present income and supplement Harry's pension when he downed tools.

This was to build a duplex, live in one unit, and rent the other.

In theory, it was a sound idea. But in practice, it hasn't worked out that way.

★

Earlier this summer, they got in touch with a small contractor, inspected some of his work, and made a deal. They paid for the plan, made a down payment on a lot the contractor owned, and turned over a further sum against the cost of the duplex.

It was also agreed in writing that if a mortgage couldn't be obtained, the couple would get their money back minus the cost of the plan.

Perhaps they should have saved more and waited longer. In any case, they failed to get a mortgage.

★

They waited what they felt was a reasonable time for the return of their down payment. Then they tried without success to hurry the contractor. Finally Harry took his copy of the agreement to a lawyer, who found that he had a valid claim, and prodded the contractor with a letter.

More time passed.

Harry was reluctant to proceed farther. He feared that the lawyer's fee would take a considerable bite from the $800 he hoped to recover.

At this point in his account, I phoned the Better Business Bureau to find that Harry's wife had already called, and that Bureau Manager William D. Tindall was looking into the matter.

But, though the duplex must wait, his story has a halfway happy ending. The contractor's cheque arrived that same morning.

Harry and his wife were luckier than most who blunder into dubious deals.

First, it is highly unwise to prepay on a contract of the sort he entered into.

It would have been much better policy to insist that the money be held in trust by a third party agreed upon by both the contractor and themselves.

★

Further, they could have saved themselves a good deal of worry and delay by a preliminary call to the Better Business Bureau or to the Amalgamated Construction Association of B.C.

Both hold to the principle that prevention is better — and infinitely easier — than cure.

Also, both are heartily behind a bonding system that would require proof of performance in each skill claimed by a trade licence applicant.

★

A subcommittee of city council is studying such a system. If adopted, it would drastically reduce the number of fly-by-nights who infest the building trades fringe.

I asked branch secretary E. J. Phillips of the Amalgamated Construction Association how the householder with a construction or repair project in the offing could best protect himself from larceny.

His suggestions:

Avail yourself of the association's 170-member list of general contractors and specialists. All are carefully checked out before acceptance into the association.

Remember that large contracting firms will undertake minor repairs.

Keep in mind, too, that Canadian Construction Association contracts approved by the Royal Architectural Institute of Canada can be had from the local branch office.

They cover any construction or repair job that may come up, and are written in simple English, with no small print.

Cost is 25 cents, and such a contract could save you loss and trouble.

★

There are plenty of skilled and honest operators about. But there are others who will seek to collect prices not even vaguely related to their estimates for shoddy work.

Best advice of all is this. Know who you're dealing with. If you don't know, find out. It isn't hard to do, and may save you plenty.

EX-JAIL WORKER FINED FOR SHOPLIFTING

Judge William Ostler again warned today he will mete out stiffer penalties for shoplifting.

He fined John Macko, a retired Kingston penitentiary steward, $250 for stealing two raincoats from a department store after city prosecutor John McIntyre told the court shoplifting is "getting out of hand."

The usual fine is $100.

A department store official later confirmed that stores in general are sustaining heavy losses due to thefts of merchandise.

"About $600 worth of merchandise is stolen from our store in a day," he said. "In the end it's the consumer who pays for these losses. It is passed on to him.

'RESPECTED CITIZENS'

One merchant said shoplifters came from all classes.

"A few weeks ago we apprehended a doctor's wife," he said.

The city prosecutor was appalled by the large number of apparently respected and sober citizens streaming out of department stores with stolen property.

It was quite apparent, he said, that the fines imposed on shoplifters in the past, were not acting as a deterrent.

Judge Ostler agreed.

With regards to Macko, the judge said his act was reprehensible in view of his former occupation in a penitentiary.

THE CASE OF THE DISAPPEARING KNEES

For women tired of skirt-tugging, designers have produced a variety of knee-covering garments contrasting greatly with micro-minis. This one is an evening jumpsuit with a pattern of orange and yellow lilies.

The knees are covered but the midriff peeks out in something called a two-step. It is white, and decorated with renaissance chiseled gold embroidery on the high-waisted rajah tunic.

For complete coverage from neck to feet, there is a sleeved dinner dress with full bell-shaped skirt, of cocoa brown silk organza, all over embroidered in white. Collar and cuffs are in white silk organza.

Pop Music Can Have A Place in Religion

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — Even pop music has its place in worship if it has a message for young people.

That is the theory that has caught the interest of Sara Harrison, newly appointed executive secretary of the Canadian Girls in Training. Miss Harrison took over the post Aug. 1, succeeding Ruth Tillman.

She says that despite a lack of formal training she has been making a hobby of contemporary church music and is interested in the effect that music and other contemporary materials can have in religious life.

"I am accumulating resources on religious materials that could have meaning for young people today. Working at camps I have found that worship and Bible study are things they have trouble with.

"I am trying resources such as modern translations of the scripture, prayers in contemporary language, secular materials that have a message for young people. Pop music often has an expression of human need.

"Young people who are asked to prepare a service will use it; they will see a meaning we don't see."

PRINCIPLES UNCHANGED

Miss Harrison says young people who have a religious faith may be less troubled than some others, but they do not escape current problems completely.

"In this time of change, teen-agers are very uncertain about the future. I think some find a stability in the CGIT."

As executive secretary she does administrative work for the group, which is run by a national committee.

It has about 50,000 members, most of them from one of four denominations: Baptist, Church of Christ (Disciples), Presbyterian and United.

Miss Harrison says the CGIT has never undergone a major overhaul in organzation or membership.

"There is a constant process of change. The genius of the CGIT is that leaders and girls look at their needs together and decide what they will do in the framework of activities such as Bible study, recreation, creative work, mission study.

DEAR ABBY . . .

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a fighting man in Viet Nam with a problem that bothers me more than the enemy.

First, let me explain that there are six of us guys in one dwelling. We have a young Vietnamese girl who comes in every day to make our beds, clean up the place and do our laundry. For this we each pay her $6 a month.

Well, I have been taking pictures of the natives, the country and other things of interest here, and have sent these pictures to my girl for safe keeping, as the rain and heat here are hard on pictures.

Abby, I thought nothing of sending a picture of this little Vietnamese home to my girl with some other pictures. Well, my girl got the wrong idea and she wrote me a nasty letter saying if I was going to play around with native girls she was going to start dating, too! Abby, I haven't played around with anyone. This girl is a poor, little quiet servant and means absolutely nothing me!

I wrote and explained this to my girl back home and she never even answered my letter. Please help me before something real bad happens.—In Deep Trouble.

DEAR IN DEEP: Write to your girl again and tell it to her like you have told it to me. And get those buddies of yours to back you up with a "P.S." Your girl needs assurance, so give it to her — in spades. And good luck, soldier!

DEAR ABBY: May I share my happiness with the world? I threw away my girdle about two months ago, and now I am free, free, free! I can't understand how I ever put up with the uncomfortable harness for so many years. Now I just slip into a pair of pantyhose and I'm ready to go! What a time-saver! It used to take me 20 minutes to struggle into my girdle. — Free Again.

DEAR FREE: Congratulations. I'd have to see you before sharing your enthusiasm. Any woman who needs 20 minutes to struggle into a girdle, needs one.

DEAR ABBY: Boy, O, boy, have I got some news for you. My beds aren't made and my dishes are still in the sink, but I've got to get this in the mail. All your talk about smoking and lung cancer won't mean a thing to people who smoke. They'll go right on smoking because they're hooked. And kids will start, too, because they see grown-ups do it and they think it's smart. And they'll soon be hooked, too.

But maybe this will make some of those smokers sit up and take notice. They stink! Yes, every cigarette smoker has a terrible odor about his breath, his hair, his skin and his clothes. Why, even their hands stink! All the money on perfumes and breath-deodorants is wasted. You can still smell a smoker three feet away. If you don't believe me, the next time you go to kiss a child, ask him how he likes it. He'll tell you the truth. — Very Truly Yours, Ex-smoker.

Phenomenal Appetite for Beef Accounts for High Retail Price

WASHINGTON (A P) — What do American consumers say is tasty, easily digested, versatile, healthful and not tiresome?

Beef, the most popular meat on American tables, the experts say.

It also is the most expensive, in terms of family outlay and retail prices. But without the huge consumer preference and appetite for beef, it would be selling at give-away prices.

Agriculture department and industry experts have pointed to the upward inflation spiral, larger family incomes and lagging cattle production as factors in currently high retail beef prices in the United States.

But a new government report, compiled in co-operation with the National Livestock and Meat Board, sheds a broader light on what many economists say is the most important reason prices are high: the phenomenal appetite of Americans for sirloins, hamburger and roasts.

BASED ON SURVEY

The report was based on surveys of more than 3,000 families in 1967, both rural and urban, in 48 states, and represented income groups of less than $5,000 a year to $9,000 or more.

Some of the findings:

—Only 17 families reported no beef served in the previous 12 months.

—About nine out of 10 said some kind of beef was served two or more times a week.

—Ground beef was served more frequently than any other cut, followed by steak.

—Eight out of 10 said they used both oven and pot roasts, although these were not served as often as ground beef and steak.

Officials said only three per cent of the families said they did not serve beef at all, mainly because it was too expensive or because they preferred other foods.

The majority of those interviewed said ground beef was inexpensive, easy to prepare and, along with steak, good to serve in warm weather.

"They also intimated that oven roasts and steak satisfy prestige desires, and these meats are likely to be considered a good choice for guests whose preferences in meat are unknown," the report said.

Reports on per capita consumption of meat support the contention that most families by far prefer beef to any other meat.

Last year Americans averaged 110 pounds of beef each, compared with about 106 pounds in 1967; 104 pounds in 1966, and less than 100 pounds in 1965. In 1960, per capita beef eating was 85 pounds.

Per capita pork consumption last year was 66 pounds, the most in a decade. Lamb and mutton accounted for 3.7 pounds in 1968, and veal only 3.6 pounds.

CANADIANS LIKE BEEF

Canadian per capita consumption of beef was estimated at 86.6 pounds in 1968, up from 84 pounds in 1967. W. F. McLean, president of Canada Packers Ltd., is quoted in a Canadian Press article as saying there has been a 22 per cent increase since 1961. He says this year's supply of beef is 10 per cent less than necessary to match last year's consumption.

Victoria butchers agree that beef accounts for by far the largest volume of sales, possibly more than all other sales combined. Sales of lamb and mutton are very small, with pork probably taking second place to beef.

Baby-Swapper Wants Child Back

PETERBOROUGH, England (AP) — Shirley Thorne says she swapped one of her daughters for a second-hand record player three months ago. Now she wants the child back and is willing to give a new record player for her.

The deal was made at a trailer camp as the 24-year-old mother and her garbage collector husband Arthur, 26, were moving to an apartment. At that time they had two daughters, Jacqueline, 2, and Tracey, 5 months, and Mrs. Thorne was pregnant.

Millworker Geoffrey Butler, 24, and his wife Patricia, 23, said they offered their $100 record player for Jacqueline. They said they were shocked when the Thornes handed over the child, her birth certificate and a signed paper saying she was theirs.

Mrs. Thorne sold the record player the next day for the equivalent of $7.25 to buy milk for Tracey.

"The Butlers have no children so I thought the arrangement would make them a little happier," the young woman said.

"I don't know now if I've made a terrible mistake. All I want is Jacqueline back. I am going to buy a new record player and offer it in exchange for her."

The Butlers said they will fight to keep the child.

"She is wonderfully happy with us," said Mrs. Butler. "We are determined to go through the lawful adoption procedure, come what may. She is our little girl now."

County children's officer Bertha Brock said the child still legally belongs to the Thornes.

Teen-Agers Are Tiresome

NEW YORK (WMNS)—Two psychiatrists, a husband and wife, have proposed guidelines for dealing with the often maddening complexities of adolescents.

For instance, the "two seat syndrome"—when a sprawling teenager uses up more than one person's allotment of space in a theatre or subway and then becomes annoyed if asked to move over.

This "extraordinary involvement of pride in every aspect of their behavior" may drive adults beserk but it is also normal, Dr. Martin Symonds of NYU School of Medicine assured a recent medical meeting. His wife, Dr. Alexandra Symonds, also teaches at N..Y.U

NORMALITY

The surest indicator that a teen-ager is on the normal road to emotional maturity is a high level of activity, energy and involvement. Conversely, 10 years of working with adolescents have convinced him that the outlook is poor for apathetic teen-agers.

Since almost all adolescents are troubled and troubling, Dr. Symonds said, it is often difficult to know which exasperating patterns of behavior are normal for the age and which are warnings that professional help is needed.

Dr. Symonds said, that, besides passivity, other grave omens for future mental health are: a contempt for authority that goes far beyond opposition to the abuse of authority; excessive contempt for tender feelings and compassion; excessive feelings of deprivation; severe physical symptoms caused by anxiety; severe obsessive and compulsive behavior.

CONFUSION

On the other hand, Dr. Martin said the following attitudes are normal concomitants of growing up: grandiosity; pseudo-cynicism; excessive need for privacy; sensitivity to coercion; fear of commitment; feelings of confusion; impatience with others; mild depression; insomnia.

Understanding adolescence, according to the psychiatrist, means realizing that it is a voyage of self-discovery. In order to grow up, the adolescent must cease being an agreeable, obedient child and must find his own way.

Those adults who never weathered psychological adolescence, the doctor warned, frequently set about "finding themselves" in middle age, becoming restless, searching for romance, adopting unconventional clothing.

Instant Wine Snobs Gather for Gourmet Meal

By KEVIN J. MODICA

CHICAGO (UPI) — "Be a gourmet the easy way," could be the motto of The Societe Au Gourmet Extrordinaire.

The societe's purpose is to elevate the tastes of those who want to learn more about food and wine—without going through the fuss and bother of years of tasting and training dedicated gourmets go through.

There were about 36 people at their recent dinner—one of eight the societe throws every year—and a reporter, all set to be a snob.

This dinner was billed as a picnic. It was in the garden of the Lake Shore Drive Hotel, complete with strolling violin.

There were, as advertised, "many of the accouterments of indoor dining comfort," such as tables, chairs, dishes and a confusing assortment of silverware—plus bug spray.

Anyway, it was "alfresco" (outdoors), as the Italians say.

WINE DIALOGUE

The card said that while some know "nothing or just a little" about wines, "they have mastered the wine dialogue. This is one-upmanship.

"To enable you to pass yourself off as a wine expert, we have assembled the following little phrases. Toss them off casually and you are sure to gain the respect and admiration of those who do not frequent Sage's East and therefore are not exposed to this wisdom."

"This gentle wine of great pretension," is the opener, followed by other words and phrases not heard in your saloon ordinaire: "musty," "stylish," "puckery," "light dry and fruity," "This wine is of beautiful nose," "corky," "it has good robe," "masculine," "pompous" "nutty," and "a great big mouthful of wine."

Should one feel that English can't properly describe the wine, you can say "sparkling" in French, Italian and German— respectively, "mousseaux," "frizzante" and "shpritzick."

The man responsible for the soiree, restaurateur Gene Sage, said the societe was formed for those who don't want to endure the rigors of joining a formal gourmet society, real pros at the food-and-wine game who have to be able to give detailed dissertations on what is good or bad about the meal.

Sage said the yearly membership cost is $5.

This meal cost en additional $15. The buffet gave you your choice of "filet de boeuf en aspic," a delicious beef, or "le hot dog," a delicacy very much like a hot dog.

There were hors d' oeuvres, consomme madrilene (cheese straws), garden greens, assorted salads (crab, deviled egg) and cheese and fruits. And champagne.

This reporter learned at least one thing: not to ask for a doggie bag.

But all-in-all, the affair was shpritzick.

CAREFREE is an entirely new kind of tampon—much smaller than any tampon ever made, yet amazingly, it protects up to 3 hours longer.

Johnson & Johnson has developed CAREFREE, the most absorbent, the most reliable tampon ever made. CAREFREE is, in fact, safe for up to 3 hours longer than any other tampon.

Another remarkable feature of the CAREFREE Tampon is that it is truly disposable. No more rigid cardboard tube to get rid of. CAREFREE comes without an applicator because it doesn't need one. There's just a neat, compact tampon in a cellophane wrapper.

What are other women doing about sanitary protection?

According to research studies conducted in Canada, the use of tampons is growing rapidly. Their use is widely accepted, particularly among the younger, more sophisticated women. In this group, the majority of women use tampons.

Most women think that tampons are indeed a good idea. But they worry about the reliability of present products, particularly when it comes to using them during the entire period. (Some women are so concerned that they use both tampons and napkins.) But such precautions are completely unnecessary with new CAREFREE Tampons.

Higher absorbency

CAREFREE Tampons' greater absorbency results from a unique quality. While the traditional tampon expands lengthwise, the CAREFREE Tampon expands, logically enough, in width—as the flow requires. This gentle expansion causes the tampon to mould itself to the body contours so it's accident-proof.

Exhaustive clinical tests and actual use among 3,720 women have proven that CAREFREE Tampons can be worn, with complete assurance, even during days when the flow is heaviest.

New CAREFREE Tampons are truly disposable

The cumbersome applicator that you get with ordinary tampons is a thing of the past. CAREFREE doesn't have an applicator because it doesn't need one. It is compact, smooth and firm enough to be inserted easily without one. And this makes CAREFREE a truly disposable tampon.

CAREFREE is also the smallest tampon there is—so small you can hide one in the palm of your hand. So small you can even put a dozen of them in your most fashionable bag and still have room for all that you usually carry. (A whole box of CAREFREE Tampons takes up no more room than a small pack of cigarettes.)

TV Eye Catches Proud America In Stirring Apollo 11 Tribute

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Television cameras have been called X-ray machines capable of revealing the genuine and the phoney. Through much of Wednesday they showed the healthy enthusiasm and pride of average Americans in the accomplishments of the Apollo 11 moon-landing pioneers.

The three U.S. networks, as usual pooling much of the camera work, followed the triumphant progress of the astronauts as they travelled from coast to coast.

The smiling, waving heroes were the stars of the show, but it was the affection and response of the crowds who greeted them that made for hours of stirring viewing.

Keeping the conversational ball rolling during motorcade travel and parades was the major challenge for the commentators. Once the crowds were described, the security precautions explained and the basic statistics explored, the job began to get tough.

Chicago, which seemed to have gone wild with enthusiasm, turned out in force and there was little need for filler. The screen was filled with cheering hordes, welcome signs, even balloons and flocks of pigeons.

The holiday spirit of the crowds came through the small screens with an impact that needed no description and was a more explicit statement of admiration than the well rounded sentiments expressed during the formal ceremonies.

The networks pre-empted programs freely to provide full coverage, and all three networks did smooth, professional jobs.

Clues Uncovering 'Sex Underworld'

By BRUCE RUSSELL

LOS ANGELES (Reuters) — A black address book belonging to murdered hair stylist Jay Sebring—slain together with pregnant actress Sharon Tate and three others Friday at a palatial Hollywood Hills mansion — is leading police into a "sex underworld," police sources said today.

They said the book was found along with a quantity of drugs in Sebring's car, after the five were savagely slaughtered at the hilltop estate of Miss Tate, 26, wife of Polish-born film director Roman Polanski.

The discovery of the drugs and black book, containing names of both men and women, led police to check the possibility the killer or killers might have been drug addicts or eccentrics invited into the house by Sebring.

Police continued to insist that there was no link between the sinister butcherings and the double murder of a Hollywood supermarket owner, Leno LaBianca, and his wife, Rosemary, found slaughtered about 24 hours later.

HUSBAND CRIES

Polanski, who has directed macabre films such as Rosemary's Baby, broke down and sobbed like a child Wednesday at his wife's funeral services.

Throngs of Hollywood celebrities turned out for the funeral for Sharon Tate. Peter Sellers, Kirk Douglas and Yul Brynner were among the top stars at the funeral.

Another service was held for Sebring, Miss Tate's former fiancee. He and Miss Tate were found tied together by a white rope slung over a ceiling beam.

Two other victims of the slayings in her home were buried Wednesday—coffee heiress Abigail Folger, 25, whose funeral was held at Redwood City near San Francisco, and 18-year-old Steven Parent, who was visiting a caretaker at the back of the house and apparently became involved by accident.

Underwear as 'Outerwear' Banned

EDISON, N.J. (UPI) — The school board, which fought a losing battle last year against miniskirts and maxi-hair, has published a dress code for the coming year which bans only see-through blouses, bare midriffs and "underwear worn as outerwear."

After considerable controversy, girls were allowed last year to wear miniskirts in the Edison schools and boys won the right to grow long hair, sideburns and mustaches.

The new dress code has nothing to say about hair. It says skirts should not be "excessively short," but it doesn't say just how short excessively is.

The particular teen-age fad it bans if the custom of wearing light-weight bra-slips as dresses.

Perrault Pushes Campaign to Promote Dogfish

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ray Perrault, MP for Burnaby-Seymour, says he plans to use his fellow MPs from across Canada to prove that dogfish is a delicacy.

"The plan is to serve some dogfish to the members of Parliament without saying anything about what it is," Mr. Perrault said in an interview Wednesday.

"The dogfish will be prepared in a glamorous way and we will challenge anybody to identify it as anything other than a delicacy."

He said the great cover-up will take place this fall during one of a series of informal buffet luncheons sponsored by Fisheries Minister Jack Davis to introduce MPs to the varied ways that fish can be prepared.

Mr. Perrault has called for federal subsidies to create Canadian canneries to handle dogfish and even suggested in Parliament that the fish be renamed to make it more palatable to consumers.

The dogfish, a small shark considered a pest by fishermen, is a popular food in some parts of the world but in Canada it has never caught on—probably because of its bland taste and mushy texture.

Sea Caves Drawing Explorers

Huge sea caves on the north side of Port San Juan at Port Renfrew are attracting outdoorsmen and spelunkers.

Punched out by the sea over the centuries, more than 100 stretch along the bay and up the west coast for several miles. The caverns are of all shapes and sizes.

One, a few miles northwest of Owen Point, is large enough to shelter three large motorboats, according to E. R. (Ted) Mattice, chief forester for B.C. Forest Products, who recently explored it.

It has three large entrances and the roof is more than 75 feet high.

They were wiped out in the 19th century.

The caves are seldom visited because of the difficulty of gaining access to the shore by boat.

They can only be reached at low tides and in the morning between daylight and about 11 a.m.

Region Board Backs Down On Hospital

By ED GOULD

NORTH COWICHAN — The regional hospital board of the Cowichan Valley started to endorse support for a new general hospital at Chemainus Wednesday night then shilly-shallied the motion to the table.

The request came from the Chemainus Hospital Board which fears it will be phased out soon.

Director Alan Anderson reminded Cannon that Lake Cowichan had its own hospital 10 years ago that was phased out in favor of the Cowichan Hospital.

CALLED IMPRACTICAL

"The government said it was impractical to have one at Lake Cowichan and one 23 miles away and now you want one to be built at Chemainus, only 11 miles from Duncan.

"I supported the central hospital and I feel I would be doing a disservice to my own area by supporting a new hospital at Chemainus."

Cannon stressed again he was talking about clinic hospitals, not general hospitals, but director Ken McKinnon agreed with Anderson.

"We are past the era of clinic hospitals. And it is completely against the regional concept."

Cannon then said Lake Cowichan should have a clinic hospital, too, and that many doctors he had spoken to agreed with satellite hospitals in areas with industry.

"Health is our most important consideration."

In other business, the board passed a motion to allow the three hospitals in the valley — Chemainus, Cowichan and Ladysmith — to receive copies of Regional Hospital Board meetings. Chemainus made the request.

Police Slow to Respond Says Owner of Slain Dog

COWICHAN BAY — A Cowichan Bay dog owner said today the killer of her prize French poodle Pierre might have been traced if the RCMP had responded to one of numerous phone calls.

Mrs. Fred Clarke said three calls were made to Duncan police on Monday when the dog was strangled and its mate clubbed in their kennel.

"It's too late now to check for clues after that heavy rain," she said.

ROPE FOUND

Mrs. Clarke said no one was home when the dogs were attacked and she had since discovered a piece of rope believed to have been used to tie the dogs to keep them from yelping.

"They were very friendly after they got to know people but would run away from strangers. Tied up in the kennel with chains like that they didn't have a chance."

Verterinarian David Reed said there is no possibility the dogs had been attacked by other dogs. He performed an autopsy on Pierre and has since treated the second dog, Muffy, for shock and for burns around the mouth.

Mrs. Clarke is convinced if the family had not returned when they did both dogs would have been dead. "We must have caught the killer at it."

She discounted the killing as the work of children.

"It would take someone sick to do a thing like that," she said.

Housebreakers Charged

TORONTO (CP) — Two brothers aged 13 and 14 Wednesday were charged with 11 counts of housebreaking involving almost $15,000 worth of jewelry, money, coin sets and a collection of electrical appliances.

Police said a special squad has been investigating a rash of break-ins in the last three weeks in the fashionable York Mills district of Toronto, usually at homes where the residents were on vacation.

ALBERNI STARTS CONTROL PROJECT

Flood Threat to End in Year

By JIM HUME
Times Reporter

PORT ALBERNI — One more worrying winter and spring faces lowland residents of the Alberni Valley before they are freed of flood fears.

That's the prediction of Port Alberni city manager Jim Sawyer who figures it will take roughly a year to complete a flood control program started a few weeks ago.

Costing little more than $1 million the program will see River Road—the main highway out of the Valley leading to Ucluelet, Tofino and Long Beach—raised to a maximum of five feet above the normal level of the usually peaceful Somass River.

Included in the project, in fact the first stage of the 12-month job, is the straightening and widening of Kitsuksis Creek, as meandering as its Indian name most months of the year, but an overflowing menace during high winter tides or heavy spring run-off.

TIDAL WAVE

Flood-control for the lower valley as it flanks the Somass and Kitsuksis was always a popular talking point on the west side of the Beaufort Mountains. But it never got beyond the talk stage until Easter, 1964.

That's the year the wild Pacific whipped in gigantic waves by the Alaska earthquake, ripped up the Alberni Canal and rolled into the Somass and Kitsuksis.

Within months of the disastrous tidal wave, Port Alberni and Alberni city councils opened joint negotiations with provincial and federal authorities to institute a series of dyke roads and creek widening projects to protect the low-lying areas of the community from a repeat tragedy.

Little more than two years ago the two cities amalgamated and the joint project became a one city council aim.

The years passed, the memory of the tidal wave faded.

FAMILIES EVACUATED

But no city council could ever forget the problems of River Road and Kitsuksis Creek.

Each December and January as the high tides flooded in from the open Pacific, close to 50 miles away, and each April as the snow in the high hills melted, evacuation of families living in the valley bottoms became routine rather than unusual.

Negotiations continued, and this year three levels of government, federal, provincial and municipal, agreed on a cost sharing formula to get the work under way.

The federal authorities and the provincial government share 75 per cent of the cost on a 50-50 basis, the municipal government picks up the remaining 25 per cent.

Sawyer said the estimated cost to the Port Alberni taxpayers will be around $250,000 or roughly six mills to be paid over 20 years. The mill in the Albernis is valued at $44,250.

"The sad part about the time it has taken us to get the show on the road is the tremendous increase in costs," said Sawyer. "It was in September 1965 that the people went to the polls to give solid support to the flood control bylaw. The estimated cost at that time was $500,00—less than half of what we have to pay now."

But at least the project, talked about since the turn of the century but never a physical fact, is under way.

In December, January and April residents will still watch the rising Somass with anxiety. After that they can relax, for unless much worse than the epic wave of 1964, not even a tidal bore will flood the low-lying areas of the Alberni Valley.

7 SAVED IN BARGE GROUNDING

CROFTON — Seven crewmen were rescued early today when a barge went aground off Porlier Pass and threatened to capsize the tug pulling it.

A spokesman for F. M. Yorke and Sons of Vancouver, owner of the tug C. P. Yorke, said the men were taken off by the department of mines vessel "Victor" which was alerted by Search and Rescue officials.

Aside from a cook who skinned his leg, there were no injuries, the spokesman said.

The tug and barge left Crofton pulp and paper mill around 2:30 a.m. and ran aground across from Norway Island shortly afterward. It was pulled off by tugs from Crofton and Chemainus at 6:50 a.m.

The barge was 300 feet long and contained 10 empty chlorine tanks being returned to Vancouver.

Scheme Needed

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — The Alberta Teachers' Association says some method must be found to reward superior teachers without forcing them to leave classrooms by taking administrative posts. ATA president I. P. Stonehocker told the annual convention Wednesday successful merit-pay schemes are operating in Ontario and California but they cost too much to be put into effect.

Colorful Perennials for Fall

By HILDA BEASTALL

As yellow is the color for many spring flowers, so it also seems a favorite in the fall garden. Yellow and bronze heleniums, greeny-yellow rudbeckias, gold and bronze chrysanthemums, and now the solidagos or Goldenrods.

Hilda

All these plants are perennial, or at least can be kept for years by division and replanting. Great variation in height is found especially among the Goldenrods.

To most Canadians Goldenrod is a plant so wild and free that although we may love it, garden space cannot be given it. Yet here on the southern end of Vancouver Island we grow Goldenrod as a companion for our perennial asters or Michaelmas-daisies.

The pink, mauve, purple and red of fall asters seem to be enriched when a plant or two of Goldenrod is included in the grouping.

Most familiar is the five-foot Solidago canadensis with enormous wide flat heads of golden blossoms. Given the same rich fertile soil as the taller asters, the plants are lovely and attract equal attention.

Lower in height since it seldom reaches over three feet is the Missouri Goldenrod, Solidago missouriensis. This is native to the lower midwest states, has narrow needle-like foliage and tiny yellow blossoms smelling of honey.

From England have come variants of the tall Canadian Goldenrod. Smaller in stature, the heads of blossom are equally large so that two-foot high plants resemble a fountain of gold from tip to ground level.

The varieties "Leraft," "Lemore" and "Golden Falls" will go well with asters of medium height like "The Bishop," "Blue Star" and "Eventide."

Least known of all Goldenrods but equally useful is tiny "Golden Triumph," a bushy plant between six snd eight inches high.

In this variety the leaves and flowers are both a light gold, so that in borders of dwarf Michaelmas they can be planted a little in front to avoid being smothered.

Since perennial asters flower best if grown from cuttings or divisions at least every third year and the solidagos benefit from the same treatment, we have in these two genus companion plants for bed or border.

The complete area can be remade when necessary, reducing the gardener's work by having sufficient space uncluttered for renewing the soil with compost and other ingredients.

In this way full value will be obtained from these colorful fall perennials.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Luxton Helped Save Famed Buffalo Herds

By BOB BOWMAN

If all the beef cattle on the prairies were brought together in one herd, would they outnumber the buffalo that roamed their grazing grounds 100 years ago? The buffalo then were the most numerous large animal in the world. When Kelsey, Henday and some of the other early explorers camped it would sometimes take three days for one herd to pass them.

When the North West Mounted Police trekked from Emerson to Fort Whoop-Up and Edmonton in 1874, they estimated that there were 60,000 buffalo in some of the herds, and they covered the land as far as their eyes could see.

Roast beef enthusiasts would appreciate seeing something similar today especially if it meant some lower prices.

Although the buffalo were so plentiful in 1874, the slaughter became so great that the Northwest Territories Council passed conservation regulations on August 14, 1877. Hunting for amusement was prohibited, and so was killing the animals solely for the purpose of cutting out their tongues which were delicacies. It was also against the law to drive the buffalo into pits and ravines where they could be easily trapped and killed.

The laws were disregarded and by 1880 the buffalo were almost extinct which caused great hardship among the Indians and Metis who needed them for food and clothes. By 1888 the U.S. Game report said there were only six buffalo in existence.

Fortunately, the report wasn't accurate. Norman Luxton, a colorful prairie pioneer who is commemorated by a museum at Banff, knew that Michael Pablo had a private herd of 1,000 buffalo in Monatana. Working with Frank Oliver, he persuaded the federal government to buy them, and establish the national park at Wainright, Alberta. Today the supply of buffalo is carefully controlled.

Other events on August 14:

1756 — Oswego, N.Y., surrendered to Montcalm.

1787 — Prince William (later King William IV) was at Quebec as captain of frigate Pegasus.

1848 — Act of Union amendment repealed clause that English be only official language in Canada.

1861 — One-quarter of Montreal was flooded.

1886 — Royal Commission appointed to investigate railways.

1934 — John S. Labatt was kidnapped for $150,000 ransom and was released in Toronto three days later.

1945 — Japan surrendered unconditionally.

1961 — Provincial premiers held conference at Charlottetown.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

The "backward" finesse is so called because it is taken in an unnatural way rather than in the way most players would consider natural. Generally speaking, this backward finesse might be considered an expert play, for it usually comes into being when "card-reading" indicates that the normal way of finessing will lose.

Both sides vulnerable. West deals.

| 1 ◇ | Pass | Pass | 1 ♡ |
| Pass | 2 ♡ | Pass | 3 ♡ |
| Pass | 4 ♡ | Pass | Pass |
| Pass | | | |

Opening lead: King of ◇

After West had cashed the king and ace of diamonds, he led the diamond queen, which South ruffed. The king of trumps was then led, East winning with the ace. East returned a trump, South taking the trick with the jack. He then cashed the 10 of trumps, picking up East's last piece. South now paused for examination.

It soon became obvious to him that West had the queen of clubs, since East had shown up with the ace of hearts. Had East also possessed the club queen, he would have had a good six points. And with six high-card points, he would not have passed West's one diamond opening bid.

The normal finesse would have been for South to lead a club to dummy's ace, then return a little club and put up the jack, finessing East for the queen. But this play couldn't be a winning one. So declarer took a "backward" finesse in this fashion:

He led the jack of clubs out of his own hand. Had West played low to this trick, declarer would also have played low from dummy, letting the jack ride. But West covered the jack with the queen, dummy's ace taking the trick.

The nine of clubs was then led off the board, and when East followed suit with a low club, so did South out of his own hand, finessing East for the 10-spot. As is evident, the nine-spot won the trick, and declarer had fulfilled contract.

Doomed Caribou Now Thrives in N.S. Preserve

INGONISH, N.S. (CP) — The woodland caribou, re-introduced to Nova Scotia during the last two years, appears to be thriving in the Cape Breton Highlands National Park.

The caribou, largest of the reindeer species, were once plentiful in Nova Scotia, but were hunted mercilessly in the 18th and 19th centuries and had disappeared by 1921.

Fifty-two caribou transported from Quebec have been turned loose in the 300-square-mile park in the last two years. The last herd of 32 was released here in March.

A park spokesman said that since then there have been 25 reports of caribou sightings.

The spokesman had "every hope" that the caribou would settle in the park. Some earlier experiments in transplanting the animals were not successful.

A small herd from Newfoundland was introduced in Nova Scotia's Guysborough County, but died off apparently because of poor handling in transport and during the release of the animals.

A herd of 24 Newfoundland caribou were moved to Mount Katahdin Park in northern Maine in 1963, but a state fish and game biologist at Patten, Me., said the animals were not breeding and would eventually die off.

The caribou once roamed eastern North America from Maine to Labrador and across northern Canada to British Columbia. But they fell victim to over-hunting and extensive woodcutting operations, and construction of highway and railway networks, which restricted movement of the herds.

In 1789 the herds were so prolific in Nova Scotia that the payment for moose and caribou hides was only 10 shillings.

New Clashes Dim Hope For More Viet Troop Cuts

PARIS (UPI) — United States Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge told the Vietnam peace conference today the renewed Communist offensive in South Vietnam has wrecked another hope for peace and hinted it may halt the withdrawal of more American troops.

Lodge told the Hanoi and Viet Cong delegations seated across the circular table at the 30th session of the conference, "By word and deed you show that you are not prepared for genuine negotiation . . . Your actions match your bellicose words."

Lodge added, as a rainstorm drummed on the windows of the conference room near the Arch of Triumph, "While 25,000 American soldiers are in the process of departing from South Vietnam and decisions are being taken on the departure of additional American forces, your army has been preparing systematically for a new offensive".

Later, he said, "We have hoped that the reports of a relative lull in the fighting in South Vietnam would begin to create an atmosphere in which genuine negotiations could take place, leading eventually to peace."

Capozzi Tackling Former Lineman

Herb Capozzi, the most successful general manager in the history of the British Columbia Lions football club, is being tackled by one of his former players in the Aug. 27 provincial election.

Mr. Capozzi, who guided the CFL club to its first and only Grey Cup victory in 1965, is seeking re-election in the Vancouver Centre riding on the Social Credit ticket along with car dealer Evan Wolfe.

In the New Democratic Party's Vancouver Centre lineup is Emery Barnes, 39, a lineman for the Lions for two years during the Capozzi regime. Barnes' running mate is lawyer Bill Deverall.

All four filed nomination papers Wednesday in Vancouver Centre along with Liberals Terry Devlin and Garry Miller.

And there's another former Lions executive running in North Vancouver—Seymour—Annis Stukus, the "loquacious Lithuanian" who was coach and general manager from 1953 to 1955.

Mr. Capozzi managed the club from 1957 until three months after the September, 1966, provincial election.

BEEFS LOUD AND LONG AFTER PM CUT SHORT

TORONTO (CP)—CBC switchboard operators say they were flooded with complaints Wednesday night when live television coverage of a news conference with Prime Minister Trudeau in Ottawa was cut short.

Mr. Trudeau, discussing government proposals to fight inflation, was in the middle of a sentence when the CBC turned its cameras to interviews with Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield and New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas.

Moments later the CBC switchboard was humming with calls from angry viewers.

CBC news editors said the cameras had to be taken off Mr. Trudeau because the prime minister had talked longer than expected and elaborate arrangements had been made for the Stanfield-Douglas interviews.

25,000 Jobs to Be Cut In PM's Hold-Line Plans

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau Wednesday night announced a tight hold-the-line on federal spending, and 10 hours later urban renewal projects were brought under the semi-freeze.

Earlier Wednesday, Defence Minister Leo Cadieux announced how his department was planning to hold its present budget for the next three years by closing or trimming operations at five military installations.

Under the new anti-inflationary guidelines, Mr. Trudeau announced that the freeze on federal spending will mean the elimination of 25,000 public service jobs—including some layoffs.

Robert Andras, minister without portfolio but with responsibility for housing, said today that his severe restrictions on urban redevelopment projects —pending development of a new over-all policy—is necessary because "it is just not possible for us to meet all the demands. . . ."

Mr. Trudeau said he hoped the economy program will ensure no increase in taxes next year.

FIGHT INFLATION

He appeared on both English- and French-language television networks to outline the program, which he said will help battle inflation and move the federal government toward greater efficiency.

He called the decision to freeze spending in the next fiscal year starting April 1 to the same dollar level as this year the key to the program. Spending this year is estimated at $11,000,000,000.

He also reaffirmed that defence spending in each of the next three years will be held to this year's level—$1,800,000,000. Other guidelines would be announced in the next few weeks.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield criticized waste and empire-building going on within the government, but promised support for any serious effort to fight inflation.

CALLS CURBS MEAT AXE

Using a spending freeze, however, was attacking the problem of inflation with a meat axe and making the civil service the goat of government policy.

Mr. Stanfield expressed concern about the effects the guidelines could have in depressed areas and said the government should temper austerity with humanity.

New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas said the announced economies would simply increase unemployment. There was nothing in the statement "that will really combat inflation."

Claude Edwards, president of the Public Service Alliance which represents 120,000 public servants, said the government should try to meet its employment target—10 per cent below the 1968 payroll of 236,736—by attrition instead of layoffs.

He said government hiring has been frozen for 17 months and inefficiency was beginning to show, as anyone who had tried to get a passport this summer knew.

He indicated, however, he does not expect strike talk to follow the move.

Mr. Trudeau gave this breakdown for ending 25,000 civil service jobs.

WON'T FILL POSTS

The 10,000 vacancies now existing due to the previous job freeze would not be filled. The government had reduced employment levels by 9,000 in this year's estimates and another 5,000 to 7,000 would disappear from the payroll during the coming fiscal year.

"This does not mean that 25,000 employees will lose their jobs," Mr. Trudeau said.

"Normal attrition through re-

COMMENDING Prime Minister Trudeau for taking "firm action to contain controlable government spending," was A. Searle Leach, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce. He said it is hoped other levels of government will take similar action. For other reaction to Trudeau's plans see story Page 40.

Assault-NDP Link By Bennett Booed

SALMON ARM (CP)—Premier Bennett was booed and jeered Wednesday when he told an election meeting the NDP was responsible for "the attack on Canada's prime minister the other day".

To boos and catcalls, the Social Credit premier told hecklers in a crowd of 500: "You know very well it was Berger (NDP leader Tom Berger) and the NDP who organized the attack. . . ."

A chorus of jeers and boos followed this statement. For several minutes, Mr. Bennett's words could barely be heard. But he was heard to say: "And they're here again, with the same tactics."

'GUTSY PEOPLE' —McGEER

Ending a 3,000 mile trip through northern B.C. with a visit to five ridings in the Williams Lake area, McGeer said of the isolated communities:

"I've got much respect for them. It's hard on the families, so rough on the men, but they're gutsy, they're good.

"I've really taken to them."

Berger Lauds Mill Control Of Pollution

He made a one-hour tour of the mill in the course of his campaign swing along the north shore and called the 2,200-employee plant "a good corporate citizen."

It was in sharp contrast to his attacks in Prince George on the Northwood pulp mill there.

"An NDP government's pollution control program, I'm confident, would have the full co-operation of the MacMillan Bloedel organization," he said.

OPEN-PIT MINE EYED NEAR SOOKE

By AB KENT

A major B.C. mining exploration company has begun initial survey work to determine the potential of a 300-claim, base-metals prospect on southern Vancouver Island.

The area, northwest along the coast from Sooke, has been described as being suited to open-pit mining operations, and would be subject to new mining legislation passed this year.

L. P. Starck, Vancouver, president of Giant Explorations Ltd., said his company has taken an option on property held by Macsan Explorations Ltd. in a 35-mile belt along the coast between East Sooke and Sombrio Point.

●

Giant Ex is the exploration company of Giant Mascot Mines Ltd., which has controlling interest.

The mineral claims straddle the Leech River fault and range up to eight miles inland. They are believed to be basically copper prospects, although sampling shows evidence of zinc, iron, silver, gold and other metals.

The Leech River is an historic placer gold source, and the Jordan River area has a former copper producer, the Sunro mine, which yielded a substantial quantity of concentrate before flooding problems were encountered.

●

Starck said $35,000 to $40,000 would be spent in geochemical and geophysical surveys and, in about a month's time, diamond drilling.

Work would cover at least six months and the option agreement would be extendable, Starck indicated.

Considerable surface work and diamond drilling of the property was done for three years in the and following a $180,000 public share issue by by Macsan in 1965. The company was formed in 1963.

Republican Army Poised at Border

LONDONDERRY (CP) — British troops moved into this Northern Ireland city today to halt religious rioting that raged unabated after Ulster's worst night of violence in years. Troops of the Republic of Ireland moved up to the western border.

The troops from Roman Catholic Southern Ireland moved to the area near Londonderry to support five field hospitals for treating injured from the predominantly Protestant North wanting to cross over.

The southern mobilization included transport and other support units in combat gear. The number of men involved was not announced.

Londonderry Riots Quelled

The Northern Ireland government said the British troops, already stationed here, moved in immediately to help hard-pressed police restore order.

A British force took up positions outside the Guildhall in Londonderry within 10 minutes after the government announced the move in Belfast, Northern Ireland's capital. The troops were fully armed, but their number was not known.

A government spokesman said the request to use British troops had been made by the inspector-general of the Royal Ulster Constabulary, the North's regular police force.

The request was granted by Lt.-Gen. Ian Harris, commander of about 5,000 British troops in Northern Ireland.

Britain's Prime Minister Wilson broke off his vacation to confer on the situation with his home secretary, James Callaghan, in southwest England.

The talks were believed to have centred on the use of British troops, something Wilson has resisted in the past.

The three-cornered governmental war of nerves erupted after a night of violence in which at least 10 persons were wounded in shooting incidents.

Homes, shops and public buildings in six major towns were set ablaze. And there were uncounted other injuries as the result of incidents other than shootings.

South Catholics Come to Aid

The sending of southern troops to positions close to Northern Ireland's border emphasized the special concern in the Roman Catholic republic for Londonderry, where the fighting was centred in Bogside, the Catholic community.

Dublin authorities said the mission of the Republican troops is to support and supply field hospitals for Northern Irish fleeing battles between Catholics and Protestants.

The southern Irish troops set up a headquarters at Letterkenny, about 15 miles from Londonderry where rioting has been virtually uncontrollable since Tuesday. A traditional Protestant parade that day set off the new round of religious strife.

The Northern Ireland government has called for help from British troops to stop the bloodshed. The Dublin government has proposed a United Nations peace force.

Although Dublin's announcement said the troops in trucks and jeeps moved to the border area to lend medical assistance, the army men carried weapons. A spokesman said the men normally deal with "communications, logistics and other support." The units, he added, are "being supplied by the appropriate army units." Strength of the units was not announced.

IN POSITION

Reports from the border area said the southern Irish troops were in positions only about a mile from the Bogside district, which is near the border.

The units are part of Ireland's 13,000-man permanent armed forces, which have seen duty in United Nations peace forces in The Congo and Cyprus.

The mobilization underscored the stunned reaction of the Irish Republic to the violence in Northern Ireland, still part of Britain.

Dublin observers quoted by Reuters said they doubted the southern government had any intention of sending its troops across the border.

Col. T. M. Elliott, director of the Southern Irish Medical Corps, flew by helicopter to Letterkenny to establish headquarters for five mobile hospitals.

READY TO FUNCTION

Officials said the hospitals with army staffs are ready to function and that mobile patrols of medical transports and security personnel were operating along the border.

A Dublin military spokesman said there has been no general mobilization order. He explained that only certain key officers have been recalled from military leave.

The fighting continued today and in Belfast, the Northern Ireland capital, John Cardinal Conway called on all Catholics to "do everything to avoid further

Russians Still Firing At Chinese

HONG KONG (Reuters) — China said today Russian troops still were firing at Chinese positions in central Asia, where a serious border clash took place Wednesday.

The New China news agency and Radio Peking, monitored here, also said Soviet troops were still moving reinforcements into the area.

Each side accused the other of starting Wednesday's bloody fighting. There also were mutual accusations of territorial violations.

China said many of its troops were killed or injured in the clash.

Peking radio said in a statement: "We sternly warn the Soviet government: The Chinese are not to be bullied. If you do not stop at once intrusion into Chinese territory and immediately withdraw all invading troops . . . you will be severely punished by the Chinese people."

A New China news agency dispatch said Russian troops fired on Chinese frontier guards in the same region Aug. 8, adding that bloodshed was avoided then because the Chinese exercised restraint.

ROSE-BLANSHARD

Chant, Black at Odds Over Linkup Possibility

BLACK

By JOHN DRISCOLL

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant told an all-candidates meeting Wednesday he is sure the Rose-Blanshard extension will be linked with the Patricia Bay Highway.

Stewart, a Victoria alderman, said the city knows of no plans for a link-up.

"Nothing has been done," he said.

Highways Minister Wesley Black, contacted in Nelson, refused to get involved in the controversy which is becoming an election hot-potato.

When Black was asked about the possibility of a link-up he referred to a press release issued by his department Wednesday.

LONG WAY AWAY

The release dealt exclusively with the Pat Bay widening project and made no mention of Rose-Blanshard.

Black did indicate any link-up is at least five or 10 years away.

"Don't forget I stressed at the beginning of the Pat Bay widening project that this would be an interim measure only, perhaps sufficient to handle traffic needs for five or 10 years," he said.

Victoria's million-dollar extension was built as part of an urban renewal scheme with federal financial assistance. It terminates at Tolmie and city aldermen contend they were assured by the province that it would be linked with the highway.

NO SUCH GUARANTEE

Chant, in answer to a question at the meeting concerning the situation, said he has asked the highways department to join the two highways.

"I am sure they will do it," he said.

Stewart jumped to his feet immediately and said the city has no such guarantee.

"We know of no plans for this. Since 1962 we've been asking for them."

Stewart said the interchange proposed for the highways widening at Saanich Road and Douglas near the Town and Country shopping centre was the stumbling block to the linkup.

TAX MONEY ON ADS

"This is an issue in this campaign that the people should sink their teeth into," he said.

When questioned further about the link-up prior to a cabinet meeting today Chant said he couldn't say exactly what the highways department would do.

"But I am quite sure it will be connected up one way or another."

At the meeting NDP candidates Peter Bunn and Phil Fawcett criticized the Socreds for spending taxpayers' money on balatant election ads.

"There has been a barrage of ads on pollution control and human rights legislation during this campaign," said Fawcett.

Chant said the ads were simply to inform the people of what the government has been doing. "This information is given out all year-round," he said.

Bunn said the government's concern with profit has resulted in disregard for human needs.

"I am concerned about the government attempt at cover-up of scandals, the 'let's look after our pals' attitude".

Fawcett attacked the government for the Eric Martin Instutute which he called a "monumnent of stupidity".

He said the $6 million centre for physiactric treatment was built against all the best psychiatric advice and was costing $2,000 a day though it remained empty.

Chant who was speaking on behalf of himself and fellow-Socred candidate Waldo Skillings who is ill said Fawcetts figures were not true.

"That building is completely paid for," he said. "There are no debt charges on it."

He said the building was constructed with the best continent-wide medical advice.

"If we had spread that building all over creation like some of the daydreamers wanted, it would have cost two to three times as much of the taxpayers' money."

New Pat Bay Still Plagued By Bottleneck

The Patricia Bay Highway widening program will provide two lanes for southbound traffic all the way from Swartz Bay to Victoria, Highways Minister Wesley Black said in a statement issued Wednesday.

Traffic northbound from Victoria, however, will face three bottlenecks in the form of narrowing from two-lane to one-lane roadway in a 4½-mile stretch.

Black's statement said "work on this section is a temporary measure, which should ease traffic congestion considerably."

Construction standards of the highway, a contentious matter in the decade since the B.C. government ferries started operating from Swartz Bay, has again emerged as an issue in the current election campaign. Black's statement was apparently issued in response to criticism of the widening program being voiced by several local candidates.

•

There will be a single lane northbound for 1½ miles from Beaver Lake to Cordova Bay Road.

It will broaden to four lanes for an uphill mile between Cordova Bay Road to approximately the Saanich - Central Saanich boundary.

Then it narrows again to three lanes to Island View Road.

That stretch will be widened for a brief section at Tanner Road to provide a left-turn lane for northbound traffic.

The first mile of the project, from Carey Road junction north of Victoria, is expected to be completed by the end of September, the highways department says.

The next 2.2-mile stretch, which will be built to full limited-access standard from Rogers Avenue to Beaver Lake, is awaiting right-of-way acquisition and removal of some houses.

The final 6½ miles, connecting with the present four-lane stretch from Swartz Bay, is under contract and work on service roads is expected to start immediately.

•

The highways department says this will be a full limited-access, four-lane highway with a paved median.

Some right-of-way negotiations are still in progress. Frontage and service roads will be built first to provide alternate routes while the main reconstruction work is under way.

Target date for completion of the 6½-mile fourth section is the beginning of next year's tourist season.

The entire project will not be finished until the end of 1970 because of land acquisition problems in the 2.2-mile second section. This is the "toughest" part, says the highways department, because it involves construction of two interchanges.

DESPITE OTTAWA CUTBACKS

Wharf St. Go-Ahead Seen

City and provincial government officials were optimistic today that Victoria's $30 million Wharf Street waterfront development plan will not be affected by waterfront development plan will not be affected by new federal government restrictions on urban renewal aid.

Robert Andras, minister in charge of housing, said today municipalities with urban renewal schemes now in preparation should either suspend them or go ahead without any assurance of federal help until Ottawa has worked out a long-term policy on urban renewal.

Estimated public expenditure in the Wharf Street project is $3 million, of which the provinical government will pay about $743,000.

The plan, unveiled in June, 1968, envisions a facelift for 44 waterfront acres in an area bordered by Government and Johnson.

UNIQUE

The plan is considered unique, planners say, because with a minimum of public investment the city will be able to attract a maximum of private investment into the area.

One developer, Reid Properties Ltd. of Vancouver, announced in March it will undertake a $25 million revitalization program on Wharf Street which will include two 19-storey high-rise apartments, a 25-storey hotel, a marina, a theatre and restaurants.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, contacted in Campbell River, said there is reason to believe Andras favors the kind of redevelopment envisaged for the Wharf Street area.

NO BULLDOZING

"When I spoke with Andras in Vancouver I told him we are pushing for the kind of urban renewal we have in Victoria, not the bulldozer kind."

He said the federal government should favor projects like the one for the Victoria waterfront "to the extent that they will trigger additional development, rather than sweep out whole areas."

Andras "thought very much the way I did."

City planner Geoff Greenhalgh said there is no way of knowing yet whether the Wharf Street plan will be affected by the federal clampdown.

"I think we've shown quite clearly in the Acres report that the public investment is minimal compared to the private investment to follow.

RIGHT CATEGORY

"If they're looking for projects with minimal investment and optimum return, then the Wharf Street plan certainly falls into that category."

Greenhalgh said there is danger the federal government action will undermine the confidence of private investment in urban renewal projects.

GREENHALGH

"The work we've been doing over the last few years has been to reinforce the confidence of private enterprise."

The Reid project, to be located directly on the waterfront between Bastion Square and the old HMCS Malahat building, will necessitate removal of the Ocean Cement plant.

Greenhalgh and Ocean Cement vice-president D. E. Smith both agreed negotiations between the city and the company are "going ahead very well."

Dam Job Awarded For Jordan R.

The $9,548,000 contract went to Emil Anderson Construction Co. Ltd. of Hope, the same company that is building a 3½-mile power tunnel to replace a wooden flume which has carried water to the existing generating plant for more than 50 years.

The redeveolpment at Jordan River is expected to provide peaking power for Vancouver Island when it is completed in 1971, B.C. Hydro said in making the announcement.

NUCLEAR PLANT

But Dr. Gordon Shrum, chairman of B.C. Hydro, has predicted that continually increasing demands on the power supply will make a further project, possibly a nuclear power plant, necessary after 1975.

"There will have to be another larger project to meet the load growth, and a decision about this will have to be made by 1975 at the latest," he said.

Under the contract, Emil Anderson will build the new dam 1½ miles downstream from the existing Diversion Dam, which was built between 1909 and 1911.

Both Diversion Dam and Bear Creek Dam, five miles upstream, are to be improved under the present redevelopment program.

LOW-LEVER OUTLETS

The new dam will be called Elliott Dam after J. M. Elliott, former superintendent of the Jordan River Generating Station.

Anderson will also build the station to house a 218,000-horsepower turbine and generator unit.

A further contract for low-level outlets at Elliott and Diversion Dams was awarded by B.C. Hydro to Newton Chambers Engineering Ltd., at a cost of $219,000.

The Singing Candidate Makes Opponents Squirm

There sat five Victoria riding candidates in the University of Victoria Students' Union Building Wednesday.

"I do not crave for wealth or power supreme.

"I do not grieve and think what might have been

"I do not envy those of high degree

"Though poor I be, though poor I be."

The other candidates squirmed uncomfortably in their chairs. Scott sang on in a high, sometimes quavering voice. He remained on-key.

"When my small part is finished here for you

"Granting to me if I have served you right

"A vote for Bill Scott, a vote for Bill Scott."

The audience of more than 100, most of them students, were at first startled then amused, and finally grateful for the musical interlude.

He later explained that he used a song instead of a speech because he was the "candidate of youth."

He told his young audience not to repeat the mistakes of his own generation.

"Especially fight against the nonsensical idea that it is better to die for your country than to live for it," he said.

A former lighthouse maintenance supervisor and rest home operator who now is a pawnbroker, Scott said he respected other parties but that he deserved the second vote in Victoria riding more than the second candidate for each party.

FIRED BERGER

"I'm making my political comeback and it's aimed against Waldo Skillings and NDP leader Tom Berger," he said.

Scott accused Waldo Skillings of leading the purge against himself when both were Socreds and said of Berger, "I hired him as my lawyer and later fired him."

He said this was the first time he had campaigned as the singing candidate but added, "I have always been known for my originality."

Scott also attacked the Victoria Times which he contended "has tried to keep me down. You'll find the power behind the Liberals hidden away at the Times," he said.

EX-JAIL WORKER FINED FOR SHOPLIFTING

Judge William Ostler again warned today he will mete out stiffer penalties for shoplifting.

He fined John Macko, a retired Kingston penitentiary steward, $250 for stealing two raincoats from a department store after city prosecutor John Mcintyre told the court shoplifting is "getting out of hand."

The usual fine is $100.

A department store official later confirmed that stores in general are sustaining heavy losses due to thefts of merchandise.

"About $600 worth of merchandise is stolen from our store in a day," he said. "In the end it's the consumer who pays for these losses. It is passed on to him.

'RESPECTED CITIZENS'

One merchant said shoplifters came from all classes.

"A few weeks ago we apprehended a doctor's wife," he said.

The city prosecutor was appalled by the large number of apparently respected and sober citizens streaming out of department stores with stolen property.

It was quite apparent, he said, that the fines imposed on shoplifters in the past, were not acting as a deterrent.

Judge Ostler agreed.

With regards to Macko, the judge said his act was reprehensible in view of his former occupation in a penitentiary.

Arthur Mayse . . .

THE HEAD OF A SIZEable family called on me one morning this week. He was a sad and worried man. For years, he and his wife had been socking away their not too plentiful dollars for a project that would boost their present income and supplement Harry's pension when he downed tools.

This was to build a duplex, live in one unit, and rent the other.

In theory, it was a sound idea. But in practice, it hasn't worked out that way.

★

Earlier this summer, they got in touch with a small contractor, inspected some of his work, and made a deal. They paid for the plan, made a down payment on a lot the contractor owned, and turned over a further sum against the cost of the duplex.

It was also agreed in writing that if a mortgage couldn't be obtained, the couple would get their money back minus the cost of the plan.

Perhaps they should have saved more and waited longer. In any case, they failed to get a mortgage.

★

They waited what they felt was a reasonable time for the return of their down payment. Then they tried without success to hurry the contractor. Finally Harry took his copy of the agreement to a lawyer, who found that he had a valid claim, and prodded the contractor with a letter.

More time passed.

Harry was reluctant to proceed farther. He feared that the lawyer's fee would take a considerable bite from the $900 he hoped to recover.

At this point in his account, I phoned the Better Business Bureau to find that Harry's wife had already called, and that Bureau Manager William D. Tindall was looking into the matter.

But, though the duplex must wait, his story has a halfway happy ending. The contractor's cheque arrived that same morning.

Harry and his wife were luckier than most who blunder into dubious deals.

First, it is highly unwise to prepay on a contract of the sort he entered into.

It would have been much better policy to insist that the money be held in trust by a third party agreed upon by both the contractor and themselves.

★

Further, they could have saved themselves a good deal of worry and delay by a preliminary call to the Better Business Bureau or to the Amalgamated Construction Association of B.C.

Both hold to the principle that prevention is better — and infinitely easier — than cure.

★

A subcommittee of city council is studying such a system. If adopted, it would drastically reduce the number of fly-by-nights who infest the building trades fringe.

I asked branch secretary E. J. Phillips of the Amalgamated Construction Association how the householder with a construction or repair project in the offing could best protect himself from larceny.

His suggestions:

Avail yourself of the association's 170-member list of general contractors and specialists. All are carefully checked out before acceptance into the association.

Remember that large contracting firms will undertake minor repairs.

Keep in mind, too, that Canadian Construction Association contracts approved by the Royal Architectural Institute of Canada can be had from the local branch office.

They cover any construction or repair job that may come up, and are written in simple English, with no small print.

Cost is 25 cents, and such a contract could save you loss and trouble.

★

There are plenty of skilled and honest operators about. But there are others who will seek to collect prices not even vaguely related to their estimates for shoddy work.

Best advice of all is this. Know who you're dealing with. If you don't know, find out. It isn't hard to do, and may save you plenty.

Manitoba Gets New Law Plans

WINNIPEG (CP) — throne speech crammed with proposed legislation today dispelled forecasts by Premier Ed Schreyer that the summer session of the Manitoba legislature would be a housekeeping chore.

The speech, delivered by Lt.-Gov. Richard S. Bowles at the opening of the first session of New Democratic Party power in the province's history, forecast at least 20 pieces of legislation.

A promise by Mr. Schreyer in the June 25 election campaign to take immediate action to reduce medical care premiums was taken care of in the speech.

After the party's narrow victory in defeating the Conservative government of Walter Weir, Mr. Schreyer said the reduction would be a priority item in what he hoped would be a four-to-six-week summer session.

The speech forecast the government would move to "reduce substantially" the premiums, but did not spell out details on financing. The premiums now are $9.80 a month for families.

NEED MORE MONEY

"In order to provide funds from consolidated revenue for this purpose there will have to be increases in revenue estimates at the present session or for the next fiscal year," the speech said.

The government has been studying methods of shifting costs to another source but believes an immediate tax increase would not be necessary in view of increased revenues.

The speech said the program presented is only a "modest portion" of what the government plans during its tenure.

Among other major legislation forecast is establishment of an ombudsman, lowering the voting age to 18 from 21, consumer protection measures, changes in agriculture marketing boards and changes in workmen's compensation benefits.

A large portion of the 1,600-word speech was taken up with plans to reform the legislative operation on the lines of recent changes made in the House of Commons.

Reorganization of government departments, initiated by the Weir administration, is to be held until the NDP has time to assess their operation. However, the speech indicated the government is studying setting up a department of urban affairs and that legislation could be introduced this session.

PLAN HARD LOOK

The speech said the reassessment of government structure is considered necessary as an essential prelude to plans they (the government) have for re-evaluating all programs of government."

The government plans an all-party committee to study parliamentary reform and "to propose measures to improve the efficiency of government, to strengthen the role of the legislature in regard to the executive arm of government, and to increase public involvement in the affairs of government."

"As part of this process," the speech said, "it is proposed to appoint two members of the legislative assembly to assist my ministers in their duties."

The speech offers increased grants to urban transit systems, now based on three per cent of gross revenue and expected to climb to five per cent. These grants involve systems in Winnipeg, Brandon and Flin Flon.

The municipalities are to get greater authority to spend money and create debts for projects they have chosen for the province's centennial in 1970.

Manitoba Gets NDP Speaker

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba's New Democratic Party government elected a Speaker from its own ranks Wednesday, setting up the chance of a tie vote in the legislature which opens today.

Premier Ed Schreyer announced the nomination of Ben Hanuschak (NDP—Burrows) as Speaker, after apparently unsuccessful attempts to have Jake Froese (SC—Rhineland) and former Speaker James Bilton (PC—Swan River) accept the post as Manitoba's first permanent Speaker.

. . . BENNETT

In Vancouver earlier Wednesday, Bill Rathie, a former Vancouver mayor seeking election for Social Credit Aug. 27, said what happened to Mr. Trudeau was 'all planned by admitted NDP supporters."

Mr. Berger, asked to comment on Mr. Rathie's accusation, said: "That's the same sort of hysterical nonsense we hear from the premier. It's baseless and everyone knows it."

He had made much the same comment Tuesday when Mr. Bennett accused him of calling a bus stoppage, caused by pickets set up by striking oil workers in Vancouver and Victoria.

Mr. Bennett's campaign meeting in Salmon Arm was punctuated by what observers called the worst heckling he has faced so far in the campaign for the Aug. 27 general election.

Mr. Bennett told hecklers they reminded him of the people who caused a disturbance in Vancouver Friday. They booed and he then accused the NDP of organizing "the attack" on Mr. Trudeau.

Hecklers booed once more.

Inquest Ordered

Coroner Edmond St. Jorre said today he will order an inquest into the death of Ernest Brian Modeste, 19, of 1077 Modeste Road.

Modeste died from injuries received in a traffic accident Wednesday.

Esquimalt police said today they had not completed investigations into the accident.

They said the young man was apparently a passenger in a car which collided head-on with another vehicle on Esquimalt Road. The accident occurred at 3:14 a.m.

Modeste died in St. Joseph's Hospital four hours later.

Clifford Crawford of 1328 Clover, and Michael Davies, 23, of 467 Lampson, were also injured in the accident. They are both in satisfactory condition in hospital.

escalation of violence." He is the Roman Catholic primate of Ireland.

He criticized the Northern Irish government for permitting the Apprentice Boys parade to be staged Tuesday.

The fighting spread from Londonderry Wednesday night to nine cities and towns.

It was during these outbursts that the Irish Republic appealed to the British government to call for a UN peace force to restore order.

London replied that Northern Ireland was no business of the Dublin-based Irish Republican government, or of the United Nations.

Downtown Londonderry, where the current violence began during a Protestant parade Tuesday, was set aflame and ravaged by more than 4,000 Catholics and Protestants.

FIRE 30 SHOTS

Police Wednesday night fired 30 shots to scatter one group of gasoline bombers in Londonderry. They opened fire again early today to protect themselves from fire bombs thrown from a warehouse.

As the gunfire and arson spread from town to town, Northern Ireland—or Ulster—became engulfed in its gravest crisis since Ireland was partitioned in North and South 49 years ago.

Gunfire was reported in three other centres including Belfast, seat of the Ulster government, and six persons were hit by bullets.

At least 10 persons were wounded by bullets during the night in towns across Northern Ireland. Police put the official casualty total this morning at 160 but estimates put the number injured at several hundred. So far, no deaths have been reported.

The toll of injuries to police was heavy. At least 60 were reported injured in the latest round of hostilities. At least 90 were hurt Tuesday.

In Belfast, two fire chiefs were badly burned when a gasoline bomb was hurled into their car.

NOW UNDER CONTROL

Belfast police said the situation generally was under control this morning.

Worst of the night's fighting and arson took place in Londonderry, the border town of Newry—still barricaded by rioters this morning—Dungannon and Dungiven.

A pro-government newspaper in Belfast, The Newsletter, claimed that many of the rioters in Newry crossed into the town from the Irish Republic.

The Derry Citizens Association, a Catholic political group from Bogside, added to the aura of insurrection by declaring that "after 50 years of (Protestant) unionist tyranny we have finally come to the crunch. Either we smash unionism now or we go back to sleep for another 50 years."

"Therefore, the Derry Citizens Association calls on every able-bodied man in Ireland willing to take a stand against unionist dictatorship to come into this city. We need them—we will feed them."

He warned that his Protestant government "will not shrink from any necessary measure, however firm or unpalatable."

Premier Jack Lynch of the Irish Republic coupled his call for UN action with a demand that the British government open talks to review "the entire constitutional position" of Northern Ireland, meaning its separation from the republic.

Lynch charged the Belfast government had lost control and that its Protestant police force was no longer capable of acting impartially. He said Ireland could not "stand by" and see innocent people wounded, and he ordered his army to set up first aid stations on the border to help injured Catholics.

. . . 25,000 JOBS TO BE CUT

trement, resignations and the like amount to about 10 per cent of the work force each year. This has greatly facilitated the adjustments required in the past year and will facilitate those that will have to be made in the coming months."

He warned, however, that attrition will not do the whole job and there will be some layoffs. He declined to be pinned down at his news conference which followed his TV statement on where the layoffs could come or how many might be involved.

Mr. Trudeau said that, as part of the government's austerity, it will be taking a look at its foreign embassies, possibly closing some and reducing staff in others.

He also said the federal government will not enter into any more open-ended shared-cost agreements with the provinces so it will be able to estimate its future costs more accurately.

FEARS A DISASTER

The prime minister said that if the government does not take some action to control its spending, the country will be on the road to financial disaster.

Since 1960, federal spending had almost doubled to $11,000,000,000. If no changes in spending patterns were made, it would jump another 50 per cent to $17,500,000,000 by 1975—with just the existing programs.

He said that the guidelines also indicate the government's priorities for spending.

While defence would be frozen, spending on programs for regional development, low-income housing and assistance for Indians and Eskimos would rise.

Transportation, communication and general government services would have to get along "under severe budgetary limits."

What the spending freeze means is that government departments will have to bear the brunt of inflationary pressures instead of passing them on to taxpayers, he said.

The time had passed when government departments should plan for annual increases in their budgets and staffs simply because the population was growing.

"That idea is being replaced by improved management of human resources to obtain more productivity from the public service.

"They are being paid more now, the taxpayer has every right to expect more from them."

Mr. Trudeau repeated the call for co-operation by business, labor and the consumer to reduce inflationary pressures.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

The operator of a large auto repair establishment in New England had a statistically minded daughter who helped him learn just what kind of weather brought out the most work in his eight mechanics. She kept a daily record of their individual work for two years and then fed the figures to a computer centre.

The best working weather for mechanics was April. January and February were almost as productive, and March, although a cool-weather month, was not a top work month.

You may have guessed by now what month was responsible for the lowest production per man. It was August. The mechanics obviously didn't feel very much like working in August, so the garage owner now closes up in late August and sends all of the men on vacation.

Bill WALKER

A funny thing happened on the way to the office Wednesday.

It was Moe Norman, oddball, and no dispute permitted.

Moe is the merry madcap of the Canadian Professional Golfer tour, which is stopping by at Uplands Golf Club this week.

The dramatic role is the British Columbia Open golf championship, of which Norman and his buddies are a part.

I was warned that as The Crown Prince of golf, Norman would transcend reality. And for a while he did.

First of all, if you say "Hi," he might, and then again, he might open a bottle of pop. Then if you again say "Hi," he might not, and he might open a bottle of pop.

But he must be all right, even if he seems all wrong, and the tournament must be all right, even if the name seems all wrong. For Norman drinks coke, not Carlings, which is what the sponsor sells.

The other part is the thought that if his behaviour is as disordered as he makes it appear, then it seems illogical to suggest that behind the buffoonery is a highly accomplished athlete.

But such is the case.

●

Yesterday, for example, he shot a leisurely 66, with about six or seven pops on the side. His friends say he could raise that to a dozen or so, pops that is, if the pressure starts to build later in the week, with a couple more 66s on the side.

Because that too is Moe Norman.

He doesn't like interviews and appears suspicious of people, but that doesn't stop him from talking.

And talk he can, and will, to the gallery, to his opponents, to any newly-found friends passing by. And he will have the gallery talking too, and to themselves most likely as he talks just as fast as he plays, and plays just as fast as it takes him to put down a bottle of pop and pick it up again.

"Blink, and you miss it," said Uplands pro John Wren.

And if you are a camera bug, be warned and be ready. You've probably heard this story before, but it bears repeating.

Moe said, "Sure, but you gotta be quick."

The woman bent over to adjust her camera and then looked up only to see Moe hurrying down the fairway after his ball.

●

Wednesday, it happened here. While playing the 18th, Norman put his second about 15 feet from the flag. A few spectators gathered, one turned to call a friend to come and see, and when he looked back the ball was going in the hole. Moe had a birdie for his 66.

Historically, the Norman story is a waggish one.

Before he turned pro, he was a ranking amateur in Ontario, a champion of many tournaments and the Canadian amateur champion.

But there was a bit of the bufoon about him too.

He used to hitch-hike around the Ontario tournament circuit, slept in the park, or under the bench, or in a car, accepted loans for expenses, lived on pop and hot dogs, set several club records, many of which still stand; and sold his trophies as fast as he won them because as he said then:

"I don't want to be in the hardware business."

He went pro only when he was told he was no longer an amateur because he had accepted financial help.

He played on the U.S. gold trail for a time, won a few dollars, upset a few of the staid campaigners with his zany style and now is doing the same thing right here in town.

●

He shies away from microphones and ducks newsmen, but doesn't get lost as quickly as a pro as he did as an amateur when at times he wouldn't bother to show up for the prize presentations.

He says of it:

"What do I need publicity for? So, I can hit a ball off a pop bottle, off a four-inch tee, and off an eight-inch tee! I got no training for any other job."

Although it must, with haste, be pointed out that although most will stand and gape at his antics and come back for more, don't wonder at his success.

For his insistence that the quickest way to win a golf tournament is the fastest way from tee to green, and away, is no reason to believe he has neglected any of the fundamentals along that way.

For he has all the shots, though some say his putting must be suspect because of the haste. But mostly his is a game of supreme bliss with the confident self-assurance of a successful man in a hurry.

And the charge, implied or otherwise, that his exasperating tactics are designed solely to confuse players and spectators alike, should never be misunderstood.

For he is second high-man on the dollar totem pole of winnings by professionals in Canada this year.

Sure he's crazy — like a fox.

GOING FOR FOUR TRIUMPHS is Bobby Cox, of Vancouver, as impressive field of 114 pros and 90 amateurs prepares for Friday's opening shots in British Columbia Open golf tournament at Uplands. # They Marched, Marked And Some Bagged Birds

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Wednesday was march and mark day.

Today is the pro-am prelude.

It rates as one of the strongest golf fields ever assembled. Testimony, quickly, was supplied in Wednesday's warmup rounds as sub-par shooters came out in force.

EAGLES NOT RARE

Birdies were bagged by the wholesale lot. Eagles aren't quite as rare as the migratory bird act would have you believe as professionals and a flock of top-flight amateurs charted their way around the 6,215-yard Uplands course.

Tommy Moryson, a six-foot-four probational professional from Vancouver, bagged seven "birds" and one eagle en route to a 65 around the par-70 course.

Montreal professional Gary Slatter also enjoyed a birdie feast with another five-under-par 65.

TRAPP HITS 68

Bespectabled Finn Sorenson of Edmonton and big Bob Boldt of Eugene, Ore., both had 67 in their practice tours; Frank Whitbey of Toronto and Victoria Club assistant Vaughan Trapp were among the several to check in with 68s.

The 69 shooters were as common as beets in borsch.

Mainly, however, Wednesday's marches were for charting. Players long-stepped off their own yardage and spotted up markers they'll use when the serious shooting starts for the major share of the $10,000 purse and the Carling Trophy.

Also at stake is qualification for the world's richest tournament — the Alcan "Golfer-of-the-Year" championship, to be played in Portland, Sept. 25-28.

Canadian hopefuls add their best two 54-hole totals from the Ontario, Quebec and B.C. Opens to their 72-hole CPGA score and the low man goes to Portland, guaranteed of at least $2,000 and a chance at the $55,000 top prize.

It Takes a Palmer To Clip Ex-Champ

Seattle golfer Robert Palmer stopped Bill Blakely of Portland in his seventh bid for the Seniors North West Association title with a quarter-final upset at Victoria Golf Club Wednesday.

Palmer defeated Blakely 2 and 1 during the 47th annual tournament.

Meanwhile, two other former champions and the current title holder advanced into today's semi-final rounds.

The 1966 title-winner, Dr. George Bigelow tangles with defending champion Harry Givan of Seattle, who scored an 8 and 6 victory over Don Woodard of Walla Walla, Wash.

Bigelow was a 5 and 4 winner over Fran Andrews of Portland.

Blakely first won the title in 1957, then took it in 1959, 1960, 1962, 1963, and 1965.

Another ex-champion, Ed Eisenhower, who won in 1958, reached the semi-final for the over-75-years-of-age group.

He will meet Mike Sanford while a match between Harold Nicholls and Floyd Volk will determine the other finalist.

Coughlan Shatters Another Swim Mark

MONTREAL (CP) — Angela Coughlan of Toronto Wednesday broke her third record in three days at the national swimming championships in suburban Pointe Claire.

Miss Coughlan bettered her Canadian mark in the 400-metre freestyle with a time of 4:37.3. Her old mark of 4:39.8 was set last year.

Meanwhile, Jane Wright of Etobicoke, Ont., and Vancouver's Bill Mahony twice broke their Canadian native records in Wednesday's women's and men's 100-metre breaststroke.

Miss Wright qualified for the finals in the morning with a record time of 1:19.5, then set another record in the evening with a time of 1:19.1. The old mark of 1:20.5 was held by Sylvia Dockerill of Vancouver.

Mahony, the leading qualifier in the morning's heats in 1:09.0, covered the distance in the evening in 1:08.7. Mahony set the old record of 1:09.3 last August.

Other winners in Wednesday's finals were Vancouver's Donna-Marie Gurr in the 200-metre backstroke and George Smith of Edmonton in the men's 400-metre freestyle.

Miss Gurr was a member of the Vancouver Dolphins women's relay team which set a native record in the 800-metre freestyle relay with a time of 9:25.8, breaking their own record of 9:26.4 set last August. Other team members are Sylvia Dockerill, Leslie Cliff and Elaine Clark.

The Dolphins' male team of Ron Jacks, Peter Harrower, Stephen Roxborough and Ken Campbell also established a native record in the 800-metre freestyle relay. Their time was 8:22.9, 7.2 seconds faster than the old mark held by the Pointe Claire Aquatic Club of Montreal.

Vancouver Island swimmers did not fare well at the meet, but a man's relay team from Port Alberni finished third in the 800-metre freestyle event.

Bill Frank Waived

SAN DIEGO — Tackle Bill Frank, former Toronto Argonaut, has been placed on waivers by San Diego Chargers of the American Football League. He played out his CFL option last season.

Only One L'il Step More for B.C. Team

Collingwood Gains Berth In Finals

By STEVE HUME

Vancouver Collingwood squeaked into the Canadian Little League championship final on an Edmonton Hardisty error in the bottom of the sixth inning Wednesday evening.

And Valleyfield, Quebec, scrambling desperately to stay alive after a disappointing first game, rallied to a stunning upset that eliminated Ontario's powerful Galt Nationals in an afternoon game.

Hardisty bowed 5-4 to the B.C. champions in a semifinal cliffhanger that produced the worst pitching and by far the most spectacular infield play of the tournament, while Quebec methodically worked over Ontario for a 7-3 win.

KEY GAME TONIGHT

Tuesday's action at Hampton Park moved Vancouver directly into Friday night's final, and set up Quebec and Edmonton, who met in the tourney opener, for a head-on clash which will eliminate one team tonight at 6 p.m.

Playing in bright sunshine before 1,750 evening fans, Edmonton rallied from a second-inning disaster that gave away four runs to tie the game in the top of the fifth.

But in the bottom of the sixth, with two Vancouver batters out, Hardisty pitching broke down for the second time and a hard single by Jim Griffiths that got by left fielder Tom Gruninger drove in the winning run.

It was a hard loss for Tom Betts, who led the team to victory Tuesday with a coldly professional performance on the mound, and he watched in helpless disbelief, almost in tears, as the ball got loose.

From his alternate position at shortstop, where he rests from duties as the club's top hurler, Betts put in an outstanding performance, masterminding infield moves, consistently snuffing out Vancouver threats with plays to first, and providing much of Edmonton's offensive punch.

CONTROL PROBLEM

Gruninger, starting as pitcher for Hardisty, developed control problems with his first batter, and progressively got worse, walking seven men before Doug Sather relieved him in the third.

QUICK RETURN

The blow to morale should have been devastating, but Hardisty refused to fold, dug in, and came up with three runs in the top of the third.

With two out, Tom Bateman on first from a single, and the Vancouver infield looking extremely formidable, Duncan Knoll walked.

Coflin followed with a hard single down the third base line that drove in two runs.

Sather, in relief, also had control problems, but ironed them out to hold Vancouver scoreless until the bottom of the sixth.

In the meantime, Vancouver manager Bill Grindlay relieved Nassey with first baseman Robbie Hannah in the top of the fourth, and the new pitcher immediately ran into trouble an inning later.

Quebec's upset hinged on the pitching performance of tiny Guy Provost who has struck out 30 batters for his club during playoff action.

Roughies Rock Hapless Lions

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa Rough Riders soared to their third straight victory Wednesday night, trouncing British Columbia Lions 41-24 in a Canadian Football League game.

Halfback Vic Washington romped 85 yards for one touchdown and took a pass from quarterback Russ Jackson for another as the undefeated Riders opened a three-point lead over Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the Eastern Conference.

"I've never seen a better offensive team in Canada—you just don't stop combinations like Ottawa has," said Lions coach Jim Champion.

"We've got a long way to go, a long, long way, before we can match a team like Ottawa," Champion said.

But Ottawa coach Frank Clair said the Lions' future isn't at all grim.

The Vancouver team will gain both confidence and victories as the season progresses, Clair predicted.

THROWS FOR THREE TDs

Lions quarterback Paul Brothers was good on 17 of 31 pass attempts for 206 yards and threw touchdown passes to Lefty Hendrickson, Jake Scott and Jim Young.

Lions' kicking specialist Ted Gerela kicked two singles and converted two touchdowns. The team's remaining two points came in the fourth quarter when Ottawa's Bill Van Burkleo fumbled on a third-down punt and was thrown in his own end by Daye Easley.

Jackson, besides throwing to Washington for a touchdown, tossed two other payoff scores to flanker Whit Tucker and tight end Jay Roberts.

Don Sutherin, the EFC's leading scorer, rounded out the Riders' total with two field goals, four converts and a single after Van Burkleo took over at quarterback in the fourth quarter and combined with Darwin Gonnerman for an 18-yard pass-and-run score.

TOOK EARLY LEAD

The Riders built up a 23-1 lead in the first quarter and led 31-15 at the half before 20,315 fans.

Tucker was Jackson's favorite receiver, catching eight passes for 173 yards. Adkins collared four for 110 yards.

Scott caught three passes for the Lions for 73 yards and Hendrickson picked off three for 36.

Washington scrambled 133 yards for the Riders on 12 carries. Jim Mankins carried eight times for 34 yards.

Ottawa rushed for six first downs and picked up 19 on passing. The Lions rushed for seven and got eight in the air.

'Bellies Clinch Second Place

The victory clinched no worse than a tie for second for the visitors and left Rocks eight points behind Vancouver and the final playoff spot with five games remaining.

Victoria, bolstered by some solid netminding from George Grover, held Salmonbellies to only a 7-5 lead until late in the second period when a controversial call seemed to crumble the Rocks' will to win.

FANS OBJECT

Referee Barry Ballance ruled that a shot by Charn Dhillon failed to score, provoking a response from the majority of 1,073 fans who thought otherwise.

Only solo efforts by brothers Tom and Denis Somner broke a string of eight New Westminster goals in the final 20 minutes.

Al Lewthwaite scored three goals and helped on another three to lead Salmonbellies while Ken Winzoski, returned from Toronto of the Eastern Association, added two goals and two assists to some strong defensive manoeuvring.

Bates Recruit Glen Langsett For Playoffs

Bate Construction bowed 2-1 to an all-star squad from the Major Men's Softball League on Wednesday night at Central Park.

Bob Lowe, scoring ahead of Goudie, had the only other hit off Bate hurlers Gord Huston and reliever Glen Langsett, former Victorian now residing in Trail who was recruited by Bate for the Alberta-B.C. senior "A" playoffs.

The Victorians will face Edmonton in their first game of the Calgary playoffs at 2 p.m. Saturday. The other two teams, Lethbridge and Calgary, meet later Saturday.

ONTARIO SIX STROKES AHEAD . . . . . . IN CANADIAN EVENT

Cue from Caddy Helps Golfing Scholar

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — "The caddy told me where to hit it and I did."

That's how physical education student Leonard Thompson, 22, of Laurenburg, N.C., described the six-under-par 66 that gave him the first-round lead in the Canadian amateur championship at the 6,681-yard Westmount Golf and Country Club Wednesday.

Thompson arrived late Tuesday night and didn't have time for a practice round.

"The young caddy (15-year-old Ken Herchenrader) really knew what he was doing. If he told me to hit a nine-iron, I hit it."

Thompson had five birdies in the last six holes and a two-shot lead over Dick Siderowf, 32, of Westport, Conn.

Siderowf's 68 included three birdies in the last four holes. He is a U.S. Walker Cup team member.

Leading Canadians were Gary Cowan, 30, of Kitchener and Ken Trowbridge of Bolton, Ont. Both shot 70 and helped the Ontario interprovincial team to a six-stroke lead in the Willingdon Cup matches, held concurrently with the championship.

Ontario's four-man team is at 289, followed by British Columbia at 295 and Alberta at 300.

The Willingdon Cup ends today and the winner is the team with the low total for 36 holes.

The field for the amateur will be reduced to the low 60 and ties at the end of today's play.

Five strokes off the pace at 71 were Wayne McDonald of Hornby, Ont., and Bobby Bourne of Oberlin, Ohio.

Man Soon To Be Extinct as Dodo, Woman MP Claims

TORONTO (CP) — Man may soon join the dod and dinosaur in extinction if he does not change his backward Social concepts, Grace MacInnis, NDP memberof Parliament for Vancouver-Kingsway, said Thursday.

She told the annual meeting of the Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario man must accept the idea that the earth is for people and for all people.

"Instead of spending $100,000,000,000 on a war in Vietnam, we must spend it and much more on providing the kind of environment that will produce fine human beings, regardless of who they are or where they live.

"Today we need people to utter a new kind of blasphemy, the blasphemy that mankind cannot be saved by the endless creation of wealth and pwer.

"Without this new social purpose, the whole human race is doomed to destruction in one way or another, and soon.

"Our young folk today sense this terrible urgency. They reject totally the rotten, unworkable values of a society that worships things and destroys people.

"They know so well what they don't want. Little by little they are groping their way through the confusion of our times to new truth. When they find it, I am confident that they will cope."

Teen-Agers Are Tiresome

NEW YORK (WMNS)—Two psychiatrists, a husband and wife, have proposed guidelines for dealing with the often maddening complexities of adolescents.

For instance, the "two seat syndrome"—when a sprawling teenager uses up more than one person's allotment of space in a theatre or subway and then becomes annoyed if asked to move over.

This "extraordinary involvement of pride in every aspect of their behavior" may drive adults beserk but it is also normal, Dr. Martin Symonds of NYU School of Medicine assured a recent medical meeting. His wife, Dr. Alexandra Symonds, also teaches at N..Y.U

NORMALITY

The surest indicator that a teen-ager is on the normal road to emotional maturity is a high level of activity, energy and involvement. Conversely, 10 years of working with adolescents have convinced him that the outlook is poor for apathetic teen-agers.

Since almost all adolescents are troubled and troubling, Dr. Symonds said, it is often difficult to know which exasperating patterns of behavior are normal for the age and which are warnings that professional help is needed.

Dr. Symonds said, that, besides passivity, other grave omens for future mental health are: a contempt for authority that goes far beyond opposition to the abuse of authority; excessive contempt for tender feelings and compassion; excessive feelings of deprivation; severe physical symptoms caused by anxiety; severe obsessive and compulsive behavior.

CONFUSION

On the other hand, Dr. Martin said the following attitudes are normal concomitants of growing up: grandiosity; pseudo-cynicism; excessive need for privacy; sensitivity to coercion; fear of commitment; feelings of confusion; impatience with others; mild depression; insomnia.

Understanding adolescence, according to the psychiatrist, means realizing that it is a voyage of self-discovery. In order to grow up, the adolescent must cease being an agreeable, obedient child and must find his own way.

Those adults who never weathered psychological adolescence, the doctor warned, frequently set about "finding themselves" in middle age, becoming restless, searching for romance, adopting unconventional clothing.

Instant Wine Snobs Gather for Gourmet Meal

By KEVIN J. MODICA

CHICAGO (UPI) — "Be a gourmet the easy way," could be the motto of The Societe Au Gourmet Extrordinaire.

The societe's purpose is to elevate the tastes of those who want to learn more about food and wine—without going through the fuss and bother of years of tasting and training dedicated gourmets go through.

There were about 36 people at their recent dinner—one of eight the societe throws every year—and a reporter, all set to be a snob.

This dinner was billed as a picnic. It was in the garden of the Lake Shore Drive Hotel, complete with strolling violin.

There were, as advertised, "many of the accouterments of indoor dining comfort," such as tables, chairs, dishes and a confusing assortment of silverware—plus bug spray.

Anyway, it was "alfresco" (outdoors), as the Italians say.

WINE DIALOGUE

The card said that while some know "nothing or just a little" about wines, "they have mastered the wine dialogue. This is one-upmanship.

"To enable you to pass yourself off as a wine expert, we have assembled the following little phrases. Toss them off casually and you are sure to gain the respect and admiration of those who do not frequent Sage's East and therefore are not exposed to this wisdom."

"This gentle wine of great pretension," is the opener, followed by other words and phrases not heard in your saloon ordinaire: "musty," "stylish," "puckery," "light dry and fruity," "This wine is of beautiful nose," "corky," "it has good robe," "masculine," "pompous" "nutty," and "a great big mouthful of wine."

Should one feel that English can't properly describe the wine, you can say "sparkling" in French, Italian and German— respectively, "mousseaux," "frizzante" and "shpritzick."

The man responsible for the soiree, restaurateur Gene Sage, said the societe was formed for those who don't want to endure the rigors of joining a formal gourmet society, real pros at the food-and-wine game who have to be able to give detailed dissertations on what is good or bad about the meal.

Sage said the yearly membership cost is $5.

This meal cost an additional $15. The buffet gave you your choice of "filet de boeuf en aspic," a delicious beef, or "le hot dog," a delicacy very much like a hot dog.

There were hors d' oeuvres, consomme madrilene (cheese straws), garden greens, assorted salads (crab, deviled egg) and cheese and fruits. And champagne.

This reporter learned at least one thing: not to ask for a doggie bag.

But all-in-all, the affair was shpritzick.

CAREFREE is an entirely new kind of tampon—much smaller than any tampon ever made, yet amazingly, it protects up to 3 hours longer.

Johnson & Johnson has developed CAREFREE, the most absorbent, the most reliable tampon ever made. CAREFREE is, in fact, safe for up to 3 hours longer than any other tampon.

Another remarkable feature of the CAREFREE Tampon is that it is truly disposable. No more rigid cardboard tube to get rid of. CAREFREE comes without an applicator because it doesn't need one. There's just a neat, compact tampon in a cellophane wrapper.

What are other women doing about sanitary protection?

According to research studies conducted in Canada, the use of tampons is growing rapidly. Their use is widely accepted, particularly among the younger, more sophisticated women. In this group, the majority of women use tampons.

Most women think that tampons are indeed a good idea. But they worry about the reliability of present products, particularly when it comes to using them during the entire period. (Some women are so concerned that they use both tampons and napkins.) But such precautions are completely unnecessary with new CAREFREE Tampons.

Higher absorbency

CAREFREE Tampons' greater absorbency results from a unique quality. While the traditional tampon expands lengthwise, the CAREFREE Tampon expands, logically enough, in width—as the flow requires. This gentle expansion causes the tampon to mould itself to the body contours so it's accident-proof.

Exhaustive clinical tests and actual use among 3,720 women have proven that CAREFREE Tampons can be worn, with complete assurance, even during days when the flow is heaviest.

New CAREFREE Tampons are truly disposable

The cumbersome applicator that you get with ordinary tampons is a thing of the past. CAREFREE doesn't have an applicator because it doesn't need one. It is compact, smooth and firm enough to be inserted easily without one. And this makes CAREFREE a truly disposable tampon.

CAREFREE is also the smallest tampon there is—so small you can hide one in the palm of your hand. So small you can even put a dozen of them in your most fashionable bag and still have room for all that you usually carry. (A whole box of CAREFREE Tampons takes up no more room than a small pack of cigarettes.)
